FOREWORD

It is with great pleasure that we are bringing out Sri Vishnu-Sahasranama-Bhashya of Parasara Bhattar together with English Translation. In 1967 the introductory portion only of Bhatta-Bhashya was published by our Sabha with English Translation by Late Sri K. Bhashyam, (Advocate and Minister, Madras State) under the guidance of Sri U. Ve Uttamoor Viraraghavacharya Svami and with the help of Sri V.S. Seshadri Acharya. Ever since that time there has been a great demand for the entire Bhashya with Translation. We entrusted the work to Sri A. Srinivasa Raghavan of Pudukkottai who gladly did the full Translation of the Bhashya in English and also edited it. We express our grateful thanks to him for the same.

We are thankful to those who encouraged us with tiberal donations as per the list given below :

Sri Mahalakshmi's Grace chose my humble self five decades ago as an instrument for bringing out all Her Stotras by Srivaishnava Acharyas in a single volume. The first section of that book contained the Sri Sukta-bhashva of Nanilyar (12th Century) which was not in print till then. A palm-leaf Manuscript of the work was with my revered Acharya, Sri Saumya narayanacharya of Tirukkottiyur who gave it to me and helped me to publish it. The second section comprised the Text in Sanskrit and Translation in English of the following Stotras: Sri Sukta, Chatus-slokee of Alavander, the first paragraph of Saranagati-padya of Sri Ramanuja, Sri Stava of Srivatsanka Misra, Srigunarathnakosa of Parasara Bhattar and Sri Stuti of Sri Vedantadesika. The Laksmi-sahasranama and Lakshmi ashtottara with their Namavalis and the Chapter in Vishnu Purana ( which describes the birth of Laksmi ) formed the last section. Now Mahavishnu's Kripae has chosen this self to publish with Translation in English Sri Vishnu-sehaaranama with the Bhashya of Parasara Bhatta.

Brahma Sutras, Bhagavad Gita and Vishnu-sahasranama, all of which are the works of Sage Vedavyasa, enjoy undisputed authority in our country. Acharyas of the various schools of Indian Philosophy have written commentaries on them which are studied with great devotion and fervour. Amongst them Viehnu-sahasranama is more popular throughout the length and breadth of Bharata-desa and is recited every day in temples and houses. It is said to be the easy and unfailing means for the attainment of all desires and avoidance of unwelcome things and even for the realisation of God. The Sastras lay down that what was obtained by meditation in Krita-yuga, by sacrifice inTreta-yuga and worship in Dvaaparayuga can be acquired in Kall-yuga by the mere recitation of the names of Bhagavan Kesaya. Meditation requires contro of senses and concentration of mind; and sacrifice stands in need of wealth and the help of others. So is difficult to practise now. The recitation of the names of Bhagavan do not expect any external help. If the will is there it is easy to do. That it is no hyperbole, but true in every way is vouchsafed by the fact that the Supreme Deity. Sri Krishna, who is eulogised by Sahasranama, was Himself one of the audience amongst the pious souls assembled in Kurukshetra to hear the words of wisdom of Bhishma, the great warrior-seint to Yudhishtira, the just and noble king. This is quite similar to what took place with reference to Ramayana of Valmiki which was listened to by its hero. Sri Ramachandra when it was sung by the young hermit-princes Leva and Kusa in the sacrificial hall at Ayodhya, and the seal of approval was given.

Sri Vishnu-sahasrahama is one of the most popular and well-known stotras and there are nearly forty commentaries on it. That of Sri Sankaracharya is the earliest of them. Parasara Bhattar, who was a junior-contemporary and direct disciple of Sri Ramanuja, has written a detailed commentary on it, which goes by the name of 'Bhagavad-guna-darpana', which is being published now with a Translation in English.

Parasara Bhattar begins his commentary with an illuminating and interesting introduction in which he first describes the greatness of Vedavyasa as a highly respected and reputed sage of deep knowledge. Mahabharata, which is often referred to as the fifth Veda, is the work of Vedavyasa and Bhattar quotes several slokes from different Puranes to prove its validity and high place in the religious literature. Next Bhattar takes up Sri Vishnu-sahasranama which is the subject matter of chapter 149 of the Aanusaasanika parva (Parva 13) of Mahabharara. Then he enumerates six reasons to prove the greatness, universal popularity and authoritativeness of Vishnu-sahasranama. The reasons are;

- 3 It has been strung together by the great sage Vyasa.
- 4 It is the considered opinion of Bhishma that it is the best and the easiest of all dharmas.
- 5 It is accepted by all that It is the easiest and most successful means for the attainment of all fruits.
- 6 It is in conformity with the teachings of Bhagavad Gita and other religious texts.

Then Bhattar passes on to comment on the thirteen introductory slokes in the Chapter on Sahasranama, where six questions are put by Yudhistira to Bhishma and convincing answers are given by the latter. Here are the questions and their answers:

- 1. Which is the Supreme Deity?
- 2. Which is the highest goal?
- 3. Which is the deity that is to be worshipped?
- 4. Which again is the deity whose names are to be chanted?
- 5. Which is the greatest Dharma in your opinion?
- 6. Which is the means that will bring about release from bondage?

Bhishma answers these questions almost in a reverse order, since there is some propriety in doing so as the knowledge of the one leads to that of another. Bhishma says ;

- 1. The chanting of the names of Sri Krishna, who is the Supreme Deity and Purushottama, should be done for obtaining release from bondage. (Answer to question 6).
- Sri Krishna Bhagavan alone is to be worshipped and meditated upon with intense devotion. (Q. 4).

- 3. The names of Bhagavan alone are to be chanted.
  (Q. 3.).
- 4. It is my considered opinion that the recitation of Bhagavan's names is the highest Dharma. (Q. 5),
- Realisation of the Lord of great effulgence is the supreme goal. (Q. 2).
- 6. Bhagavan Sri Krishna who is the cause of the Universe is the Supreme Daity. (Q. 1).

From a study of the Introduction we are able to know the fundamental doctrines of Visishtadvaita as revealed by the Upanishads, Brahma Sutras, Bhagavad Gita and other religious texts and as propounded by earlier Acharyas like Nathamuni Alavandar and Ramanuja. We shall just give them in brief as follows:

The Srutis reveal that Bhagavan Narayana and Bhagavat; Lakshmi, the Divine Couple, are together the Supreme Reality. the greatest means and the highest goal (Para-tattva, Paramahita and Parama-purushartha). The Saguna-srutis (that is those Vedic texts that predicate qualities to Paramatma) declare that Paramatma is endowed with innumerable auspicious qualities like knowledge and Bliss, Infinity and Ommipotence. The Nirguna-srutis (i.e. those that negate qualities) proclaim that He is devoid of all kinds of defects like birth and deathhunger and thirst, sickness and sorrow. Again the most important of the doctrines is that Paramatma is the Inner soul of all things---sentient souls and non-sentient matter. He is their Atma and they are His body. They depend on Him for their very existence and they exist for His purpose. Material pleasures of this world and the joy of the Heaven (Svarga) are fruits of a lower order since all of them are trifling, transitory and productive of sorrow. Kaivalya (i.e. the realisation and enjoyment of the Individual soul), though greater than all or them, is only inferior when compared with the Perfect Bliss of Bhagavan, and its place of enjoyment is between the material world below and Valkunta (the Transcendental world) above. The highest goal is the perfect Biles resulting from the enjoyment of the form and qualities of Paramatms and doing loving and eternal service to Him in the Transcendental World (Valkunta).

Jivatmas or Individual souls are classified under three heads: Baddhas (souls in bondage); Muktas (Released Souls); and Nityas eternally free Angels (like Adisesha, Garuda and Vishvaksena). The Achetana or non-sentient Matter is of three kinds: Prakriti, which is the cause of the Panchabhootas out of which things of this world take shape; Kaala or Time Element is eternal and all-pervasive; and Suddhasattva, is the self-luminous and blissful matter which goes into the the composition of all things in Valkunta.

After this long introduction Parasara Bhattar begins to explain the Thousand Names one by one in great detail. First he gives the meanings of names. Rules of Grammar from Ashtaadhyaayee end Unaadi Sutras are quoted in support of the interpretation given by him. They are further substantiated by quotations from the Upanishadic Mentras, Slokas from Itihaasa (Ramayana and Mahabharata), from the Puranas (Vishnu Purana, Vishnu Dharma and Vishu Tattva) and from the Agamas. Fragments of Mantras and Dhyana-slokas of the several incarnations of Shagavan are given to prove that his interpretations are based upon authoritative religious texts. Thus Bhattar establishes that Vishnu-sahasranama is not a mere catalogue of names, but every one of the names is full of significance and refers to one quality or form or episode of Paramatma.

Another peculiar feature of the Shashya of Bhattar is that he points out that there is some connection between one name and the other that follows and thus there is a development of idea from beginning to end. According to Bhattar, the Sahasranama begins with the Para-rupe or the Transcendental Form of Parametma, who is all-pervasive and who is in Vaikunta. Then the Vypohas or the Emanations are described which are four in number and have their origin in the Para-roopa. They are Vasudeva, Samkarahana, Pradyumna end Aniruddha, every one them having their own specific qualities and duties for the redemption of the world and having places also where they function. Next is the Vibheva or Incarnations who take birth in this world in the forms of beings here like Matsva, Kurma etc. and are more easily accessible to all. Archa or icon is the idol form which is content to have its abode in a magnificent temple or in a small but and which can be worshipped by all irrespective of the qualifications by birth, knowledge, or conduct, Antarvaam; is the fifth manifestation which resides in the heart of every soul ever ready to answer the call for protection, but realisable only by Yogins. Bhattar concludes his Bhashya by pointing out that the names towards the end suggest the path-Archiraadi-gati-by which the redeemed souls proceed and reach the Transcendent world (Vaikunta) where they enjoy perfect Bliss by experiencing the qualities of Bhagavan and doing loving service to Him which is a source of joy to them, as much as it is to Bhagavan.

Classification of the names in the Text of Sahasranama

Bhishma tells Yudhishtira both at the beginning and at the end of the Chapter on Sahasranama that he will recount the thousand names of Vishnu. But there are nearly 1030 names in the Chapter. The commentators round them off to 1000 by taking some of the two successive names as one. In this process there is a difference in the choice of names by Sri Sankara and Sri Bhattar. The thousand names are classified in three ways: i. Sphuta-nama which are 960 comprising single words, ii. Eka-nama comprising thirty which are formed by more than one word; and iii. Eka-aneka-nama—6 names which can be taken either as a single name or two names. To make up the balance of ten, four of these may be construed at thus: 960+30+8+2=1000.

The following ere the six 'Eka-aneka-names'; i, Trika-kutdhama (62); ii. Havir-Harih (361); iii. Sad-aksharam (481);

iv. Asad-akshatam (482); v. Savah (731); and vi. Chatuivedevit Ekapaat (777).

The thirty 'Eka-names' containing more than one word are:

Muktaanam paramea gatih (12);	Nidhir-Avyayah (30);
Mangalam Param (64);	Saasvatas-Sthaanuh (121)
Gurur-Gurutamah (211);	Ahas-Samvartakah (234);
Visvabhug-Vibhuh (241)	Ojas-Tejo Dyutidharah
	(276
lahto visiahtah (309)	Peramas-Spashtah (392);
Dharmavid-Uttamah (405)	Sthaavares-Sthaanuh(428)
Be zjam-Avyaγam (43 0);	Jnaenam-Uttamam (455);
Jyotir-Aadityah (569);	Sreyas-Sreemaan (619)
Jyotir-Ganesvarah (625);	Sassvetas-Sthirah (633):
Brahmakrit-Brahmaa (668);	Padam-Anuttamam (738);

Anantehutabhug-Bhoktas (889)	Kapir-Avyayah (900)
Bhoor-Bhuvah (942);	Bhoorbhuvassvas-Taruh (967)

The Thousand names are divided into ten hundreds and the first and the last name of each of them are given in the table below:

Hundred	First name	Last Name
1 -	Visvam	Sarveadih
ii ii	Achyutah	Amrityuh
111	Sarva—drik	Prabhuh
1V	Yugaadikrit	Nayah

Kapir-Avyayah	Arkah	1X
Sarva-prahara-	Svestidah	X

してしたがで、おけらずとなってもでもはらわりにもない。

There is a repetition of 96 names. Two names are repeated four times, three twelve times and eighty-two twice. The flaw of redundancy is removed by Bhattar who points out the significance of each such word which is relevant to the context in which it appears.

One Sri Varadacharya of Kanchi, about whose date nothing is known, has written a work Nirvachana by name in which he quotes abundantly the Sutras of Panini to clarify the interpretation of the Sahasranama by Bhattar. It will be a source of delight for study to those who are well-versed in the science of Sanskrit Grammar.

Nirukti is the work of an unknown author which in 785 Slokes gives in brief the meaning of the thousand names as interpreted by Bhattar. In this edition we have given in the footnote under each name the particular line of Nirukti to help the reader to understand Bhattar easily. The above two works have been printed in the Bhashya editions of Bombay (Nagari Script) and Madras (Telugu Script). The second alone has been published by our Sabha.

LIFE OF PARASARA BHATTAR

Though the omniscient Sages and the saintly Alvara have contributed a great deal for the good of humanity, they have not cared to record anything about themselves, since their deal was noble and aspirations high. The same is the case with many of our Acharyas also. That is the reason for so much of difference of opinion about the date of Sri Sankaracharya, Nathamuni and other Acharyas. Parasara Bhattar, the author of Sahasranama-bhashya is no exception to this. All that we know about him definitely is that he was the son of Srl Vateanka Misra (Kurattalvan) and a junior contemporary of Sri Ramanuja, whose date is fortunately known as 1027—1137 A. D. No doubt the Guruparamparas have written much about Bhatter, but there is no unanimity in their record. One Guruparampara says that he was born on a Vaisakha Anuradha day in the Tamil year Subhakrit. About his longevity there are several views. Some say that he lived for a hundred years (1106—1206). Others hold the view that his period of life was 97 years (1078—1175); and yet others 28 years (1123—1151). All that we can say definitely is that he lived in the first helf of the twelfth century.

In the benedictory verses of Sahasranama-bhashya Paresere Bhattar himself says that he was the son of Srivatsanka Misra and the disciple of Govinda (more well-known by the name of Embar). But for one or two incidents in his life. everything about Bhattar is shrouded in mystery. His birth elso is mysterious as narrated in the Guruparampara. It was a dev of torrential rains in summer in Srirengam. Kurattalvan e great devotee of Sri Rangaraja was not able to go out to gather his food by sims as was his wont. He and his faithful wife Andat had to remain at home without food. The mid-day worship of Sri Rangarala was over in the temple. The Lord in an ethereal voice commanded Uttama-nambi, a chief officer of the temple, to take a plate of food offered to Him and to deliver it to His devotes. Kurattalvan in his house. When the food was brought, Kurattalven was moved by the inordinate Mercy of Bhagavan abd bowing before Uttamanambl, received it with respect as a divine gift. He took one third of the plate and gave two-thirds to his wife. From that day Andal became pregnant, and in due course of time efter ten months she gave birth to two sons who were given the name of Ranganatha and Stirama. This is very much likethe story of Sri Ramachandra, and his three brothers who were born in this world out of the "sweet soup (paavasa) that emerged out of the sacrificial fire and was taken in by Kausalva. Sumitra and Kaikevi, the queens of Dasaratha. It is said that Bhetter was adopted as Their son by the Divine Couple, Ranganatha and Ranganayaki and was brought up by Them. Shatter also says in the fourth verse at the teginning of the Sahasranema - bhashya that the name his fether Srivateanka [Misra gave him was Ranganatha, and that which was conferred on him with love by Ranganatha was Parasara. This is confirmed by the colophon of Sahasranema-bhashya. In Sloka 17 of his Srirangaraja Stava, Bhattar says that he was fondled with great love by the Divine Couple. "Sri Rangaraja-Kamalaa-pada-laalita". The Supreme Deity was in speaking terms with him.

Even as a child Bhattar was very intelligent and precocions by nature. It is said that when he was just a boy of four and was playing in the streets of Srirangam, which was the stronghold of Vaishnavism, Sarvaina-bhatta, a scholar of repute, was being taken in a palanquin in procession with great pomp and pride surrounded by his admirers who were proclaiming his deep knowledge and skill in dialectics. Bhatter was amused to see and hear them. He took a handful of dust and advancing towards the palanquin, stopped it and said, " Please tell me, sir, how much is this dust?" The acholar was struck with wonder at the boldness of the young chap and his question. He was non-plussed and remained silant. Bhattar threw down the dust and said in a tone of chatlenge, "Why all this vanity and pomp when you do not know this as a handful of dust?" The aged scholar admired the intelligence of the boy; getting down from the palanguin. he embraced him with love, blassed him and went away.

There are many enecdotes like this to illustrate Bhattar's intellect and intelligence, learning and scholarship, and devotion to God and respect for His devotees. I shall restrict myself to one or two such ancecdotes which have an eutobiographical tinge reguesting the readers to go to the Guruparamaparas for more information.

Adhyatma Sestras from Embar. He also studied the Hymns of the Alvers and acquired perfect mastery over them in his very early age. The sweetness, melody and devotion of the Hymns attracted him so much that almost throughout the day and hight, he lived, moved and had his being in them. His classes and discourses on the Sanskrit Sastras and Tamil Hymne were so interesting and illuminating that students flocked to his place to learn from him. Sri Ramanuja was very much impressed by his inana, anushtana and Pravachana that he appointed Bhattar as the Pontifical Head of the Vaishnaves in the presence of all his disciples. Bhattar spent his life in Srirangam worshipping Sri Ranganatha and giving lessons to those who came to him. The references to Kadambari, Kiratarjuniya and Kavyadarsa in Sahasranama-bhashya show that he was equally proficient in secular literature also.

The Guruprampara records that in this happy life of Bhatter e sad incident occurred which led to his voluntary exile from Stirengem for a few years. There was a local chieftain Akalanka-brahma Raya by name, who draw up a plan to renovate the rampart wall in the city of Srirangam. There was the small. house of a great devotee situate on the path of the planned wall; so he ordered that it should be demolished. Bhattar tried to persuade the chieftain to build the wall leaving the house in tact, saying "The hut of a great devotee is stronger than a rampart wall to the city." But he did not yield. Bhattar thought it would be better to keep himself away from such a parson; so he went to Thirukkottiyur. But his heart was crying for a bath in the Kaveri, worship of Ranganatha and life in Srirangam. His Ranganatha stotra gives a graphic picture of the enquish in his mind and his prayer to Rangenatha" May I be at least a dog in the streets of Thy city." After some time Bhattar was taken back to Srirangam and the loy that he experienced at that time can be seen almost in every sloka of Sri Rangareja -Stave, beginning from a bath in the Kaveri, entry into the city and worship of Lord Rangenatha.

From the way in witch Bhatter refers in his works to the Alvars and their poems, we can have an idea of the respect and love he had for them. For him the Vedas and the Divys-prabandha of the Alvars enjoy an equal status and validity. In his Sri Rangaraja-stava he designates the Tiruvaimozhi o Nammatvar ea "Sahasra- seakha Draavidee Brahma Samhita"- Tamil veda with thousand branches ( like the Sama Veda with thousand branches) (verse 16). He describes Renganathe sa having his repose in the lyrics of Nammalvar with as much of love as he does on the banyan leat, womb of Devaki, the Uparishads and the bosom of Lakehmi. Nammalvar for him is "Krishna-thrishnaa'--- "Krishna thirst incarnate "V. 16). Bhattar says that the punnage tree on the bank of the Chandra Pushkarini in the temple grows only by the sweet nectar-music of the Hymns of the Alvars and not by ordinary water as other trees do.

In the elaborate commentary on the Tiruvaimozhi of Nammalvar known by the name of 'idu' or '36000 padi', there are nearly 100 references to Bhattar's interpretation which is new and interesting to the words and phrases of the Hymns. In the commentary for versa (1. 1. 4 of Tiruvaimozhi), it is stated that when Bhattar was expounding a word, a learned Tamil acholar remarked that Alvar's use of a particular word in the context was inappropriate. Bhattar is said to have quoted apontaneously two parallel verses from Tirukkural and Kuruntokal and asked him if he had not come across them in the course of his study.

The Sastras declare that all the fivefold manifestations of the Lord as Para, Vyuhh, Vibhava. Antaryami and Archa are requal and there is no difference in their divinity and power-bhattar also confirms it in his Sahasranama bhashya. Still we can see from his works that he had a partiality for Sri Rama in the Vibhava (incarnations) and Ranganatha in Archavatara (idol form).

ii. The Works of Parasara Bhattar

Nine works are attributed to Parasara Bhatter out of which only five are available in full and the rest in fragments.

- L. The five works ere:
  - 1 Sri Vishnu-sahasranama-bhashya
- 2. Ashtaslokes— This explains the meaning of the three Important Mantres Ashteskahara, Dvaya and charamassloka in eight Slokes.

- Slokes 1—3 The meaning of the three words of the Astaakshara.
  - The benefits that accrue by a knowledge of the same.
  - 5-6 Meaning of Dvaya-mantra which is In two parts with three words in each.
  - 7-8 Meaning of charama-sloka
- 3. Ranganatha ashtaka. The eight slokes of this Stotre portray the feelings of Bhatter when he had to be away from Srirengam and his ardent desire to come to Srirengam, bathe in Kaveri River, move about in the streets of Srirengam hallowed by the procession of the Lord and worship the Lord.
- 4. Sri Rangaraja Stava. This is a Hymn on Lord Ranganatha in two parts which describes the joy experienced by Bhattar when he was again in Srirangam visiting every nook and corner there as well as worshipping the Lord of his heart in the Prenavakaara: vimana and other minor deities in the sub-shrines. Incidentally it gives us an inkling into the doctrines of Visishtadvaita Philosophy.

There are 127 Slokes in the First Section.

- 1-12 Salutation to the Guru-parampara
- 13—20 Humble expression of the lack of equipment in him for the great task.
- 21—32 Description of the River Kaveri, green groves warblings of birds and the play of animals in Srirangam.
- 33-62 Description of the City of Srirangam with its Mandapams, Thousand-pillared Hall, Chandra-pushkarini with the Punnaga tree, the Shrine of the ten Alvars, Ranga-vimanam and the Shrine of Vishvakkaena and his Consort Sutravati and mention of Hanuman and Vibhiahena housed there.

- 63-76 This Bliss of the sight of the Standing Beauty Ranganatha (known by the names of Namperumal and Alegia-manavasian).
- 73—127 Peria-Perumel, the Sleeping Beauty reclining on Adisesha described from head to foot with His weapons and ornaments.

The Second section has 105 Slokas:

- 1—16 Tenets of the other Schools of Indian Philosophy like Buddhism and Jalnism, Sankhya and Yoga, Mimamsa and Advaita as contrasted with those of Visishtadvalta.
- 17-26 The validity of the Vedas and the Vedangas.
- 27-44 The auspicious qualities of Parametma
- 45-69 The mystic nature of the various incarnations of Bhagavan like Hamsa and Hayagriva.
- 60-73 The ten well-known Incamations. Dasaavateata, Matsys, Kurma etc.
- 74—87 The Supreme Delty (Archa) Ranganathe and His devotees.
- 88-105 Prayer for forbearance for attempting to do what is impossible.
- 6. Srigunaratnakoea is a Stotra in 61 verses on the Goddess Ranganaayaki, the Consort of Sri Rangaraja.
  - 1—8 invocation to the Goddess Lakshmi praying for faultless words to sing Her praise.
  - 9—18 The object of preise for all the Srutie end Smritis that it is She that bestows greatness on all others.
  - 16—27 The Supreme Sovereign of the Leelas-vibhooti and Nitya-vibhooti with its divine mensions and Ever-free Angels (nitye-sooris)

- 8-35 Reply to objections against Her greatness and description of the qualities which are common to Her and Her Consort and those which are peculiar to Her.
- 36-50 Description of the personal charm and beauty of Lakshmi, and Her ornaments, and of Her Incarnations and their characteristics.
- 37 58 The inseparable union of the Divina Couple, both of them being jointly the means and the goal; the special quality of Lakshml of being an intercessor for protection on our behalf (Purushaksara).
- 59-6) Seeking refuge under the Goddess.

II The other four works of Bhattar which are available only in fragments in the form of quotations by others are:

- 1. Tattva-ratnaakara This appears to be a dialectical work on Epistemology and Ontology. This work is frequently quoted by Sri Vedanta Desika in his Nyaya-parisuddhi and Nyaya siddhanjana. There are 72 fragmentary quotations.
- 2. Nitya A manual of daily rituals. But for a couple of slokes quoted by Sri Vedanta Desika, the book is lost,
- 3. Adhyaatma-khanda-dvaya-vivarena or Vyaakhyaa Two quotations are all that are available which are quoted by Sri Vedanta Desika in his Nyaya-siddhanjana. Jiva-pericchede one in connection with the definition of 'sarira' and the other with Kaivalya (the enjoyment of the individual soul) being of a lower order than Moksha.
- 4. Lakshmi-kalyana. This is said to be a drama by Bhattar dealing with the wedding of Goddess Lakshmi. This is also unfortunately lost to us. Sri Vedantadesika refers by name to Lakshmi Kelyana in two of his works and quotes frequency from it, in three.

 å. "Ananyaadheena-kalyaanam Anya-mangala-karakam | -Jagan-nidaanam Advandvam Dvandvam vandaamahe vayam. II"

(This sloke which is said to be the benedictory verse of the drama Lakshmi-kalyane is quoted by Sri Vedan-tadesike in Siddhopaya-sodhana-adhikara (Chapter 23) of his Rahasya-traya-sara where he discusses the status of Laksmi in our Philosophy.)

b. "Svayam vastoo-kurvan janam imam akasmaat sarasija- prakaarau Padmaayaas-Tava cha charanau nah saranayan "

In the Dvaya-adhikara of his Rahasya, Saara-ssara, Sri Desika quotes this verse with the note: "Thus Bhattar has written in his Lakshmi-kalyana as the words of Nammalvar," o. "Dharme pramaanam samayas-tadeeyo Vedas - cha Tattvem cha tad - ishta-dalvem " in Lakshmi kalyanam".

Gita Tatparya-chandrika of Sri-Vedantadesika (18-14),

This much for the works of Bhattar in Sanskrit. There are two works of Bhattar in the Mani-pravata Language (Tamil and Sanskrit harmoniously mixed) which was the medium of commentaries in South India at that time. One of the two is an exposition on a chapter in Varaha Purana and the other on a verse of Thirumangai Alvar.

In the Varaha Purana, Bhagavan Varaha raveals to his Consort Bhumi WhomHe had lifted up from the Nether Regions, the greatness of the recitation of the names of Bhagavan set to a tune Kaisika by name. In that connection he narrates a story how a devotes, who was an outcaste, was able to bring about the redemption of a Brahma-rakshasa (the ghost of a fellen Brahmin) by a gift of the merit earned by him that night by propitiating Bhagavan with his names sung in Kaisika tune. This incident took place in Thirukurungudi on the night of the Ekadast in the Suklapaksha of a Karthika month.

After writing the commentry on it, Bhatter wanted to offer at the feet of his favourite Deity Ranganatha, and it so happened that it was the identical day. Lord Ranganatha was so much pleased with the production of Bhatter that he straight away bestowed on him the highest gift, namely Vaikunta. Next moment Bhatter shed his mortal coil and attained union with God. In commemoration of this episode of Bhatter, a festival is celebrated in Srirangam even today every year when the Lord proceeds to a special mandapam and after a special worship listens to the narration of Bhatter's work by a lineal descendent of the latter in the presence of pious souls. The next day at dawn he is suitably honoured and sent home with all the paraphernalia of the Lord.

The second work is a commentary on Verse 21 "Maivanna-harum kunji" of Tiru-nedum-tandam one of the six poemsof Tirumangai Alvar. It describes graphically in a sweet and moving language the pangs of a heroine in separation (here-Parakaela-neayaki-Tirumangai Alvar) from her lovar.

Bhatter begins his commentary with a clear analysis of the poem and gives a new and refreshing, philosophic and erotic interpretation of the same. Then he takes up the verse itself, revels and makes us revel in the explanation of every word and phrase in it quoting appropriate passages from Remayene, Vishnu Purana and other religious texts.

With reference to this work also there is a tradition that Bhattar, under instructions from Sri Ramanuja, went to Melkote (Tirunarayanapuram) to meet Vedanti, a highly learned Advaita scholar in debate and establish the religion of the Alvars. He humbly approached the scholar and begged for alms for debate saying that he had studied Tiruneduntandakam. It was quite new name to Vedanti, but the noble scholar agreed. Bhatter, succeeded in the debate and the scholar became his disciple.

Adhyayana-Utsavam—the festival in which the singing of the Hymns of the Alvars after the annual break begins. He went to worship the Lord in the temple and submitted how the defeated Vedanti through Nedum-tendakam. Then being sommanded by the Lord, he repeated the same. This incident is accommended in Spirengem every year on this day when Araiys? (the Court-bard of the temple) re-enacts the same before the Lord: The occasion itself goes by the name of Tiru-nedun-tendakem.

And now about the scholarship of Bhatter in Tamil. Two verses in the Venba metre are attributed to him which praise the work of Nammalvar as the musical Veda sweet like the lute, and which are invariably recited before beginning the study of Tiruvaimozhi, the poem of Nammalvar. In one Alveris described as the mother and Ramanuja as the Foster-mother of Tiruvaimozhi, all the thousand and odd verses of which sing the glory of Sri Ranganatha. In the other he declares that the poem contains all the five chief tenets of Vaishnavism, viz.

I. The nature of the Supreme Deity (Paramatma). 2. The nature of the Jivatma, who is the body of Paramatma. 3. The goal. 4. The means for the same. 5. The obstacles that stend in the way. And the two verses that are known as 'Tanians' (Laudatory verses) are:

- வான்திகழும் சோஃ மதின் அரங்கர் வண் புகழ் மேல் ஆன்ற தமிழ் மறைகள் ஆயிரமும், — சன்ற முதல் தாய் சடகோபன், மொய்ம்பால் வளர்த்த இதத்தாய் இராமனுசன்.
- மிக்க இறைநிலேயும் மெய்யாம் உயிர்நிலேயும் தக்க நெறியும் தடையாதித்—தொக்கியலும், ஊழ்வினேயும் வாழ்வினேயும் ஒதும் குருகையர்கோன். யாழின் இசை வேதத்தியல்.

There are about forty or fifty slokes composed by Bhatter in praise of Lord Ranganatha and recited by him with exposition in Tamil before the Lord on the Tirumanjanam occasions on Ekadasi, Amavasya, Ayane, Telugu and Tamil New year day and Brahmotsevam. They are recited even today on those occasions by his lineal decendants under the nomenclature of Parasara Bhattar and Vedavyssa Bhattar. Except the four slokes which I got printed years ago, all the rest with Shattar's exposition are with the Bhattar family at Srirangam. One sloke "Tvam me Aham me" is quoted by Sri Vedante Desike in his Rahasya traya sara.

The following are some of those slokes (Tirumaniana-k-

I have tried to do it to the best of my ability. Merits, if eny, are due to the grace of Sri Ranganatha and the blessings of Bhattar. Faults are mine. In spite of my desire to place a correct edition ferrora have crept in. I crave the indulgence of the readers to forgive me, and take to the study of the Bhashya.

The [number in the margin in front of the names shows the serial order of that name in the Sahasraname, and those within brackets after the name the other places they occur in the serial order.

Now it is my pleasant duty to express my grateful thanks to the Viaishtadvalta Pracherini Sabha, Madras, and its Secretary who gave me the opportunity to serve the cause of our Religion by editing the Sahasranama Bhashya of Parasara Bhattar with a Translation in English and who were also of great help at every stage in its production. I also thank those who helped me in various ways.

I place the book in the hands of the public so that they may study it and become the recipients of the blessings of the Divine Couple, Srl Ranganatha and Sri Ranganayaki.

Commentary by Parasara Bhattarya on Vishnu Sahasranama

श्रीपराशरभट्टार्यविरचितम् भगवद्गुणदपणाख्यम् श्रीविष्णुसहस्रनामभाष्यम्

वन्दे गोविन्दतातौ मुनिमथ मनवै लक्ष्मणायै महान्तं ध्यायेयं यामुनायै मम हृदि तनवै राममेवाभियायाम् । पद्माक्षं प्रेक्षिषीय प्रथममपि मुनि नाथमीडे शठारि स्तौमि प्रेक्षेय लक्ष्मी शरणमशरणः श्रीवरं संश्रयेयम् ।।

(1) My salutation to Govinda (Embar) and my father (Srivatsanka). I contemplate on Lakshmanarya (Sri Ramanuja) and meditate on Mahan (Peria Nambi). My mind be full of Yamunarya (Alavandar). I approach respectfully Ramamisra. May I see face to face Pundarikaksha Acharya, I adore Nathamuni, the first of our Acharyas. My adorations and praises go to Satari (i.e., Nammazhvar). May I have a vision of Lakshmi. Helpless as I am I surrender myself unto Sridhara (i.e., the Lord of Lakshmi).

(Thus, the Guru-parampara, the line of spiritual preceptors, is extolled.)

(Embar and Kurattazhvan are referred to by the dual, Govinda-Tatau, because both are the direct preceptors of Sri Parestra Bhatta and the disciples of Sri Ramanuja.)

भी नगी गणवक्ताचेः पारिवर्षेः प्रशासते । श्रीरङ्गराजसेनान्ये सूत्रवस्या समयुषे ।।

- (2) Salutation to Vishvaksena, the commander-in-chief of Lord Sri Hanga, and who rules with his followers, such as Gejanana, and who is ever with Sutjavati (his wife).
  - (In the usual Guruparampara, Vishvaksena comes between Nammazhwar and Lakshmi. Here, Vishvaksena gets a whole stanza to himself; his name was omitted in the previous stanza.)

नमो नारायणायेदं कृष्णद्वैपायनात्मते। यदामुष्यायणा वेदा महाभारतपञ्चमाः ॥

(3) Salutation to Narayana, who incarnated as Krishna Dvaipayana, to whom belong all the Vedas, with the Mahabharata which is the fifth Veda (because it is he that divided and made them available to the world).

(4) Inspired by Rangesa and given the title of Parasara Bhetta by the Lord of Sriranga Himself, I, the person named Ranganathe, the son of the sage, Srivatsanke, who (the said Srivatsanke) ever considered his discipleship under Ramanuja as a great treasura—I now proceed to comment on the (holy) Names of Lord Hari, with a view to obtain the blessings of Lord Ranganatha and His Consort, Sri Laksmi.

(5) In samsara (the world of recurring births and deaths) generally, there is already great ignorance about the Lord; more so in the Kaliyuga (the age of darkness and sin). And it is out of footherdiness that I venture to speak to men who deem themselves perfect, of the secret of the Vedants. May Vyasa who composed this hymn of praise, and the Merciful Lord Harl who is the object of praise therein—may they both bear with me for this folly.

(6) I prostrate and pray (to you, kind readers); please place faith in Lord Harl and the collection of His Names and test kindly towards me who attempt to explain the Names, and drink this nectar. Let there be no indifference or enmity in the matter.

(After the above preliminary and benedictory verses Parasara Bhatta proceeds with the preface to his Commentary.)

THE VALIDITY OF MAHABHARATA, LIKE RAMAYANA

We see in the world that any intelligent person, after having gained some knowledge of the objects of human pursuit through the sources of knowledge (such as perception, inference etc.), desires to enjoy the good things of life like flowers, sandal, gold, etc., to eschew things like knife, thorns, etc., which are unpleasant, and is indifferent to neutral things like a piece- of wood or mud. Of these, the two purusharthas (objects desired by men) known as artha and kama (wealth and pleasure) are experienced by means of actual direct perception and inference. They are to be given up, because they are associated with innumerable imperfections like the following;—they are (1) petty, (2) lead to harmful quences, (3) are disgusting, (4) are evanescent, (5) are mixed with distressful things, and (6) are not even easily obtainable. On the other hand. (the other two primary objects of human pursuit), dharma (virtue) and paratattva (salvation) can be learnt only from the scriptures. These are opposed to the other two purusharthes (i.e., arthe and kama) and are full of beneficent qualities. Therefore, the sastras (scriptures and works of religious authority) and their teachings are to be preferred. As is proplaimed with one voice by those learned in the Itihasas

(epic history) and the Puranas i. "Truth, this is the Truth and again the Truth. This is proclaimed with hands uplifted that there is no sastra (authority) higher than the Vedas, no God higher than Kesava."

As regards the Vedas, the highest of the fourteen subjects of study (vidyasthanas), they are to be understood in their fullest extent and scope through the Itihasas and Puranas. It is also said that "Veda trembles with fear at the sight of ignorant or half learned persons, thinking. They will be tray me' (by misinterpretation)." Hence, it is clear that the understanding or interpretation of the Vedas can be done only through the study of the Itihasas and Puranas; and of these two since the Puranas are mentioned subsequent to Itihasas, the Itihasas are more important.

[This reasoning is arrived at according to rules of grammar. In a copulative (dvandva) compound, the word with less number of vowels must be mentioned first, except in that case where the thing denoted by the word with the larger number of vowels is preferred for some reason.]

Hence, the Mahabharata, like the Ramayana, is the proper refuge for us (to understand the Vedas.)

GREATNESS OF THE CHAPTER ON SAHASRANAMA

This chapter of Sahasranama or The Thousand Names (1) is ... the essence of respected Mahabharata, (2) has been sung by the great sages,(3) has been strung together by the great preceptor of the Vedas, (4) was expounded by Bhishma as his excellent creed of faith, (5) has been accepted by all persons with respect as excellent, and (6) contains truths and lessons in conformity with the teachings of the Gita and such other authoritative works. For all these reasons this chapter is to be taken up for study, recitation and meditation.

(1) ESSENCE OF THE MAHABHARATA

The Mahabharate is considered by great men as a great authority, and more so, because it is an lithese with clearly-worded and well-constructed sentences and phrases. Both in the Tayu Purane and the Saive Purane, it is said of this great Itlhese; "The venerable Vyasa churned the ocean of the Vedes, using his fintellect as the churning rod and produced for the good of the world this moon called the Mahabharata",

Bhavishyat Purana :-

"Man is afraid of the sestres like a diseased man of a bitter drug. Hence it is that the essence of all the sastres has been used to bring forth this Mahabharata as a delightful poem".

Matsya Purana :--

"God Vishnu Himself was born as the son of Parasara called Krishna Dvaipayana, by whom for the sake of lighting the world the moon named the Mahabharata was produced".

Vishnu Purana :--

"Know then that Vyasa, called Dvaipayana, is no other than Lord Narayana Himself. Who else could have produced this great work, the Mahabharata?" So also does the Markandeya Purana say: "This world has been sanctified and has been made free of impurities by the floods of the (holy) words of Vyasa, descending from the high mountain of the Vedas, and cutting at the very roots the trees of false and perverted dharmas". In the Mahabharata itself it is stated that a Brahmin who is not versed in this Itihasa, but only in the four Vedas, Vedangas and Upanishads, is not learned". Thus, the Mahabharata is extolled by thousands of sayings.

This work follows and is consistent with the Vedas, the books of sacred law, Itihasas and Puranas with all their subsidiary parts or auxiliaries. Indeed, it is said: *'What is found here is to be found elsewhere; whatever is not found here cannot be found elsewhere". Thus, whatever is performed or is to be performed for salvation, according to the Vedas etc., and whatever is to be performed by way of worldly conduct are dealt with here and faid down in no uncertain terms and without bies or partiality. For all these reasons, many wise men have concluded that the Mahabharata is more precious than any other Purana.

This chapter of the Thousand Names occurs in the Anusasanika Parvan, which is the heart of the Itihasa, and in the context of expounding the duty of charity, for the purpose of laying down the essence of the sastras in a short and abbreviated form.

As this work teaches us the highest goal, and as the doubts about its authoritativeness and its being Intended as a mere matter of praise are dispelled (literally thrown far out) by the excellence of the reasons to prove that it is authoritative and by the possession of the characteristics that this work deals with the Ultimate Reality, this work is eminently fit to be taken up by persons desirous of worldly prosperity or Action.

(3) "Collated together by the Vedacharya". The exposition of the above is as follows:—The venerable teacher of the Vedas, Krishna Dvaipayana, is the most reliable (of teachers). For, He is an incarnation of the Supreme Lord Narayana, endowed with unsurpassed knowledge and other auspicious qualities, such as aisvarya, and not subject to any imperfections like confusion of mind or tendency to mislead others, or indifference. And he, being inspired solely with the desire to benefit the men of Kaliyuga, who are generally of dull minds, divided and arranged the Vedes. He composed the Mahabharata, called the fifth Vede, with the object of dispelling the ignorance, doubts or perverse misconceptions of the people about the Real Truth and teaching the principles of good conduct enshrined in the Vedas.

Look at the nobility of his ancestry. He is the great-grendson of Vasishta who, by a word of his, ennobled Visvariitra, a Kshatriya, into a Brahmin; is the son of Parasara who is extolled by the Linga Purana as a great soul, who had attained, by the grace of Vasishta and Pulastya, the true vision of the Reality and who attained eminence as the author of a purana (the Vishnu Purana). He is respected by assemblage of the rishis as one who has performed penances and yoga of unsurpassed austerity. Thus by him the Names of Vishnu, which were sung by various sages, had been strung together in the form of a hymn of praise. Hence, this Chapter of Thousand Names has to be accepted as most beneficial (to mankind).

Not only this. Even the Supreme Lord, Sri Krishna Himself (exhorted Dharmaraje to resort to Bhishma end) said: "Bhishma is on the bed of arrows like a fire slowly cooling. He is contemplating on Me. My mind goes to him. He knows all divine weapons. He has in his mind all the four Vedes and the Vedangas. I am now one with him by My will. O King of Bharatas! he knows the past, the present and the future. My mind is with him. If this head of the family of Kurus passes away there will be the danger of knowledge declining and perishing. Hence it is that I urge you to go to him".

Further (He, the Lord, Sri Krishna, said to Bhishma) also a "O best of Bharetas, what you are going to say to Dhermaraja will be ever established in this world as permanently as the words of the Veda. The past, the present and the future are clear to you, old in wisdom, as (the fruit) in the paim of the hand. I have known you. You have indeed the capacity to create by your penance the world of movables and Immovables...No decay for you nor ignorance nor delusion... Your mind will always be clear and calm like the moon cleared of clouds, ever rest in settingune, and not be affected by rajes or temas."

[Sativa, rajes and tames are the three 'qualities' or constituents of metter. They are believed to affect the mind also, sativa making it clear, rajes inducing passion and tames bringing about duliness, payvereity and aloth.]

Narada also praised Bhishma as one of great eminence who had attained the vision of God on account of his association with and service to great rishis and elders, and also by his life-long and uninterrupted observance of celibacy, penance and contemplation. He also blessed Bhishma and directed him to expound to the listeners not only the Ultimate Truth but also the dharmas and rules of conduct. Moreover, Bhishma has already received the blessings of his fether and mother by his services to them.

Bhishma himself said these words about his knowledge of the Supreme Truth: "O Govinde! By Thy grace and Thy

By Thy grace again, O Janardana, and by constant contemplation on Thee, I feel strong like a young man and I can expound the dharmas": Such a Bhishma introduced the subject of the Thousand Names in these words, "I consider this dharma as the highest of the dharmas," and expressed his view that the chanting of the Thousand Names was his greatest meta or creed of faith.

UNIVERSAL ACCEPTANCE OF THE SAHASRA NAMA

(5) Accepted by all—The Thousand Names have been accepted by all in the world. In the Sabha Parvan, the Lord is praised as adorned with Thousand Names: "The Lord is one with a Thousand Names, Supreme and birthless. In the Vishnu Dharma in the context of the grant of salvation to Gajendra, the chief among elephants, Vishnu is praised as one with a Thousand Names, etc. Again, in this chapter, in the introduction and at the end where the fruits (phala) of the recitation are set out, the excellence of the Thousand Names is mentioned.

So also, in Ayurvada (the Science of Longevity or Medicine) and in other sastres which deal with worldly benefits and spiritual welfare. The Charaka Samhita says. "By praising (with these Thousand Names) Vishnu of Thousand, heads, the Lord of movables and immovables, a man is rid of all fevers." Even a modern work i.e. a collection of miscellaneous matters, in the context of dealing with the remedy for urinary troubles (meha), starts with "Let the Purushasukta be recited" and goes on to say that the Sahastanama of Bharata should also be recited. In respect of consumption cases also, the Thousand Names are to be recited as expiation. In cases of certain fevers, it is said that, after homa, the Thousand Names are to be recited. For getting rid of the bad influences of planets the Thousand Names and the Marutsuktam are prescribed. So also in other places.

Even ordinary poets and writers describe this hymn as a protective force, in the Kadambari, Bhatta Bana, when he describes a room used for confinement of women at childbirth, mentions it as a place where the recitation of Narayana's Thousand Names is incessantly going on Also in this world. it is seen that the Thousand Names are accepted with faith, bacause many persons learn, memorise, hear, recite sing, write: comment on and show respect to those versed in the Thousand Names for the purpose of getting rid of inauspicious and grievous troubles caused by poison, ghosts, diseases, planetary influence, bad dreams and omens. (The Thousand Names are also used) for explating grievous sins, gaining prosperity both here and hereafter, loosening the knot of the bondage of samsara and attaining Paramapada, the supreme abode of Vishnu. Some use them for the more delight derived through the recitation of the names, from tasting the nectar of His beneficent and auspicious qualities.

So too this hymn acts as the only effective medicine for children, mutes, foolhardy persons, women and atheists. Even the Vedas are not accepted as readily by all persons as this hymn, for fools and such others will not accept the Vedas. Besides, this hymn is open to all, but not the Vedas, as they are divided into many divisions, each to be resorted to by particular families, clans or sects. Hence it can be said that the Thousand Names have the excellence of being accepted by all.

BECAUSE OF ITS CONFORMITY WITH THE GITA ETC."

This hymn is in conformity with and establishes conclusive teachings of the Mahabharata as established in its various portions such as the Bhagavadgita, Narayaniya, Yanasandhi, Agrapuja, Uttamadharmanusaasana, etc.

For these six reasons, this has been determined as the most fit and useful for all who generally act after full deliberation and after full satisfaction. All the various teachers of knowledge and of the sastras, (such as the deva-rishis and brahma-rishis like Devasravas, Devasthana, Narada, Valsya Asman, Sumantu etc., who have striven for and obtained the vision of God, have approved with delight this divine hymn. Also by Sri Krishna the Lotus-eyed, the Lord of All, the great Teacher of the Gita, the Guru of our fore fathers, this hymn has been listened to with rapture, sitting along with others around Bhishme.

In respect of such a great work we now attempt a commentary for eludicating the true knowledge of the abeneficent qualities of the Lord.

Vaisampayana narrated this chapter as another great secret without being asked and of his own accord out of his great friendliness to Janamejaya, who, perhaps, observed silence and refrained from further questioning because he had felt satisfied that he had understood all about the truths from what had been told him already often in various chapters about the Supreme Reality.

Sri Vaisampayana said:

(1) Having heard all the dharmas in their entirety (without enything being left out) and all other purificatory acts, Yudhishthira addressed lagain Santanu's son (Shishma) as follows:

Here 'dharmas' means all those acts which are many and of the form of Raja-dharma (the duties of kings). Mokshandharma (the way to salvation) and Dana-dharma (the duty of charity), which are prescribed by injunctions contained in Stuti, Smriti, act., as leading to worldly and heavenly benefits as well as to eternal salvation;

In antirety - completely to the extent to which it extends.

Purificatory acts:—such as penance, pilgrimage to holy places.

All—everything connected with them—i.e., the benefits to be derived by performing them, their divisions and their characteristics and those who have the qualification to perform them.

Yudhishthira-himself the son of the god of dharma.

The son of Santanu—Bhishma is the son of Santanu by Qanga and is thus of Illustrious birth.

Addressed egain—The question is put to learn what exactly is considered by Bhishma as the most beneficial. In fact, that is known from the nature of the question put later on, "What is the dharma which is considered by you to be the best of all dharmas?." His interest was sincere to follow the course of conduct of great men. For good men seek to know the stand taken by the preceptors and take delight in what is considered by them as the truth and as beneficial conduct. They do not do any action merely because it is laid down in Sastras. (Sanction by an authoritative sastra is not enough; it must be accepted and followed by great and good men).

We have already mentioned:—"An intelligent parson should first examine the pramana (authoritative source of knowledge) and should take up such objects of knowledge as are for his benefit." They are of two kinds—upaya, the means, and upeya, the object or fruit derived. Of such fruits, there are three kinds: (1) what is desirable, (2) more desirable and (3) most desirable. Similarly, in respect of means also, there are three kinds—the good, the better and the best.

In respect of the fruits (of actions), the following are the demerits—birth, growth, change and end, etc., and (if the fruit is sentlent) they are further subject to the characteristics of sentlent beings like pain, ignorance, ettachment, dislike, karma (sins), the fruits of karma, and impressed tendencies on account of previous practice. Their merits are:—freedom from imperfections, being pleasing (to mind and body), parmanence, infiniteness and (when the upsya is chetana) true knowledge, bliss, lordship and wealth, etc.

In respect of the means, it is subject to imperfections, such as heavy expenses, bodily exertion, uncertainty of obtaining the fruit (vyabhicharitva), pettiness of the resulting fruit, etc. its merits are : certainty in achieving fruit, freedom from decay, ease to perform, greatness of the banefit derived etc.

A person must examine the upaya and upaya with their relative merits and demerits as stated above. What is excellent and best must be selected, and the other must be dropped, just as he had already abandoned some of the worst things at the original examination of the sestres. Hence, it is necessary to desire to know the best of upaya and upaya, distinguishing them from what is bad or low in comparison.

Yudhishthira-asked - Bhishma only these two (that best of upayas and the best of upayas), dividing the subject into six equestions in two stanzas, led by the desire to investigate the aubject.

Since the means (upsys) is required only for the purpose of gaining the end (upsys) and the end is therefore more important, the question in the first instance is about the upeye. Such upeye is dealt with by the sastras in two ways: one as the supreme tattva (Truth) and the other as the supreme goal to be reached. The question therefore covers both the aspects. First, Yudhishthira asks about the Supreme Reality.

युधिष्ठिर उवाच

किमेक दैवतं लोके कि वाप्येकं परायणम्। स्तुबन्तः कं कमर्चन्तः प्राप्नुयुर्मानवाः शुभम्।। २।। को धर्मः सर्वधर्माणां भवतः परमो मतः। कि जपन् मुज्यते जन्तुर्जन्मसंसारबन्धनात्।। ३।।

QUESTION ABOUT THE SUPREME REALITY:

Yudhishthira said:

- (2) Who is the One (Supreme) Deity according to the sastres? What is the one Supreme Goal?
- (3) By reciting which mantra is a man released from bonds of birth and samsara?

According to the 'sestras':— This phrase is to be taken along with each one of the questions.

"Considered by you as the best":— This phrase (in the third stanza) is to be taken to link up with the previous stanza also, according to the simhe-evalokananyaya-the maxim of the lion turning back to have a look. That is, this must be taken to qualify each one of the questions, of course, making the necessary changes in the case-inflections (of the nouns).

" Loke: The word in the original, loke, means the thing by which we see, i.e., the body of sastres, consisting of sruti, smriti, etc. (Because only the sastres can teach us about the gods).

The One (Ekam):— That which has none superior to or equal to itself. This is inferable from the later passages, "Of Him who is the greatest in the world" and "He who is the great, supreme splendour", which answer the question. This word is used here not to denote an individual or its number, because this is always inferable from the form of the word dalvetam, which consists of the nominal stem (pratipadike) and the suffix indicating the singular. Then, the word One would become superfluous. Besides, if there is any deity not indicated as one and not possessing an individuality, the word One may perhaps be used. Since there is no such deity who is without individuality or is manifold, the word One must have its distinctive meaning as stated above. Moreover, it cannot be the attribute of any (deity), since in the answer to the question, there is nothing referring to One as number.

Deity (daivatam): -That which possesses qualities like brightness, etc., peculiar to the Rulership of the Universe. The question, therefore, is: "Which is that Deity, which you conider as the Deity spoken of as the best in the sastras which reveal the ultimate truths?"

Doubts arise on account of difference even in the minds of persons who believe that one Supreme God (i.e., one possessing all the qualities required for the Rulership of the Universe) is taught in the various sastras and philosophies. These doubts are as to whether such qualities of Supreme Lordship as unlimited Knowledge and powers arise with reference to a particular modification of the unreal, evolving under the limiting adjunct of maya Vivarta, Parinama, Visesha etc. or whether rulership over all is natural (to any deity). Specifically also the question arises as to whether Hari (Vishnu) or Hare (Siva) or Hiranyagarbha (Brahma) is the Supreme Deity, because in the sastras such qualities (of Rulership, etc.) are ascribed to them indiscriminately both individually and in common. Hence the question is in the form: "Which is the Supreme Deity?"

QUESTION ABOUT THE SUPREME GOAL

The second question is: "Which is the supreme goal of attainment?" This question is propounded because there are conflicting opinions in sastres dealing with the ultimate benefit as to, what is moksha (salvation) and what happens at that stage, such as whether (i) the atman perishes in moksha, or (ii) Nescience covering the atman is dispatiled, or (iii) the qualities of the atman perish, leaving the atman alone to exist (Vaiseshika); or (iv) equality with the Paramatman is attained, or (v) the status of being a shadow of the Paramatman is attained, or (vii) the acquisition is only of the essential nature of bliss; etc., or (viii) a status of continuous service to the Lord is attained.

In the original text, the words used in connection with the goal are "Kim va api ekam parayanam". Here va is a syttable denoting alternatives, and api conveys a conjunctive series: Therefore, it is to be understood from this that the questionar wants to know whether the Deity to be determined as the Supreme One is different from the goal to be reached or whether such Deity is itself the goal to be attained. Or again, it may be said that the questioner wants to know when ther the benefit (Maksha) to be enjoyed is the same for all or different in each particular case.

again; it may be said, that the questioner wants to know whether the benefit (moksha) to be enjoyed is the same for all or different in each particular case.

Goal (Param Ayanam); all-beneficent and free from imperfection, hence, the Highest. Therefore, the question is: "What is considered by you as the highest goal desired by a person out of the very many desires relating to this world or the next?" Thus is the twofold question about upeys, the goal.

लघु-अलघुपाय साध्य सिद्धोपाय प्रश्नः

THE QUESTION ABOUT THE MEANS (ALREADY EXISTENT)

Then about the upaya. The question about the upaya (means) arises because there are disputes as to whether karma yoga, inana yoga and bhakti yoga are alternative means or are to be adopted together or whether one or other among them is to be treated as the principal and the rest as subsidiaries. Again, the means are divided into three kinds: siddha, sadhya and salambana.

The siddha upaya is one that is already existing, such as God, who, being worshipped, grants favours. This Deity may be worshipped in two ways—laghu (easy) or alaghu (difficult). Therefore the question is put in the said two ways by this half stanza: Praising whom or worshipping whom, will men attain the good? The question is about the deity worshipped, i.e., 'praised and worshipped'. Praising: reciting in praise the several auspicious qualities of the Deity. Worshipping:—carrying out, supreme worship by means of bhakti (devotion) in the form of meditation.

Men:—those possessing the only qualification of being a human being (irrespective of caste, creed, etc.)

The good:—This is of two kinds, relating to prospetity in this world or biss in the next. (All this relates to the siddhopaye).

परमसाध्योपायप्रश्रनः

उन्दर्समानां सर्वधर्माणां मध्ये, परमः—निस्तुल्याधिकः, को भवतः, अभिमतः—सुनिश्चित्य भाषद्धनथत् स्वीकृतः?

QUESTION ABOUT MEANS TO BE PRACTISED

Next, the sadhyopays, i.e., the means to be adopted with the help of speech, mind and body for gaining the grace of the Deity, such as repeating prayers, meditation, worship with offerings of flowers, etc. Which of them is the best? This is the question propounded in the phrase, "Ko dharmah", etc.

What Dharma is considered by you as the best of Dharmas?

Best:—with no equal or a superior, considered (Match) (determined by you after full examination as the ultimate refuge and adopted by you) like wealth set apart fee use in exigencies (apat-dhane).

NEED OF A SUPPORT.

SELECTION OF THE SECOND

Next, as to Selambana Upaya, the means depending on aids such as the things or articles used for worship like Mantras to be repeated, flowers, incense (as also auspicious objects of meditation like the idol or the figure of God). Of these, the question relates to the oral basis of japa (the mantra to be recited) by the words, Kim japan. By reciting which Mantra is a man released from bonds of birth and Samsara? Japa is repetitive recitation of a mantra, accompanied by prescribed rites, etc. Manu (II, 87) says; "A Brahmin can attain anything only by japa. There is no doubt about it. Whether he does anything else or not it does not matter. For a person doing jape is friendly to all (but a person performing a sacrifice has to do cruel acts, such, as killing a goat, horse, etc.). Hence, he is the real Brahmin." Again, he says (II. 85): "Japa-Yagna is ten times more effective than drayya Yaina, (sacrifice conducted with the help of articles.). In the Gita (X. 25) also, Sri Krishna says: "Of all Yaines I am the Japa-yaine." among the actions of three kinds done by the mind, speech and body, japa is superior and the question here is only about the japa which is to be done by word of mouth—not about others which are to be performed either by the mind or by the body.

Man (jentu): any one who has the characteristic of being born. (Man is born only for the worship of the Lord).

Bonds of birth and samsara:—By birth is denoted old age, death, the womb and tortures in hell, etc. which result from the life in this world. Samsara denotes ignorance, the latent impressions from the sins or merits of one's actions, inclinations, desires and the contact with prakriti (matter): all these form the reasons or causes for the bondage (in the form of birth). Bonds (bandhana):—These are obstructions to the strainment of salvation.

Released (Muchyete): Here the reference is only to makshe, the ultimate release; but from the trend of answers given, that the japa is the sadhana for all kinds of benefits, it must be taken that the question relates to all kinds of phelas (benefits). From the use of the words, loke (scripture), aseshena (in entirety), sarvasah (in full), and manavah (persons) it is clear that Yudhishthira has heard all things relating to dharmas, such as the seasons for performance, the qualification of the performer, the divisions and subsidiaries of actions and the benefits which are superior. So also he wants all such information in respect of the dharma considered best by Bhishma.

REPLY ABOUT JAPA AMONGST THE VARIOUS MEANS.

These six questions are answered by Shishma not in their order, but sometimes in inverse order and sometimes in direct order. Considering that Upaya (the means) is the more important, as it is the basis for the upaya (the goal), and as the question relating to the upaya is the last, Bhishma starts his reply dealing with the means and the objects relating to land.

Bhishma said :--

(4) A person who is ever and always engaged in praising with the (hymn of) Thousand Names the Lord of this universe, the God of gods and the Highest Person, with no limitation (with reference to time, place, etc.)—

The Lord of the universe:—the Lord of the movables and immovables in the world.

The God of gods: —Just as the gods occupy a higher position than ordinary human beings who serve them, so also the Lord is higher than the gods in His glory, because the gods do Him service.

-- Limitless: -- whose glory is not curtailed or limited in any way.

The Highest Person: - Whose gracious generosity is supreme.

With the hymn of Thousand Names: - making it the oral basis of japa (recitative praise).

Preising denotes that the praising is the cause (for freedom from grief).

Who reaps this fruit? Purusha-a knowing man.

Ever engaged:—Continuous praises of and thoughts of the Lord are very pleasing and beneficial to the devotee; any break in such continuity causes him great pain.

1 श्रूयते हि-" यदा ह्येवैष एतस्मिन् अदृश्ये अनात्म्ये अनिस्कते अनिलयने अभयं प्रतिष्ठां विन्दते । अथ तीप्रयं गतो भवति । यदा ह्यवैष एतस्मिन्नु दरमन्तरं कुस्ते । अथ तस्य भयं भवति " इत्यादि । उपबृह्यते च---

- 2",यन्मुहूर्तं क्षणं वाऽपि वासुदेवो न चिन्त्यते । सा हानिः तन्महच्छिद्रं सा भ्रान्तिः सा च विक्रिया ॥ "

Thus in the Taittiriya Upanishad (1.7): "When for security (from fear of samsara) a devotee stands firm in the Lord, who is unseeable, bodiless, indescribable and needing no support, he obtains that security. But one who breaks away from the Lord (in his meditation) suffers from fears of samsara." This is explained in the Smriti also thus: The fact that Vasudeva is absent in the mind (contemplation) of a person even for a Muhurta or a second is a big loss, gives wide room (for bad things), results in perverse thoughts and wicked actions." Also: "Sitting in a cage made of the flames of fire is preferable to the torment suffered by associating with persons who have turned away from the thoughts of the Lord." Again Even if one moment is lost without thoughts of the Lord one should weep, as though he has been robbed (of wealth) by thieves."

THE SUPREME OBJECT OF WORSHIP

Thus has been described the object of japa, recitative praise. The fifth stanza furnishes the answer to the question as to who is to be praised or worshipped. It will be noticed that in the inverse sequence (the fifth query) the subject of dharms has to be treated here. But it is not so: the subject treated is about the person to be praised and the mode of worship (contained in the third and fourth questions). This is because the subject of worship and praise forms part of the supreme dharms and has to be expounded.

(5) And (engaged) in worshipping always with bhakti the said Person, the Eternal, meditating upon Him, glorifying Him, saluting Him by prostrating before Him and edoring Him —

Him only—The fifth stanza conveys the idea that the person who is the subject of japa is also the subject of worship. In the Mahabharata (Sabha Parvan) it is said at the time of according first honours to Sri Krishna: "We desire to offer our worship to Him who is full (of perfections) the great teacher, the first guru, eminently fit to be worshipped.

Be pleased, to agree, all of you here." There is no person other than He fit to be worshipped." "Wise man do not offer worship to Brahma (the four faced Creator), Rudra and others mentioned as deities in the Smrlt! because the benefit derived from worshipping them is limited." ("Sharata—XII, 342...6); "The benefits derived from them are limited." (Gita, VII. 23).

Person (Purusha): -the lotus-eyed (Narayana).

Eternal (4vyaya) denotes that, however much His qualities are enjoyed, more and more new qualities appropriate to Him spring up without end.

Worshipping (Archayan): performing bhakti yoga which is of the form of service to Him.

Always (Nityam) denotes a person who cannot exist even for a moment without thoughts of Him like the devotees described in the Gita (X, 9) "whose minds are concentrated on Me and whose lives are dependent on Ma."

How to worship? with bhakti i.e., with the affectionate consciousness that "He is my Mister and I am His servant." Again how? By meditating (dhyayan): I.e., contemplating always on the virtuo is qualities of the Lord with a full mind so as to have a stream of thought like an unbroken atream of nectar and to put a rend to the threefold suffering of samsara (nertaining to the Atma, pertaining to the gods and pertaining to the elements.)

How else eg in? Praising (Stuvan): striving to recite by word of mouth the various qualities of the Lord, the body being thrilled with the biss of enjoym no, the eves streaming with teurs of joy and the voice choked on account of such tears.

How again? Prostrating (Vamasvan):—Bowing low, As., offering at the lotus feet of the Lord, himself, who is impure because of agotism, and with his body and organs and geness, inner and outer, bent low on account of bhakti and the feeling of "Not mine", and uttering at the same time the prayer "All that is mine is Thine. Please take them."

How else again ?Secrificing (Yajamana):—One who does worship to God i. e., one who performs with sincere devotion an incomparable, pure and pleasing worship by offering (Him) a series of objects of enjoyment of various kinds suitable to His enjoyment, such as argh/a (a respectful oblation of water) flowers, madhuparka etc., (in mixture of milk, honey, sugar, curds and ginee) respectively called aupacharika (coremonial), samsparsika (tactile) and abhyavaharika (edible) all gathered with pure bhakti, and enthusium and a feeling of restlessness that he (the devotee) is unable to show full gratitude for the great act of grace shown by the Lord by making the devotee His own.

which is said to be the royal road to salvation. Because, the venerable Badarayana, after examining the Vedanta texts like "Knowing Him (Brahman) thus"; "The Brahman knower attains the Highest,"; "With the help of sacrifices, charity, penance and fasting (the devotee desires to see God)"; and also "A person restraining the inner and outer senses sees the atman in the atman"—has laid down in his aphorisms thus:—"Bhakti requires as ingradients all things like sacrifice, etc., as in the case of a horse (which can be used only with a saddle etc"; "(Not only karma) but the devotee must also cultivate restraint of inner and outer senses"; and "He must repeat often and often the practice of contemplation".

Thus, he shows that bhaktl is the best means for attaining moksha. For this bhaktr is worship and meditation induced and fostered indirectly by the varnasrama duties and directly by peace of mind and restraint of senses, which are synonymous with ideas expressed in the words, vedena (knowing) dhyana (meditation), dhruva-smriti (unceasing remembrance, and vivekaja (born of discrimination). It is to be performed with special qualities pertaining to Bhagavan mentioned in the Sat, Ananda, Purusha, Upasana and other Vidyas, For its climax, it has the direct clear vision (of God), which is attained by the strong impressions on the mind made by pleasant and often repeated thoughts, flowing in a constant stream, uninterrupted by any distractions by outer [objects or things. The Vakyakara also says that vedana (knowing) is nothing but contemplation, for it is said: "It is this upasana which, when duly perfected, is bhekti. Why? Because it has the names of (1) samyoga, (association with fruit) (2) rupa, (form) and (3) chodana (injunction).

<sup>(1)</sup> Samyoga:—This denotes that bhakti, like upasana, leads to moksha. It is said: "His form does not appear within the range of physical vision, no one has seen Him with the physical eyes. He is perceived by the mind through bhakti and steadfastness. Those who know Him thus become importal." (Keth. Up. II. 6. 9.) Here "her" means bhakti. This la clear by the use in other aruti texts and in Smritis. In fact the Mehabharata, beginning with the words, "His form does not appear within the range of physical vision", goes on to say: "One who has his soul filled with devotion (bhakti) and steadfastness (dhriti) gets a vision of the Intelligent Self (i.e., the Brahman),... It is to be noted here that the word bhakti is used in the place of hrit.

In the Gita also bhakti is said to be the means to attain mokhsa: "That Supreme Person, O Partha, can be attained by bhakti undistracted" (III. 22); and "It is possible (to see Me) only by undistracted Bhakti) (XI. 54), The Angirasa Smriti says: "By uninterrupted bhakti salvation is obtained". Again, in the Vaishnava Dharma also:—"Unadulterated bhakti towards the Supreme Soul, Govinda, leads men to mukti. Do not feel any doubt about it". From the Ramayana: "Those who are immensely devoted to Thee, the Ancient One and the Highest Being, obtain all their desires in this and the other world. The devotees never fall in attaining their objectives." Again, the Vamana Purana declares: "Those, who are devoted to Vishnu and those whom Vishnu loves, intensely, perceive Him as the only goal and are not subject to further births". (Thus samyoga has been explained).

- (3) Next chodens (injunction or mandate). Both in the Lings and Markendeys Puranas it is said; "The root bha] is explained in the sense of seva (service). Hence, the wise use the word bhakti to mean great service:"

Therefore, the idea underlying the use of the word upasana to mean bhakti is analysed thus:—It is of the form of limitless and devotion towards the worshipped God on account of His faultless qualities. And it contains in itself the sense of belonging to Him. It is this intense devotion that is referred to by the Lord in the Gita:: "I am the closest and most beloved to the fnanin" (Vii. 17); With love towards those who are devoted (to Ma) "(X, 1)); and "They feel glad when they talk about Ma and feel happy when they hear about Me" (X, 9).

In the Vishnu Purana, again, occur the two passages: "However many thousands my births be, may i be devoted to Thee!" (1-20-18); and also "My love to Thee is as great as the love for earthly enjoyment is to fools" (1-2)-1). It is also said: "Being immersed in the bliss of remembering Him". There is the further passage: "Thrilled by the remambrance of His Name was the Daitya Chief (Prahlada). In the Vishnu Tattva, it is said: Service done with true knowledge (that Bhagavan is the Maeter, and the Atma is His servant is bhakri, When such service is being performed, love and affection donaturally spring up." Says the Barhaspatva Smriti: "Who seever is devoted to God and turns away from attachment to other things and has also renounced all desires (such as love of children, wealth and the world), he is fit to eat by beging (i.e., fit to become a sannyasin). The Taittirina sruti contains the invocation.: Let this God make us united with ausploious meditation. Thus are all the sayings about the injunction to do upasana.

(4) The word Anusmarana (repeated recollection) used in several places denotes that thought become bhakti. The prefit and shows not merely continuity, but also humility, that is, the knowledge that the devotee is the servant of the Lord. Hence, thought along with the consciousness of this relationship is bhakti. In the Gita occur the words: Remembering (anusmarana) Me continuosiy" (Vil 13) and "Thinking of (anuchintayan)" (VIII. 8). Elsewhere it is stated: . 'Repeated recollection of Krishna (anusmaranam) is supreme", Recitation of His Holy Names (Kirtana) and prostration are included in bhakti. For example, the Gita says: "The devotees perform worship by recitation, and prostration" (IX. 14) : as also "Keep Me in your mind (white doing all actions)" (IX. 31). This bhakti is called the Great Secret because it constitutes the essence of the purport of all the sastras. The Gital refers to it thus: "To you, this most hidden secret" "I am going to reveal. (IX, 1); "Having known it, there is nothing else to know" (Vil 2); and again, This most hidden of all secrets" (XVIII, 64) More than enough has been said. On this subject. This will do.

(6) 8 (7) (And engaged in) praising Him, the Beginningless and the Endless, the all-pervading, the Ruler of all the worlds, the Supervisor of all the worlds (Universal Witness), the One to be known from the Vadas, the knower of all dharmas; the One who engages Himself in enhancing the fame of the worlds Master of the worlds, the Great Person and the Gause of existence of all beings—such a person (worshipper) tides over all the sorrows in the world.

The words "tam eva cha" at the end of the fifth stanza is to be taken along with the next stanza. (Now the further commentary is about the 6th and 7th stanzas).

SHOWING AN EASY WAY FOR THOSE WHO ARE NOT WELL-EQUIPPED.

Then an observation is made as to the difficult nature of bhakti. This bhakti is grounded firm only on long continuous practice, and that too only after gatting rid of all obstructions. This stage is gained only by those whose ains are cleared off by merits gained by performance of good and virtuous acts and conduct through many births. It is said (in the Gita and Vishnu Dharma respectively): "At the end of many births, one becomes a Jnanin (vise man) and attains Max" (VII, 19), and "in the course of thousands of different births" (69).

Then what about persons who are unable to perform elithe means enjoined by the sastras? In order to dispel such fears, Bhishma points out an easy way in stanzas 6 and 7 by answering the third question, "Praising whom."

To reach that Vishau, who is the object of bhakt/ and who is alone fit to be praised and worshipped in every way, Bhishma enumerates His qualities by ten attributes, which begin with "the beginningless and endless" and which distinguish Him from all other minor gods.

The beginningless and the endless:- The Lord is ever ready to help; He is not limited by time.

Vishnu: - Not limited by space; all pervasive.

Greet Ruler of all the worlds: He is possessed of mighty powers adequate to fulfil all the wishes of His devotees.

Supervisor of the worlds. This quality is natural to Him. He never forgets, but remembers (to fulfil the wishes of His devotees).

To be known from the Vedes (Brahmanyam): All the Vedes in their branches extol Him, and so it is easy to know Him and praise Him.

Knower of all dharmas: Just as He appreciates bhakti (taught by the sastras), He appreciates equally stave (praise).

Enhancing, the fame of the world: "By praising Him the praiser becomes himself praise-worthy," says the Vishnu Dharma. Hence in respect of all persons in all the worlds, who praise Him, He makes them also objects of praise by others.

Master of the worlds:— Hence, He deserves all praise and service. In His essential nature He is endowed with supreme greatness indicative of sovereignty.

Great person (Mahathhutem): Possesed of supreme wealth which is natural to him. So He is worshipped easily. The great ere easily pleased with those who show by some act of theirs that they are desirous of obtaining favours from them. They do not want anything more. In the Udyoga parvan (of the Mahabharata), it is said: "The Lord does not expect anything other than a jar of water (offered by way of respect), or washing the feet or kind enquiries about walfare".

The case of all beings and their existence: He is the cause of existence and life to those who are not atheists. Hence, He surely shows His grace to them.

Praising (Stuven): Praise in some way or other of His qualities will do; it need not be the same as or as perfect as bhakti-yage.

Tides over all sorrows: The devotee reaches the cool lake of unsurpassed bliss which is the Lord, after crossing the forest-fire of the threefold torments of samsara. In this context it is proper that the word stuvan in stanza 6 should be intercreted to denote a very easy way of pleasing Him. The word stuvan, used earlier in the previous stanza, as it is combined with dhyayan, denotes a more difficult means of attaining Him (because dhyana etc., are not easy of performance). If not so understood, there will result the fault of repetition.

Besides, among the questions propounded, there is a separate question "stuvantah kam" (Praising whom). Hence this answer, contained in stanzas 6 and 7, must be taken 10 answer that distinct question separately. Again there is the fact that other sastras also support this view.

The Supreme Dharma;

Now, Bhishma proceeds to answer the 5th question.

(8) This worship of the Lotus-eyed at all times by praises by a person with devotion is hence regarded by me as the greatest of all dharmas.

This—what has been explained earlier as the difficult path and the easy according to the qualification of those resorting to them i.e., worship (archana) and hymnal praises. (stava).

Of all charmes, etc. Dharmas are divided into four classes (i) Dharma performed for material benefits, such as increase of wealth (literally of cattle) and for the begetting of children. (ii) Dharma performed for obtaining calestial pleasures, such as Svarga (the world of the gods)., (iii) Dharma for the attainment of moksha, which starts with the performance, by persons with no attachment and with the sole consciousness of worshipping Him, of sacrifices, the building of temples, etc., and which finds its completion in knowledge of the Truth, (iv) Services done for His benefit only such as thinking of Him with love and affection, praising Him and bowing before Him. The fourth is the best of all as indicated by the super-lative suffix 'tame'.

With Devotion: Worship with love is the best. Anything done with love is done easily and with no effort. It has been sung in the Gita: "(It) is very easy to do" (IX-2). For, to remember a loving husband is always a pleasant thing to do.

This is different from the acts of worship of other gods who are not our true Lord,—a worship which is undertaken reluctantly like the drinking of a bitter medicinal decoction, with a view to obtain some benefit.

The Lotus-eyed: This describes the fascinating beauty of the object of worship—as distinguished from other objects which are worshipped by some and which are ugly and terrible to look at.

By Praises: Praising is easy, because only speech is necessary unlike sacrifices such as the visvajit or panances like the chandrayana which involve expenditure and much personal exertion.

So the venerable Vyasa says: "Those distressed, afflicted or enfeebled, and those under fear or suffering from terrible diseases—all these, by mare uttering of the word 'Nerayana' are relieved of grief and become happy." In the Vishnu Purana, it is said: "If one utters the Name even unconsciously..."

So also in the Vishnu Dharma: "Consciously or unconsciously if a man utters the (holy) Name of Vasudeva, all that (i.e., every sin committed wittingly or unwittingly) becomes dissolved like salt in water". Again, in the same work: "Water is sufficient to put out fire; sunrise dispels darkness; (so also) recitation of the Name of Hari extinguishes a multitude of sins of keliyuga." So also the passages (in the same work): "By recitation of His Name, a person is saved"; "By recitation of His Name, a person is released from great fear"; "One who utters once the two syllables of the name of 'Hari' has (thereby) packed his luggage to go to mokshe": "A person who remembers his Name, attains after his death the highest world of Vishnu, whence there is no return to this world"; "This utterance of the names, 'Achyuta', 'Ananta' and 'Govinda', acts as an effective medicine to cure all diseases. This is true, this is true, I say".

Elsewhere also: "Utter the name of Jagannatha or recite the Vedes. (They are equally efficacious)." In the Vishnu Sukta: "Those, who understand the holy Names as being the most distinguished and utter them, become fixed (in Vaikunta), without return to this world".

Worship: This indicates that this dharma is of the form of serving a particular Supreme Being and that it is not very much beyond direct experience. In the Gita (IX. 2), it is said: "It (bhakti) is capable of being experienced directly". That penance and pilgrimage are pleasing to God is known only from faith in asstras (land is not directly seen); but, in the case of the stotra (or praise) we see from direct experience that it ought to be pleasing.

THE ELIGIBILITY OF ALL CLASSES FOR WORSHIP (ARCHANA)

Person: This kind of worship by praise is open to almost all sentient beings in accordance with their equipment. The use of the singular number is significant, as praising (can be done) by any person by himself without seeking the help of others, and therefore it is unlike the great secrifices which require the assistance of a number of persons. Even a person of bad character or conduct or of lowly birth may, without fear, approach God, solely by reason of the great virtue of a taste for devotion. Very soon, thereafter, he becomes purified of all taste for sin as if by a bath in the Ganges, and becomes an extremely virtuous man. So It is said in the Gita. Speaking of character, the Lord said: "I am equally well-disposed to all beings" (IX. 29). About conduct, the Lord said : "Even if he is a man of very bad conduct....." (IX, 30). And about birth. He said: "Even persons bern from sinful wombs, f they will resort to Me. O Partha..... (IX. 32).

What does the above mean? Does it mean that even bad conduct is recognised as dharma? No; bad conduct is convidenned everywhere. For instance: "A person who does not keep away from bad conduct, or one with senses uncontrolled or one with no peace of mind cannot (attain the Atman by knowledge)" (Kath. Up., I. II. 23). Again, "O Kingl Kesava is not to be obtained by those who have not conquered their senses." By these and other sayings, bad conduct is condemned as not being liked by the Lord: hence, it is adharma (sinful). (Even with reference to the passage quoted above from the Gita), this point is made clear by the words immediately following: "He at once becomes a man of virtuous conduct." (IX. 31)

Again, bhakti is open to all, whether the person is in one or other astama or is in no astama at all (like a widower or snataka (a person who has completed his studies as a brahmacharin and has not yet married and become a arithasha). So the Brahma sutras determine in the following and other aphorisms: "He (the householder) must have control of the senses and the mind" (III. 4, 27); and ("Knowledge of God can be attained) in the case of those outside (the asramas), as this is observed.'' (III. 4. 36). This is but proper. There is no prohibition of the recitation of the holy Names by any parson. whatever his position may be as in the case of a son with reference to his mother. For God is loving like a mother. He is the kinsman of all and a natural friend. See, for example. Gajendra, Jatayus, the crow (the son of Indra). Vibhishana (brother of Ravana), the people of Kosala, the gopikes and the garland maker. (maalaakaara).

Then the question arises: What about the Apasudra Adhi-karana? What is stated there is something different. This is an adhikarana in the Brahma-Sutras, in which it is established that the Sudras are prohibited from studying the Vedas. What is prohibited to those other than the three higher castes is only the caremonies connected with the sacrificial fire which the former have not learnt, and the supreme science (of God) to be known through the Vedanta, as they have not studied the Vedas under an instructor and obtained the necessary qualification by studying the Upanishads under a guru-

There is no conflict as regerds the right or eligibility for persons other than the three higher castes to seek refuge in Bhagavan if they are desirous of release because of an excess of sattva quality in them; but there is no recognised eligibility to adopt the great path of hearing, meditating etc; which has been set out in the Upanishads as Brahma Vidya.

Even among the three castes, there are some who are dejuded by the desires for fruits and whose sattvaguna is mixed up with rajes and tamas and has become impure here and there. They are eligibile for the Upasanas such as they can do. In the case of women of all castes, Sudras and animals, competency for upasanas based upon common virtues and duties not prohibited to the respective castes, cannot be gainsaid. Such

Is the case with Vidura and Dharmavyadha. By reason of the force of the effects of experience gathered through a long series of lives knowledge has appeared again as in the case of a person awakening from sleep. They have merely permitted themselves to associate with inferior social classes to rid themselves of the traces of the evil effects of karma which had already started to function (and had given them the present birth). In respect of all these persons, knowledge is not generated in them afresh.

"Vidura, Dharmavyadha and others in spite of their birth in lower castes, like Sramani, attained perfection (pure bhakti) on account of their knowledge, gained by them in their previous births". (Vishnu Dharma)

In the case of even those who have no knowledge of God there is no prohibition about thinking of God, singing His praise and hearing of Him. These form the beginning of the bkakti proper, which they will develop in course of time.

The great law-givers have laid down:-Dharmas which ere open to all classes from the Chandala upwards are nonviolence, truth, purity, service to others, love and gratitude towards parents and performance of acts pleasing to the Supreme Deity. Even when a person is forbidden to do sankirtans (praising God), he will get related to God indirectby by maraly following, rejoiding with, tolerating or showing no enmity towards one doing sankirtana. In the Mahabharate, It is said: "A person gets purified, if he hears of dharms, sees is performed, speaks of it or approves of it". In fact, any dharms, relating to God, promoted, approved or practised is said particularly to be sparsevedin (that is, something that transforms by mere touch). That is, a relation to God in any manner established purifies him. Again, it is said: "The Lord, cried to for help in a loud voice, worshipped, seen or bowed to (as in a temple), destroys with force all sine. Who then will not worship Hari?"; "Hari, whether worshipped remembered, meditated upon or adorned with flowers atc., grants all protection to a person in this world and the next" and "Those who hear, read about Me or see or praise Me", in the Itihasa and Purana it is said that even a low born person like the dog-flesh eater is allowed to sing in praise of God (bhejana). Thus, in the Vishnu Oharma: "Narada I That devotes of Mine who with faith says 'Salutation to Thee,, even if he is a dog-flesh-eater, attains the Eternal world."

All these statements, which show that the persons abovementioned should be highly esteemed and that they all attained mokaha are all supported by authority. Since each mandate has a particular individual in view, the apparent contradictions in the sastras are reconciled and no sastra goes in vain. Thus far about Names.

NO RESTRICTION ABOUT TIME, PLACE OR PERSON FOR WORSHIP

Always (sada): This indicates that there is no dependence on any place or condition of purity etc. Any time or place will do for worship, or any state, whether ceremoniously pure or not. States (reciting praise) is thus superior to any other kind of worship which is connected with a particular heli year, ritu (season of two months like Vasanta-ritu), month, fortnight, or lunar asterism or auspicious hour. Thus, in the Vishnu Purane: "The Holy Names of the Discus-bearer can be sung at all times and places. There is no question of impurity for this kirtane of the Lord who is always holy". Again: "Where can there be any difficulty or unhappiness, for a person to utter the names of Govinda. Krishna and Hari early morning, at noon, or in the afternoon?" Such are the sayings of the rishis.

There can be no question of the Lord being sullied by contact with the pure or impure worshipper, nor is His power to grant favour affected by the absence of purity and other subsidiary qualifications on the part of the worshipper. On the other hand, the Lord purifies even one who is unfit to have recontact with Him, and after making him fit for such contact with Him, He takes him unto Himself, because He is all-pure. Vishnu Oherma says: "No question of impurity for this kirtane of the Lord." The sastras, which speak of the comparative merits and demerits of worshippers, do so only with the view that there should be no scope for confusion in the performance of the functions of the various persons in high and low stations. As a matter of fact, sankirtene and such things so petty by themselves yield high gains. Thus, it is said: "Even a little of this dharma will rid a person of great fear (i. e. Samsera) (Gita. 2,40). This dharma once commenced, is not lost, though interrupted in the middle. like other dharmas (such as sacrifices etc.). "What is commerced is not lost" (Gita), 2.40); "My devotee never perishes" (¡X. 33). Elsewhere also it is stated; He who Salutes Him, does not become unhappy"; "Saluting Vasudeva, one does not get into grief"; Saluting Janardana one sorrows not." There is no room for sin or loss of gain, if this dharma is done even irregularly or is obstructed by any powerful inimical agency. For it is said in the Gite: "No sin or loss of gain arises". (2.40). All these sayings are significant and meaningful and are not more (empty) praise; they do not exaggerate.

Is it so? Is it not exaggeration to say that the praise of the Lord can lead one to salvation? No. Here what is spoken about is only the beginning of the preparation for attaining the Lord by destroying all the sins that stand in the way of the acquisition of true knowledge about Him and of bhakti by increasing one's sattve-guna. Hence it is said: "By uttering the two syllables, ha and ri, one gets ready for the journey to Heaven." (Vishnu Dharma). Again: 'A person who fixes his mind on Him does not go to Hall. After thinking of Him, even Svarga (the paradise of the gods) is regarded by him as an obstacle, and the world of the Creator Brahma as but a trifle. The Eternal Lord, presiding over the pure hearts of such persons, grants them the boon of immortality. If this is so, what surprise is there in saying that the praise of the Lord destroys sine?".

(Note:-Nama sankirtana saves a person from hell and makes him feel that Svarga and Brahmaloka are trifles in comperison with salvation. This knowledge makes him purified of all imperfections and makes him fit for bhakti, and then it leads him on to final release, step by step.)

त च एषः पूर्णांहृतिन्यायस्य विषयः, तस्य बतिवादविषयत्वात्; संकीतंनादिप्रकरणेषु प्रायेण वाक्यशेषस्व प्रायंनाद्यर्थवाद-विङ्गादर्शनाच्च । किन्य प्रवद्यप्रमाणविरोधाधावे अर्थवादपदानामपि स्वतः प्रामाण्यतः स्वायं परित्यागश्च साहसम्, बन्याय्यत्वात् ।।

(Here the commentator starts the question: Why not apply here the rule about purna-ahuti) the last or completing oblation, or the oblation made with a full ladle? Though such ahuti is stated to secure all sorts of fruits, it has been ascertained by the Mimamsakas that such a statement is mere praise. The reasoning adopted there is that the purna-ahuti is prescribed in the context of several other rites, some to be performed before and others to follow. If all the phalas mentioned are to be ascribed to this ahuti alone, the other rites will be fruitless and may be given up. But that is not the case here. For, in the context of speaking of sankirtana, no other rites are prescribed, nor is any rite combined with it; not even any prayers are mentioned. Mere sankirtana is enough certainly to destory sins. So the commentator sums up.)

This is not subject to the purna ahuti maxim. For the subject there is exaggeration. Moreover, elements of arthavada like incomplete statement and prayers are not seen here. Besides even arthavada is not altogether to be neglected; if otherwise not opposed to any authority, we must not omit to give it its proper meaning and significance to the extent possible. To omit is improper.

ATTAINMENT OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE ULTIMATE REALITY BY MERE RECITATION.

(Then, the learned commentator starts the following question). It was said that the stava (recitation of praise) is capable of preparing a person for knowledge of the ultimate truth. Is not this also a bit of exaggeration? For tattvajnans is not to be obtained easily, but only after very long and difficult austerity and concentrated meditation. But the stava involves just a slight exertion on the part of the tongue. Besides, if the same result is obtained in both cases, the performance of the more difficult sastraic acts will become unnecessary and the sastras relating to them will become of no use. And also this conclusion is opposed to all authority. (This objection is answered thus.) This is the gibberish of a scholar, of a person who has not realised fully the greatness of the Lord and has lost himself in chhandes (Karmekanda rituals). Reciting the praises of the Lord, however light or easy, does indeed carry a heavy burden. As for the prescription of difficult courses of discipline by the sastras becoming useless, it is not eq. They are useful to those who are competent to perform the injunctions therein contained. This stava is open to those fortunate people, who have acquired a unique taste for enjoying the very many qualities of the Lord, though they may or may not possess the other capacity (to perform tapas, etc.). (After all, it is not the means, however great, that secures the result). The resulting gain in the case of the difficult discipline is due to the infinite grace of God. What is there to dater Him from granting His favours, even in the case of praise, slight though it be? It may also be justiflably said that, if in one He is pleased with the great trouble taken, in the other. He is delighted by the great sincerity of the mind (of the devotes).

Hence, it is said in the Gita: "He (a person of wicked conduct, taking to bhakti) has rightly resolved" (IX. 30); and "A leaf, a flower or fruit or even a little water (1 accept)" (IX. 26). In the Vishnu Dharma, it is said: "He is not pleased with offerings of wealth, or property, or clothes or ornaments, but only with the heart (pure and sincere). Who then will not worship Him?" In the Vyasa Smriti it is stated: "He who offers flower or water (to God), at the same time raciting the Purusha sukta, has worshipped the whole world of moving and unmoving things". Again, the Vishnu Dharma says: "Even if a person offers the whole world with all its gems to Krishna, he will not easily reach Janardana, if his mind is elsewhere," The fundamental basis on which virtue and sin are decided is the difference of mental attitude and not particular acts.

For it is said in the Vishnu Tattva: "It is the purity of the mind of the man that matters. When a man embraces his wife, his mind is in a different state from that when he embraces his daughter." It is also laid down in the Mahabharata: "Tapas is good (lit. not sinful), recitation of the Veda is good, Vedic conduct is good, even taking another's wealth by force is good (for the worship of God); but if they are accompanied by a bad motive, they become sinful". Elsewhere it is stated: "Fish live in the holy Ganga, flocks of birds reside in temples; they are not benefitted by the holiness of the Ganga or of the temple, because they have not the necessary state of mind...."

be pleased with a pure heart and not by the offer of insignificant wealth. With even a little worship though marred by imperfection in regard to place, time or accessories. He is pleased as if it were perfect and complete. This is in accordance with the maxim that one who is wise, is pleased with truth. Hence it is said: "What benefit is gained by dhyena in the Kritayuga, by sacrifice in the Treta, and by worship, in the Dvapara, the same benefit is obtained in the Kali by recitation (of names)". (Vishnu Purana, VI, ii, 18) Also: "In the first quarter (of Kaliyuga), men will indulge in abuse of Hari's name. And at the end of the yuga, none will there be to take up Hari's name. If, even at that time, there may be some who disdain this ocean of sin and remember with some effort the name of Vishnu, indeed, they are the blessed, and their souls realise immortality." (Vishnu Dharma). This is but logical. A virtuous king regards with parental affection a person who, in spite of difficulties, conducts himself in a fair manner, if he (the subject) has rendered him great_help. Hence, in the case of the worship of God or of ancestors, or expiatory ceremonies, though they ere, according to time, place and circumstance, simple or elaborate in form, the result in any case is the same (i.e. the removal of sin.) Such is the practice of the eminent. Again, the remembrance of one's poverty or inability is regarded as equivalent to the performance, in emergencies, of the sraddha (the annual ceremony in honour of one's deceased parents) which has to be carried out elaborately, with the expenditure of all that one has. It has also been said: When it is impossible to perform the necessary rites, mere utterance of the appropriate mantres will do.

It is the conclusion arrived at by Bhishma that sankirtana and similar disciplines are the best form of worship of the Lord for the following and other reasons :- (1) The worship is of the dearest. Person and hence performed with lease and no effort. (2) It can be done easily with little or no expense or exertion. (3) It is attractive, because it is inspired by the consciousness that it is being offered to please one's own master, who is not very much out of sight. (4) Though the service is comparatively slight, it secures to the worshipper the great fruit of moksha which dispels the great and unbegrable fear of the mortal world. (5) There is no sin incurred, even if the performance is not strictly regular or in the proper menner. (6) Those who are qualified to do this worship are innumerable, and hence it is suitable to all men. (7) There is nothing which can affect the worship on account of time, place, etc. and hence it is not dependent on any condition. (8) Owing to the glory of God, who is the object of worship, there can be no obstruction to the attainment of the goal.

The above is the opinion of other rishis also, as stated in the following and similar passages: "Vishnu-worship is higher than any other form of worship. The Lord, Vishnu protects His devotees as His own body"; and "There is nothing higher than worshipful devotion to Govinda".

Then Bhishma proceeds to answer the question about the ultimate goal (parayanam) and directs. Dharmaraja to listen to the Thousand Names in the following stanzas (9 to 12). There the first one and a half stanza deals with the second question (which relates to the ultimate goal).

- (9) (He) who is the supreme and great effulgence; who is the supreme and great director (tapas); who is the supreme and great Brahman; and who is the supreme and highest ultimate goal;
- (10) (a) He who is the purest of the pure and who is the auspicious amongst the auspicious,

The combination of the word yah (He who) in the masculine gender with tejas (radiance) and other words, which are in the neuter gender, should not make us think that there is confusion in genders. The attempt here is only to relate a word (Pundarikaksha) with a number of new words different in gender. This is grammatically correct. For example, see "Vedah pramanam" ('Vedas are the authority') (Vishnu Dharma) and "Tattvam Narayanah" (Narayana is the truth) (Narayana Sukta). In the former example, there is a difference in number and in the latter there is a difference in gender.) Vedah is plural and parayanam is singular; Tattvam is in neuter gender and Narayana in masculine.

There are six attributes of the Lord mentioned to show that He is most attractive and that He is the Supreme purusharha (moksha).

(1) Effulgence (te/ss), it is itself lustrous and it makes other things also fustrous.. Thus it is said. "Having attained the Supreme Light" (Chh. Up. VIII. 12.2) and "The sun shings with light borrowed from Him."

- (2) Great (mahat). This shows that there is no limit to His justre.
- (3) Supreme (paramam). There is nothing equal or superior. This is the meaning to be adopted in later places also.
- (4) Director (tapas). He issues decrees and orders. He is the ruler. So it has been said: "He radiates His conquering powers for the sake of the gods" (Narayana Sukta); "Him who is the supreme ruler" (Svet. Up. VI. 7); and "He is the ruler of all" (Brih. Up. 4.4 22).
- (5) Brahman (the extremely great)—He is great because His nature and qualities are beneficent to an unlimited, extent. He makes all others also great by His omnipotence.

CONTACT WITH BHAGAVAN REMOVES THE DEFECTS OF ALL

(6) Purest of the pure (pavitram) The words paramam (supreme) and mahet (great) should be understood here. The words mean that He is the agency for purifying in a particular way. Purification means the removal of impurity. (doshas) Impurity erises in inanimate matter when it evolves under the influence of rajas and temas. In the soul, it is caused by contact with such matter. And it consists of ignorance, offences against the Lord, attachment, hate, etc. The Lord elone is capable of destroying utterly the doshas root and branch, because He is always of a nature opposed to them: He is the purest of the pure. So proclaim the sastres: "He (the knower of Brahman) does not feel anxious (about his salvation) (Taitt, Up. 11, 9); 'just as water does not cling to the lotus leaf" (Chh. Up. IV. iv. 3); "Just as a bit of cotton thrown into fire is burnt (Chh. Up, V. xxvi. 3); "He (the soul) shakes off his sins and merits (when attaining :moksha), (Kaush, Up. 1.4); "After getting rid of merits and sins the wise man..." (Mund, Up., III. 1.3); "The highest purification for the soul is held to arise from knowledge of God,' Yajnavalkya Smriti); and "Remember Narayana while doing all acts including bathing. This is the most efficacious expiation for all eins". To the same effect the Gital says: "He who knows Me as one without beginning and without birth" (X. 3). In the Remayene, it is said: "You ere the purifier of all persons, O scion of the Raghu race." The Vishnu Purana declares: "The continued remembrance of Krishna is the best of all expietory ceremonies" (II. vi. 39); and also: "Vishou, enshrined in the minds of the yogins, destroys all sins, as fire combined with wind flares up and burns dry grass" (VI, vii 74). The entire section on Prayaschitta (explation) is full of such statements.

THE SOURCE OF SANCTITY FOR HOLY THINGS IS THEIR CONTACT WITH THE LORD

In other cases, like that of the sacred waters which are purifying agencies, they acquire that characteristic only by their contact with the Lord. This is shown by the adjectives. 'supreme' and 'great'. It is not reasonable to hold that either sentient beings who are themselves naturally impure or the gods who are also affected by impurity can purify others who are similarly situated. Hence it is that Parasara, Saunaka and others in the context of subhasraya (God as the substratum of auspiciousness) prohibit contemplation and worship of other gods, Subhasraya means an object of worship or meditation which is at once auspicious (i.e., subha or sin-destroying) and easy asraya for contemplation. Thus: "All the gods are impure because they are born in karma and are subject to karma" (Vishnu Purana), VI. 7-77); "All beings in this worldfrom Brahma: (the four-faced creator) down to a clump of grass, are all born in karma and are in the grip of samsare' ... Vishnu dharms). It is well stated (by authorities) that the gods acquire the capacity to purify only by contemplating on Him, worshiping Him, doing services to Him like sipping the water that has washed His feet, etc., Similarly, the holy water and sacred temple acquire this capacity to purify only by their nearness to Him. Hence, says the Vishnu Purana (IV. 4, 30)

about the Ganga: "This is the greatness of the water that has flowed down from the toe of the left foot of Vishnu". And as for mere waters, it is said; "The waters are indeed the abode of Vishnu, and He is the Lord of the waters."

In the same way, Time is (said to be auspicious and purificatory) because of its connection with Him, as being the hour of His Incarnation, or having Him as its deity, or as the hour of His going to sleep or waking up, as for example dvadesi, (the twelfth day of the lunar fortnight), jayanthi (birthday), sravanam, (a day when the moon is in conjunction with a lunar asterism in Capricorn sacred to Vishnu). Again atma-gunas (spiritual virtues such as self-control, etc.) are said to be purificatory because they are helpful in knowing and realising Him.

Sacrifices, charity, tapas and sraddha are purificatory because they are all but forms of His worship. Brahmins and others acquire their purity because of their eligibility to study the Vedas which sing of Him. Hence it is said in the Mahabharats: "A Brahmin becomes a Brahmin and a seer of Truth only, when he knows Vasudeva as the Pervader of the universe and as having traversed it by His feet. (Kranta)"

The Vedas and the Smritis are also purifying as they are but His commands and recongnise Him as supreme. Thus it is said: "The Vedas are about Narayana" (Bhagavata, 2.5.15.) and "The Srutis and Smritis are My commands".

Temples are sacred and capable of cleansing a person because the Lord resides or presides there; this is so stated in the Mahabharata, Aranyaka, Tirthayatra chapter. Beginning with the statement, "Dvaraka is hely", it goes on to observe: "There Hari, whose nature is beyond thought and who has killed the demon, Madhu, dwells. It is hely, it is supremely great, it has hely waters, it is the penance-grove" (88, 24). Thus the purifying power of a place is said to be due to His connection with it. It is then concluded clearly: "Govinda indeed is the supremely pure among the pure. He is: the holiest of the holy". (68, 26)

THE MOST DESIRABLE NATURE OF BHAGAVAN

Auspicious of the Auspicious (Mangalanem cha mangalam)
He is the most intensely desirable, being more desirable than fragrant garlands, sandal paste, heavenly damsels and even nectar, and also more desirable than the individual soul which has destroyed all the impurities of samsare and is full of bliss and knowledge in its essence, pure and unlimited. For these reasons, He is the Supreme Object to be attained. This will be elaborated later.

(yeh: He who): It would have been appropriate to conclude that such a Person is the supreme goal. Instead of this, there is the statement. "He who is the goal", as if this is established. The intention is to show that this indeed is well-known as well-established in the sastras.

- (10) (b) The God of gods and the indestructible Father of beings.
- (11) From whom all beings originate in the beginning of the first yuga and in whom they merge again at the end of the yuga.

He alone is the principal, who is the Great God of all the gods, i.e., of Siva, Brahma and others. Why? Because He is the Father of all the beings, that is, those who are existent. The word, 'Indestructible' is to show that He is not like ordinary fathers.

When He is their ancient and imperishable Father they cannot be said to be without a protector at any time.

How He is the father, is explained in the next stanza.

From whom (yatah) denotes the nimitta karana, the instrumental cause. 'All' (sarvani) :—Beginning with Brahma (the four-faced) down to the stump of a tree.

Bagining of the first yuga (Adiyugagame) is significant to show that in the beginning it was different from what prevailed after the creation of Brahma, when through him further creation proceeded. (That is, the Lord Himself directly was responsible for the primary creation at the beginning.)

LORD, THE MATERIAL CAUSE

Now about the Lord being the material cause: "Into whom alone all beings are dissolved" shows that the absorption is in the material cause of the effect. This is like the spider which absorbs its threads in its own saliva.

ं ते. भू. 1 2 व. सू. 1.1.2 3 यजु. अष्टक 2.8.7

The word cha (and) is used to denote (i) that He is also the auxiliary cause and (ii) that He is the cause for maintaining the universe, activating it, etc. The Lord who is the Supreme Principle is defined as possessing this quality in the Vedas. For example: "From whom all these beings are born" (Tatti, Up. III.) It is also stated in an aphorism in the Brahma Sastras:" From whom proceed the birth, etc., of this (universe)" (1. i. 2.)

That Brahman itself is all the three kinds of causes viz. Nimitta, Upaadaana and Sahakaari, is illustrated from a Vedic text, "The Brahman is the forest. He is the tree" and established in the Brahman Sustras (I. 4-23.): "The Brahman is) also the material cause because there is no contradiction of the proposition and there are illustrative examples." (To the question, "Which is the tree from which the whole universe is shaped?", the answer given is: "The tree, the forest and the Director are the same Brahman.")

Some distribute the causes between two agencies. The Lord is the material cause, and Mahesvara is the instrumental cause. Their stand is not based on Vedic texts. A question may be raised to the effect that if the Brahman is the material cause, that will be attributing to it imperfections like the quality of changing. There is no ground for such a question, for evolutionary and other changes are only in respect of prakriti (matter) and other things (souls) which/constitute His own body. The example of the spider was cited by the respected Vedes only to meet this point.

Then, when the question by Yudhishthira was, "Who is the Supreme Deity?", the answer must naturally be "Vishnu". Instead of laying down a conclusion, Bhishma starts by saying yeh (he who), (as if this is something already known to the questioner). This is to show that it is well-known from the sastres that Vishnu is the Supreme Deity of all deities.

(When the Upanishads speak of the Lord, His characteristics, His reality, His worship with contemplation, attainning Him etc.) The words 'sat' 'Asat' 'Brahma, 'Akshara' etc. are used to describe the Supreme Being, sometimes without any attribute and sometimes with words like 'param' (Supreme) etc.

Here doubts arise as to whether the reference is to Brahma (the four-faced) or to Hari or to Siva, etc. To set at rest these doubts, there occur passages like "Narayana is the Supreme Brahman", "Narayana is the Supreme Reality." (Narayana Sukta): "That supreme abode of Vishnu" (Katha. Up., III. 9): "Nothing else is higher than Him (Vishnu)" Svat, Up., III. 9): and "Nothing is higher than Purusha (the Supreme Person)" (Kath. Up. III. II). In the Gita also there are similar passages: "Nothing else is higher than I" (VII. 7): and "The Highest Person is another" (XV. 17). All these proclaim this fact in clear words with no room for any other inference or doubt.

Any intelligent person can easily come to the conclusion that Vishnu is the Highest Deity of unassailable rulership and that the others are not so high for the following reasons also -(1) the common trend of the scriptural statements about creation; (2) the purport or meaning of the Purusha Sukta, Uttara Narayana Sukta and other important passages; (3) the loud proclamations of many Upanishads like the Subala, Maitrayaniya, Mahopanishad, Chhandogya, Taittiriya, Katha and Aitareys; (4) the thoughts expressed by the sattvika puranas and itihasas; (5) the opinions of great sages like Parasara, Vyasa and Valmiki who know and have had direct perception of the Highest Deity; (6) the agamas which are in conformity with the Vedas and (7) the natural excellence of His form, weapons, vehicle and action. Again, our acharyas have come to the above conclusion; as stated by them in the 'Dahara' 'Vaisvanara' and other sections of the first chapter (Samanavya Adhyaya) of Brahma sutras. Hence there is no need to dilate further.

Yamunacharya also says the same thing in a brief way in the 15th stanza of the Stotra-ratna, which begins with "Thee by reason of Thy grace, beauty and deed." My (the commentator's) revered father also says, addressing Vishnu in the Velkunte Stava (7): "We feel convinced that thou art the Highest God from hundreds of passages in the Vedas which deal with the Highest Reelity, from logical inferences, from Smritis of like import, from sattvika puranas and from the opinions expressed by those who have attained the knowledge of God". Again: "Learned men have also determined that Thou art the Supreme Lord from the beauty of Thy form. Thus, the tattva (the Ultimate Reality) and the hits the beneficial way of attainment) have been determined as superior to all else. Of these, a method common and beneficial to all is to be clearly set forth. So Bhishma invites Yudhishthira to listen:

 O King! Hear from me the Thousand Names which remove sins and drive away fear,—of that Vishnu, Lord of the universe and Ruler of the world.

Of that (Tasya): Of Him whose supreme greatness has been set forth above.

Lord of the universe (Lokapradhanesya): The Lord on whom all without exception depend.

Rules of the world: He rules all.

Thousand Names: Though there are so many other methods of pleasing Him, the Thousand Names are to be preferred which remove sins, etc. The Thousand Names deserve the praise that they destroy sins and drive away all sorts of fears by the very roots. From me (Me),: From me or for my sake. (The Sanskrit word me is common to several cases, dative, ablative and genitive. Here it can be taken as either dative or ablative singular.) O King) Hear: Why this call to listen to one who is elready listening of his own accord, and why the vocative 'O King'? These show that the speaker (Bhishme) felt that the gain of a listener for this matter was worthy of commendation.

(Then he proceeds to set out what he will be speaking about.)

(13) For the good (of the world), I shall tell you the (holy) Names of the Supreme Soul (Paramatman) which are indicative of His attributes and glory, well known and sung by the rishis.

Indicative of attributes (Gaunani)'; Generally, words are capable of four functions: to indicate (1) an individual, (2) a class, (3) a quality and (4) an action. (For example, Chaitra, a Brahmin, pure and doing charity.) The accasion for denoting an individual and a class arises respectively through the limitation of individuality and the presence of universality. And these are not relevant here. So, the word "Gaunani" is used here, to show that the names (of God) are derived from qualities and actions which have become the cause therefor. Their significance is derivative and etymological. Here the word "guna" must be taken to include activities also. In the Mahabharata, the Lord speaks of the etymplogical interpretations of His Names as referring to qualities; and actions. Bays: "Some of My Names are said to indicate qualities": "He who knows the meaning of Names indicating action. Of son: and "Hear attentively from Me, O sinless one, the derivation of My Names which are applied to Me on account of My action". These Names are not without significance, because in each word each of its parts, when analysed, bears a significant sense. The Names are not used, according to some capricious convention.

Well known: These names are being used largely both in the Vedas and in ordinary literature, hence they are well known as exclusively applicable to Him. They are rudhani, traditionally well known. Even though some of the names may apply to others in an etymological sanse, yet they are peculiarly His own. For a name to be a name must apply only to one.

By rishis: like Sanaka, Sanatkumara and Narada who have understood the essence of all the Vedas. Sung: sung on all sides (pari). These Names were applied as descriptive of Him, by them who explained the forms and reasons with afficience which is like that of a cow with a full udder towards its calf. They are culled from the sayings of various rishis, like honey gethered from various flowers by a bee, and strung together by Vyesa in the form of a stotra. They have come down up to us by tradition.

For the good of All: Bhuti means existence, life. The meaning here is that this teaching is for the redemption of the soul which has been lost in beginningless samears.

अयते हि अयमेव आत्मनः सदसद्भावी-

For the Taittiriya Upanishad this describes the existence (sat) and non-existence (asat) of the individual soul: "He who knows the Brahman as non-existent, himself becomes non-existent. Whoever knows the Brahman as existent is indeed truly existent." (II. Vi. I) which the best existent in the state of the stat

Of the great soul: Great is His glory and His knowledge deep and immeasurable. Hence it is impossible to give out all the Names of His. So it is said: "I have listened to the auspicious interpretation of the names of this God. From it I know only this, that Kesava indeed cannot be known fully." Those who wish to experience in this manner the Thousand Names of Vishnu, will be doing good to themselves. This is the meaning suggested by word Mahatmanah.

The persons above-mentioned who are competent to utter these (Names of His) should not, as these Names are due to the gunas, mix with persons who are thieves of the gunas (i.e., those who deny these gunas to Vishnu or those who ascribe them to other deities).

QUALITIES OR NOT (SAGUNA OR NIRGUNA)

Suppose you argue: "Let this teaching about the Brahman with attributes be for persons who are entitled to a lesser objective (than final salvation); the teaching about the Brahman without attributes is indeed only for those who aspire for salvation." Fig unto you, your ears are indeed deaf! For you don't hear to what fruit these Names are the means-which is loudly proclaimed in this very stotra at the end (where the fruits of reciting it are mentioned); "He is released from the bonds of semsara", and "He reaches the Eternal Brahman". If once you postulate two Brahmans, one with attributes and one without attributes, the oneness of the Brahman (which you advocate) will be destroyed. With a view to know the best means of salvation according to the very essence of the sastras the question is put, 'What is it you consider as the best dharms", and the answer is in the same words, "This is the best in my considered opinion" if you say that even then the lesser is mentioned, where else will there be an opportunity to reach the highest? (That is to say the question and answer denote that what is taught is the highest and nothing less than the highest truth.

सगुणा निर्मुणार्थेति मा च घा चाल! वोचथाः। न चिद्रहार्थयोर्यस्मात् उपायोग्यता हयोः।।

Oh, Prattier! Do not argue that of the two, that is, of the worship of God with attributes and of God without [attributes, the former is a step towards the latter. For, the two are contradictory to each other and one cannot be a step to lead to the other.

ं बाषि व निर्गुणस्य कि मूलं गुणप्रतीतेः सा अविद्या इति चेत्, जिन्मुति-मोहादि-भवदोष-विष-मूछितस्य मुमूर्षोः परमभेषणं ब्रह्मीव अविद्या-भ्रमाद्यशेष-दोषास्पदम् अनाष्ट्रात-गुण-कणिकं च इति मनोहर्रावदं वेदरहस्यम् ॥

Again, what is the cause for one without attributes to appear as if it is with attributes? If it is said to be due to avidya (nescience), then what a fascinating mystery about the Vedas (do we have)? The Brahman, is said to be the best medicine to one who is about to die, having swooned from the poison of birth, death, delusion and other imperfections of life in samears, How can that very Brahman be at the same time the abode of faults like nescience and delusion and be without even a trace of the smallest particle of (good) qualities?

ब्रह्मदोषो मृषा चेत् ते नैर्गुण्यं च मृषा मतम् । नैर्दोध्यसगुणत्वे ते सत्ये स्यातां न चेच्छसि ॥

If it is argued that the flaw in the Brahman is unreal, your argument about the attributelessness (of the Brahman also is) unreal. Is this quality real or unreal? If the flaw is unreal, then it means that the Brahman is (nairgunyam) without a fault. Similarly, if being devoid of attributes is unreal, then being endowed with attributes is real. So, even though you do not like it, it will become true that the Brahman is without flaw and full of attributes.

को वा ब्रह्माविधाम् इमाम् उपहन्यात्? अहँत-विद्यानिष्ड इति चेत्, इदं ततोऽपि मनोहरम् यत् 'परं ब्रह्म बंग्नमीतिः संसारी तत् उत्तारयति' इति । अपि च सगुणवानयं कस्य हेतोः निरयंकम्? निर्मुणवानय-बाध्यत्वात् इति चेत्। विपरीतं कस्मात् न स्यात्? सममेव हि उभयोः प्रामाण्यं, विरोधश्च ।

There is another point to be answered. What is it that removes the nescience in the Brahman? If the answer is, "He who realises monism or oneness", then this is a more delightful statement. The Supreme Brahman is suffering from illusion and the bound individual soul in samsara redeems it. (This is stating the proposition upside down.)

Moreover, on what ground can the passages describing the Brahman as having qualities be said to be meaningless? If the answer is that these are contradicted by passages describing the Brahman as without qualities why not the pather way about? Both kinds of passages are equally authoritative and exercise equal force in contradicting (each other). Why reject the one and accept the other?

'प्रसिष्टेय-गुण-प्रसिष्टिजका सा' इति चेत्, मा च भूत् प्रतिषेट्यम् । न हि अप्रसन्तं प्रसाण्य तदेव प्रतिषेधतु शास्त्रम् इति काचित् ललाटपट्टे लिपिः।

There is another point, if the qualities of the Brahman are to be negated is the purpose of these poor Vedic texts describing the Brahman as having qualities? If the reply is that there is necessity to mention the existence of qualities for the purpose of negating them, why mention them at all and then negate them? Is it written on its pate that the sastras should speak about an irrelevant thing and then say it is irrelevant? As the Mahabharata puts it: "Why touch the mud and clean it? Better keep away from it and do not touch it at all."

If it is argued that the rule in Mimamsa, (VI, 5.19) that the later passages are more potent and negate the certier ones like Prakriti, is to be applied here, not The rule is not of universal application. Besides, the earlier knowledge that a thing exists here cannot be stultified by the later statement that it is not.

Ė

1. 17 E 1. 18

The continue of the second sec

(Note).—The rule is exemplified in the following case. In the Pratessevana secrifice, there are five priests who officiate, the "Adhvaryu", "Prestotri", "Pretihartri", "Udgatri" and 'Brahma'. When starting a prayer they move one behind another, round the sacrificial fire each taking hold of the girdle of the priest immediately befor him. The sacrificer in turn has to take hold similarly of the 'Brahma' priest. It is laid down that if the 'Udgatri' accidentally lets go his hold, the sacrifice should be finished without distributing dekshing to the priests. It has to be started afresh and the dakshina prescribed in that case is that already prescribed. But if the 'Partihartri' lets go his hold, the dakshina prescribed is the whole wealth of the sacrificer. What is to happen, if both the 'Prastotri' and 'Udgatri' should lose hold, one soon after another? The rule is that the penalty prescribed in the later case is to prevail. Here, the penalties prescribed are opposed to each other and cannot be reconciled. Such is the rule.)

When there is a breaking (of the chain of priests) round the sacrificial fire, and this rule becomes relevant, the weakness of the earlier injunction is due to the fact that the later injunction cannot arise without wiping away the earlier one. Here (such a later statement) is said to arise. How to apply the rule here? The mention of the gunas and the denial of the gunas are not opposed to each other. Both may exist without contradicting each other. It may be argued that the passages negating qualities (to God) conceal (or obliterate) that part(of the scriptures) which affirms qualities, on account of the former passages being later. In that case, even the portion (of the Vedas) dealing with the nature of the Brahman may be stultified by the statement. "The (ultimate) Reality is non-existent": For this statement is later. If it is replied that this thing established by the Vedas, the reply is not acceptable. For, according to you, the Veda itself arises from the delusion of the Brahman. And what distinction can be made between these two delusions?

Moreover, if looked into carefully, the scriptural passages affirming qualities (in God) should be regarded as later. Rassages like "He is sinless, free from old age.....(Chh. Up. VII. 1.4) prove that the mandatory declarations (of the Vedas) regarding the presence of auspicious qualities in (God) are later, being preceded by the negation of evil qualities (in Him) by passages which deny attributes (to Him) and mean only that He is free from all impurities of the soul and the body, t is also argued that the defence of the (co-existence) of passages affirming and denying qualities (to God) lies in their being distinguished as false and true (respectively). Even this is misleading talk. For there is stultification of the authority (of the Vedas as a source of knowledge), when it deals with false matters, as when there is false perception of silver (in lead or mother-of the pearl) perception loses its validity (as a source of knowledge). If it is your opinion that passages in the Vedas affirming qualities to Ged are to be ignored as false, why not ignore as false the passages denying qualities? Enough of this idle talk.

What then is the true position? The Vadic texts ascribing knowledge, power, etc., to the Brahman are with reference to the existence of beneficent and good qualities and the texts that deny qualities mean only that it is devoid of bad qualities such as attachment, hatred etc.

Passages like "His wishes are true, His resolves are fulfilled" (Chh. Up. VIII. i. 5) illustrate auspicious qualities. While the denial in general terms of attributes can get its full meaning by restricting it to another espect (namely, evil qualities), there is no necessity to say that the Brahman is not pessessed of good qualities. This rule (that the general yields to the special) is to be found fully authoritative in 'Padahavaniya', 'Brahmana Parivrajaka', 'Brahmana Koundinya' 'Gobalivarda' and similar maxims.

[Note. Padahavaniya:—In the horse-sacrifice some homes are prescribed to be performed on the hoof-marks of the horse. 'Generally the home is to be made only in a fire. The special mention of hoof-marks overrides the general rule about making oblations only in fire. Brahmana Parivrajaka: The term 'Brahmana' is general, while Parivrajaka (an ascetic) is special. Brahmana Koundinya: Again, 'Brahmana is general, while 'Koundinya' is special as referring to one belonging to the Koundinya gotra. Go-baliyarda: 'Go' (cettle) is general, baliverda (bull) is special).

The words of negation should be taken to refer only to bad qualities not found in the Brahman; these words, hand in hand with word, that lay down positive attributes. The latter speak equally explicitly of the existence of good qualities in the Brohman. In the same sentence, we find used with respect to the Brahman words like "He is sintess" et the beginning, and "His wishes are true, His resolves are fulfilled" (Chh. Up. Vill. I. 5) at the end. another text begins with the statement, "That which is invisible," and ends: "That which the wise see as the source of all beings, is eternal, all-pervading, existing everywhere, very subtle and imperishable" (Mund. Up. 1, 1,6.). Why then trouble about nyayas (analogies, maxims or signments)? It is as plain as pikestaff, as when one man says "There is a pillar" and another says "There is no pot". (The one does not contradict the other). The author of the Vedanta Sutras explains in detail (in regard to God) the denial of visibility and such other qualities and the existence of auspicious qualities opposite thereto in the aphorism: "That which is described as unseeable etc. (is the Paramatman), as qualities (peculiar to Him) are mentioned", (j. 2, 22.)

In the third quarter of this chapter (of the Vedenta-Sutras), known as the 'collection of all qualities', Vyata proves about qualities to be known from vidyas like those of Sandilya, Upakosala, Dahara, Paryanks, etc., that all these qualities are not merely to be known in essence by the mind (but have to be meditated upon). So he says: "The noble qualities of Brahman should not be ignored, because the Sruties show a great ardour in associating them with Brahman", (III, iii, 39)

The venerable Parasara says clearly: "Settva and other qualities of matter do not exist in the Lord" (Vishnu Purana, 1.9, 44), and also "Helis possessed of all auspicious qualities" (I bid, VI, 5, 54)

(The following passages bear this out) -"All good qualities inhere in Him". (Chh. Up. IV, xv. 2); "He is the cone. troller of all, the ruler of all". (Brih. Up. Vi. iv. 22; "He who understands all and knows all" (Mund. Up. i. i. 10), "The Vedas say His mighty power is natural to Him, is of various" kinds, and consists of knowledge, strength and activities" (Syst. Up. VI. 2); "Narayana is the father, mother, brother, the home, the refuge, the good-hearted friend and the ultimate (Subala Up. VI): "Creator of all actions, He is all sweet parlumes, He is all sweet tastes'. (Chh. Up. III., xiv. 2)-In the 'Anandavelli' (of the Taittiriva Upanishad), it is demonstrated that mind and speech return (without comprehending the extent) from His bliss, because of the unlimited extent of His knowledge, might, and youth. The Vishnu Purana, in the context of explaining the connotation of the word "Bhagayan" mentions all His qualities in the passage beginning with "Pure and possessed of great g jory" (VI, 5, 72.)

Bhishma says in the Sabha Parvan (of the Mahabharata): "I have served many virtuous men, ripe in wisdom and have heard from them the much-prized qualities of Sauri (Lord Krishna.) I consider that Hari is the best person to be worshipped because of these qualities".

Again, in Karna Parvan, he says: "The ettributes and gunas of that great Victorious Person, the son of Vasudeva, adorned by the discus and conch and mace in His hands, cannot be sufficiently extolled by all the worlds gathering together and for tens of thousands of years".

Also in the Varaha Purane: "If there is a person blessed with a life as long as that of Brahma (the four-faced Creator) and endowed with a crore of tongues and a mind pure and clean, such a person may perhaps be able to enumerate a tenthousandth part of Your qualities, or may not. Best of the gods! Be pleased with me". In the Matsya Purana: "Insumerable are the qualities of the Supreme Soul as are the gems hidden in the ocean". The Vishnu Dharma also says: "The qualities of the Supreme Soul who is devoid of qualities like sattya or rejac of Prakriti, cannot be told by all the groups of rishis". The Mahabharata and the Ramayana also contain many passages of a similar nature.

Those who (like Bhaskara) say that the Brahman Itself' becomes involved in samsara, conditioned by some limitation, as well as those who (like Yadavaprakasa) say that the Brahman Itself becomes involved in samsara by mutation of its essential nature, will have to admit that Brahman is liable to all kinds of imperfections like being conditioned and being subject to changes. Hence, the names of the Lord like 'pure', 'auspicious.'

'the highest' will get angry. i. e. will be inappropriate. Besides, others like Sri Sankara say from passages like "From Him speech and mind turn away unable to reach Him." (Taitt. Up. 11. 9), that the Vedas and other authorities cannot adequately speak of the Brahman. This is not correct either. For, in that case the Brahman will become tuchcha, an imaginary and non-existent thing, (like a mare's nest.)

Moreover, in the very passage quoted, it is said, "The bliss of the Brahman" and "From whom words" return. There will be contradiction of the quality (of bliss) attributed (to the Brahman here). Again, if bliss is not a quality of the Brahman, one will naturally expect the Upanishad to say that the Brahman, has no ananda (bliss); but it says, that mind and speech turn away from His bliss. If the Brahman cannot be established by the sastras, all the sastras will be of no use. Even the study of the knowledge of the Brahman (Brahmamimamsa) which is begun with the Sutra. "Then therefore the desire to know the Brahman" (Vedanta Swtras, I. I) need not have been started at all. Such a theory will conflict with a number of other passagas like "By all words. He is the person ultimately indicated"; and "A person not versed in the Vedas cannot think of Him, the Great". Again the Vedanta Sutra (I, i. 3) says: "Because the sastras alone are the source of knowledge (about God)". The Anandavalli section of the Tattiriya Upanishad starts with the words, "We will investigate into the measurement of bliss," and goes on multiplying the bliss a hundred fold at each stage and arrives towards the end at the bliss of Brahma (the four-faced creator). From the very order in which the manifold nature of the bliss is mentioned, it is clear that what is almed at is to describe a bliss, vast and immeasurable, and not to postulate that there is no quality like bliss at all. Hence, the author of the Vedante Sastras says: "(The relevant passage) negates the this-muchness' of the description of the quality mentioned." (ill. ii, 21). The principle enunciated there has to be applied here.

" श्रुतिस्तवः आनन्दमुखान् हरेगुँणान्

"न्यद्र नाय! विचन्ते नाम-जात्यादि-कल्पनाः" इत्यपि ध्याख्यातम् ।

Thus, my (Commentator's) revered father has said: "Starting as if to measure the qualities, bliss, etc., the Vada says that the speech and mind retreated, because there is no question of any limit to them (the qualities)". By this the passage "O Lord I Name, class, etc., and such imaginary things are not to be found in Thee", also gets explained.

Moreover, when there is a prohibition of the imaginary attribution of name, class to the Lord, it is thereby established that He has qualities which are not imaginary, but fundamentally real. Thus, you (the opponent) yourself supply the fetters to bind your feet. Even the invocation "Oh Lord", shows that He has a name. Not only this, it shows that He can be within the reach of speech, even though He is beyond it

(in another sense,) The passage only means that He cannot be denoted by words expressive of limited things. But He is possessed of names and forms suitable to Him and different from those found in the universe. This is made clear elsewhere: "His names, forms and activities which constitute all the source of knowledge concerning Him, are not within the range of measurement. Such a Person, i.e., Vishnu is now in your womb." (Vishnu Purana, V. 2.19).

Some say: In the use of these Names, there is no scope for analysing each word into its parts and finding the actual meaning as derived from the meanings of each part. The real object is not to teach us the qualities. (That is to say, these names are used only as a help for the devotee to realise the

This is an uncritical and highly exaggerated statement even on the surface. Because, these are words, significant conveying definite ideas, which cannot be ignored, and there is no authority to ignore them. Besides, Bhishma himself describes these (holy) Names as gaunani (descriptive of His qualities.) The Vishnu Sukta speaks of "Those who have understood the meaning of the Names after analysing them into their components". Thus, the object of using the Names is only to remind us of the very many qualities of the Lord.

it may well be that these Names remind us only of qualities known to us from other sastras as in the case of mentres. But that does not mean that the qualities denoted by the words are altogether non-existent. (For example, mantras are uttered in praise of certain deities before undertaking any ritual, like a sacrifice. The deity concerned is already known by the mandatory injunctions in the Vedas. and the mantras help only to remind the devotee of the detiv-On that reason, it cannot be argued that the mantra is not an authoritative source of knowledge.) Therefore, it is that in the introductory portion of this stotra as well as in its conclusion. Bhishma extols the gunas (including the actions) of the Lord: and the enumeration of the Names in the body of the states is for making us remember those qualities. The reason is that the uttering of even one of the holy Names is potent to grant us all benefits. Such a name becomes equivalent to mantras like the twelve-syllabled (Om Namo Bhagavate Vasudevaya), or eight-syllabled (Om Namo Narayanaya) or the six-syllabled (Om Namo Vishnave). A mantra may be made the principal and all the others subsidiary: it is so stated in the Bhadavata scriptures.

(And single Names by such relationship with potent manttes give us all benefits.) As quoted from the Vishnu Sukta, "Namachit Vivaktana" the word used, is in singular; it bears out the above statement about the potency of a single Name fully.

इत्यादी द्रष्टव्यम् ॥

In the chapters in the Mahabharata relating to the explanations of the meanings of the Names, it may be seen that, though it is true that Names pronounced merely and without knowledge of their meaning help, still revelation of the qualities through etymological interpretation quickly affords delight to mind and purity to heart.

Thus: "Vyasa sitting with his disciples has praised Madhusudana by singing. His holy Names. Please be good enough, venerable Sir, to teach me the full significance of these names. I am sincerely eager to hear. Hearing (the meaning of the Names) of Hari, the Lord even of the Creator, I shall become pure without any blemish like the autumnal moon". Santi-parvan, 342); and Dhritarashtra says: "O Sanjaya! I ask of you, tell me about the Lotus-eyed. I shall attain Him, dear sir by knowing the meaning of His holy Names and His activities." (Udyogaparvan, 59.)

The way to make use of the Names along with their signs and symbols can be learnt from the words and the passages contained in the explanatory chapters of the 'Udyoga', 'Mokshadharma' and "Vaishnava dharms" and also from the books that lay down the rules for performing japa in respect of each mantra.

THUS ENDS

The Introduction to be commentary called Sri Bhagavad-Guna-Darpana explaining the Thousand Names of Vishnu, written by Sri Ranganatha who is the shining star of Harita race, who is the son of Sri Vatsanka Misra and on whom was conferred the name of Parasara Bhatta by the divine command of Sri Rangaraja.

[The three stanzes that follow are not found in the Mahabharata. But generally, in the case of every mantra, mention must be made of its author (rishl), its metre (chhandas) its presiding deity (devata), the words which are said to be its seed (bijakshara), power (sakti) and the cora or heart, and finally the gains to be derived, by reciting them. Following this rule, the succeeding stanzas mention the various angas (parts or elements) of the mantra of the Thousand Names.]

(14) (15) "The great Vedavyasa is the rishi of these Thousand Names of Vishnu; 'Anushtup' is its metre. The presiding Deity is Lord Krishna, Devaki's son.

The seed is He who is born in the lunar race; its power is the Name, "The son of Devaki". The heart is the name "One who is sung by three important Sama hymns". The purpose is the attainment of peace.

(The above angas are usually repeated in prose in the course of parayana. They are followed by some dhyana-slokas or stanzas for meditation. The holy Names are then recited).

Of this grand mantra, i.e., the Thousand Names of Vishnu, the venerable Veda Vyasa is the rishl, the metra is anushtup; its Deity is Sriman Narayana, the Supreme soul, the All pervader. Its seed is "Amritamsudhbhavo Bhanu". Its power is 'Devakinandana'. The essential part of the mantra is "Udbhavah: Kshobhano Devah". Its pin is "Sankabhrin Nandaki Chakri". Its weapon is Sarngadhanva Gadadharah." Its eye is "Rathangapanih: Akshobhyah." Its armour is "Trisama samagas sama". Its womb is "Anandam Para Brahma". The enclosure binding the directions (east, west, south and north) is "Ritussudarsanah kala". The contemplation is on the universal form. Its purpose and utility is in the Thousand Names being used for praising and pleasing Vishnu.

FIRST CENTUM

Next we proceed to explain the names of Mahavishnu in accordance with the rules of Grammer, Etymology, and the interpretation by the Sages. It is also pointed out how the names refer to the five manifestations of Bhagavan as revealed by the doctrines propounded by Texts known as Pancha-Siddhanta (i.e. Pancharatra Agamas). The names are interpreted by us with special reference to their significance, context, propriety and their being free from the fault of redundance.

Note: The five manifestations are: Para (the Transcendental In Sri Vaikunta), Vyuha (in Ksheerabdhi and other places), Vibhava (Incarnations like Rama and Krishna), Archa (icons in Temples and houses), and Antaryami (the subtle form that resides in the heart).

Visvam Vishnuh Vashatkaarah Bhoota-bhavya-bhavat-prabhuh I Bhoota-krit Bhoota-bhrit Bhaayah Bhootaatmaa Bhoota-bhaavanah II (1)

1. Visvam-Full in all respects.

Here at the outset the all-round fullness and perfection of Bhagavan is delineated by the word 'Visvam'. This word is derived from the root 'vis' to enter with the addition of the 'kvan' suffix according to a grammatical rule in the sense of 'He enters' (all the parts). In the Moksha-dharma of Mahabharatha, Panchasikha explains this word 'Visvam' to Samyama as follows:—

"O the king of Kasi! They say Bhagayan is "Visvam" because He enters all the worlds. O King! They also say that the worlds themselves are called "Visvam"

It is propounded that Bhagavan is perfect and full to the brim with reference to His essential nature, form, qualities and glory, all of which are natural, unexcelled, superior and auspicious. The word Visvam denotes entirely and it is quite fitting that the fact of Bhagavan being the possessor of unlimited and immense glory is declared even in the beginning. 'Visvam' is in the neuter gender. As it is the name of Vishnu one may expect it to be in masculine gender. But the gender of a word is determined by usage and not by grammar alone.

'कार्यवाचि 'विश्व' शब्दः कारणे वर्तते। इति केचित्। तत् वार्तम्; सर्वेषां नाम्नां योगरूढित्वात् भगवति स्वशब्दत्वोपपादनात्, जधन्यवृत्तेः अयुक्तत्याच्च । अन्ये विश्वम् १ इति अह्यश्रपश्चयोः अभेदपदं प्रपश्चितवन्तः, तत् दश्चनमात्रम् ।।

तथाहि—न तावत् 'विश्व' पदम् अभेदवानि । न च ' 'तत्वमस्यादि " वत् सामानाधिकरण्येन ऐक्पपरम्, संज्ञानां स्वातन्त्र्येण ऐक्यपरत्व-अविवक्षणात् । अतः एव हि "विश्वं विष्णुः" इति अविशेष्यनिङ्गत्वम् । निरस्तश्च अयम् अविगेव पक्षः, अन्यतः च अनेकतः । इदमेव पूर्णत्वं सर्वेः नामिभः 'विष्णुः' इत्यादिभिः विशिष्यते ।।

Some opine that the word 'Visvam' which generally connotes 'effect' is here used to denote the cause. This view cannot stand; because Bhagavan elone is the primary and direct import of all the names here both by etymological derivation and conventional usage; It is incorrect to adopt the view that Bhagavan is only the secondary import of the names.

There are others who explain that the word 'Visvam' con. notes the identity of Brahman and the Universe. This theory does not take us in the right path. To explain - the word 'Visyam' does not signify identity. It may be argued that identity can be arrived at as in the case of the Upanishadic Mantra 'Tat tvam asi" (That thou art), where there is co-ordination of two words 'Tat' and 'Tvam' and the identity of the two is postulated. Our reply is that that argument cannot be applied here. Firstly there is no co-ordination of two words. Secondly all are proper names each of which is an independent unit and they are not conducive to the idea of identity. Again there is a difference in the genders of names as for example 'Visyam' which is in the Neuter gender' and 'Vishnu' in the Masculine gender. This theory (about the teaching of identity here put forward by this School) has been already refuted by us in this work itself and also in several other places elsewhere. We can see that the entirety or fullness that is depicted here is elaborated by all the names beginning with 'Vishnu'

  - 2. Vishnu One who pervades.

This name connotes that Bhagavan pervades all that He possesses. He enters into all the sentient and non-sentient things that are His Wealth. The Sruti declares—

"He entered all the beings, movable and immovable",

"He entered into the same."

"Kesava exists everywhere having pervaded all these worlds. Therefore Thy name is Vishnu since the root 'vis' denotes entry i.e. "pervasion."

The word Vishnu is formed by the addition of the suffix 'knu' to the root 'vis' which means 'to enter'. The suffix 'knu' is added to show that the quality is ever innate in Him. By this it is taught that this greatness of Vishnu is quite natural to Him. The first name Visvam refers to the fullness, and the second name (Vishnu) to pervasion, Therefore there is no redundance.

3. Vashatkaarah — One who controls and directs (not merely pervades).

The object of the pervasion of the Universe by Bhagavan as distinguished from that by Akasa (ether) is stated here by this name. He makes all act according to His will — hence the name 'Vashat-Kaara'. The root is 'vas' meaning Kaanti (lustre) and the suffix 'at' is added. The substitute 'sha' takes the place of 'sa' in the root 'vas'. The upanishad declarest

"He is the Controller of all and the Ruler of all".

4. Bhoota - bhavya - bhavat - prabuh — The Master of all things in the past, future and present.

He is therefore the Master of all things that exist in all the three periods of time. Prabhu—Svami and Seshi—Lord and Master. The suffix 'du' is added to roots (like bhoo) when the prepositions like 'vi' and 'pra' are prefixed. The grammatical rule lays down that if the resulting word is a name, the du suffix should not be added. Here the word 'Prabhu' is only part of a word which is a name and so 'du' has been affixed.

Thus do the Sastras proclaim :-

"(He who is) the Lord of the Universe",

"The Lord of Lords",

"He is the one Lord of all beings"

"This Universe belongs to that Purusha."

"All these directions and quarters are His";

"This universe of moving and non-moving things exists indeed for the sakeof Sri Krishna."

The next five names (5—9) explain this quality of ownership or Lordship.

The Names 2,3 and 4 elaborate the first name 'Visvam'— (Full in all respects). By the word 'Vishnu' it was pointed out that the Lord pervades all things in the world. This quality of pervasion of Bhegavan is not like that of the ether or space but something more. He not only pervades, but controls and directs, which idea is conveyed by the name. 'Vashatkara'. The next name 'Bhuta-bhavya-bhavat-prabuh' declares that He is the master and owner of all things in the past, present and future.

5. Bhutakrit— The creator of all beings. He creates all things without depending on anything else. The Srutis declare:

8. Bhootaatmaa— The soul of all beings.

This state of all things being the possessions of Bhagavan and His being the possessor is particularised by saying that they are His body and He their soul. He is the Soul of all beings. The lower soul (i.e. the individual soul) is described as the soul of the body that belongs to it. That is because the soul enters into the body, directly controls and directs all its activities. Paramatma does the same with reference to all beings. The nature of the relationship between the soul and the body is distinct from and more intimate than the relationship between the individual soul on the one hand and the wife, house, field etc. on the other hand.

Numerous passages from the Veda and Puranas can be cited in support of this view. Here are a few of them:

"He who is in the Earth";

"He who is in the Atma";

"He Whose body the Earth is"

"This (Bhagavan) is the Inner soul of all beings"

"The entire Universe is Thy body";

"All of them are His body";

"All that is indeed the body of Hari";

--- 9. Bhoota-bhaavanah--- He who nourishes all beings.

He is Bhoota-bhaavanah because He makes all beings grow by bestowing on them things that sustain them, nourish them and contribute to their enjoyment. It may be taken that the affix 'lyu' is added here according to the rule that 'lyu' may be added after 'nandi' and other words. Or it may be taken that the affix 'lyut' is added here to denote the agent of an act. The names "Bhaavanah" (32) and "Pratardana (60) are also to be taken as words ending with the 'lyut' suffix.

"He is the Sustainer of the Universe and also the Lord of the Universe"

"He is the Protector of beings".

Thus His mastery (seshitva) has been established by virtue of His being the Creator, Sustainer, Director and Protector. The term 'Seshi' (Master) signifies one for whose purpose or benefit an object is created and nourished. The Purva Mimamsa Sutra says: "That object is called 'Sesha' (or Subordinate) which exists for the benefit of another." (9)

10. Pootaatmaa - The Pure Self,

Though Bhagavan is the Soul of all objects, unlike the individual souls He is not affected by the defects of the Sentient and non-sentient objects which are His body. That is, He is pure by nature. Though the contact with the body is similar to both Paramatma, and Jivatma, the lower soul (i.e. the individual soul) alone reaps the fruits of his actions and is subject to suffering. The Sruti declares - "The other Aia (unborn, i.e. Jivatma) leaves it after it has been enjoyed. But the Supreme Soul (Paramatma) who makes the other experience joy or sorrow because of His free will and independence, not only does not enjoy it, but also shines brilliantly." This can he explained by an analogy; when a teacher beats a student with a cane, the contact with the cane is the same both for the teacher and the student. It is only the student who is beaten that experiences the pain of the beating, but not the teacher who beats.

This is taught to us by various texts :-

"He is the Inner soul of all beings and is devoid of all sins"

"Actions do not taint Me"-(Gita).

"Narada! Look at the superiority and greatness of the Lord (Paramatma), who is never tainted by actions, good or bad."

The Brahma Sutra says: "If you, who hold the prima facie view say that Parametma too (owing to His essociation with the body) will experience the fruit of an act, we say, no. For by nature He is superior to all." (10)

11. Paramaatmaa—The Supreme Soul.

Unlike all beings which have Him as their Inner Soul, Parametma does not have any one as His Inner Soul (Atma). Therefore Bhagavan is called Paramatma. The word 'Parama' is derived thus: 'parah maa asya' meaning 'He who has no one superior to Him; The form 'parama' is grammatically correct on the analogy of the word 'prishodara' (which is derived from 'prishadudara'). Bhagavan is 'paramah' (Supreme) and 'Atma' (Inner soul). That is to say there is no ruler above Him who controls Him.

The following passages establish this fact:

"He who is the Ruler of His own Atma." '

"There is no one who is superior to Him."

"Nothing is seen which is equal or superior to Him."

"Superior to Him there is no one whatsoever,"

"The best of Bharatas! Nothing is seen which is superior to the Lotus-eyed (Lord)."

"Greater than the Lotus-eyed (Lord) there was nothing (in the past) nor will there be (in the future)."

"There is no God greater than Kesava,"

"Nothing is higher than the Parama-Purushe, who is without end, beginning or middle,"

"Greater than Myself there is nothing else."

"There is no greater nectar than Bhagavan of Universal form."

"He is greater than the great. He is superior; and He is the Supreme Soul". (11)

12. The next name says that He, who is thus the Supreme Seshi (Master) of all, is the highest goal.

Muktaanaam paramaa gatih ;—He who is the Supreme goal for all the Released Souls (Muktas).

They are called the Released Souls who once for all and completely are free from the enshrouding coverings which are the results of the bondage of the Primordial Matter, nescience latent impressions of actions and their fruitions.

Here are some passages from the scriptures :-

्रह<sub>े</sub>ं (The upaseka) casts off his merits and sins (Punya and papa).

"Ever as a horse shakes its hair (to get rid of the dust), he casts off his sins."

"Shaking off the merits and sine".

"Then the learned upasaks becomes freed from name and form."

SrijNarayanaiya (Mahabharata) teaches:— 'Those, who are bereft of the seventeen qualities and actions, give up the fifteen 'Kalas' (or lores) and become Released Souls. This is certain."

Note: Seventeen qualities—Five Elements, five Gnanendriyas, five Karmendriyas, mind and time. The sixteens parts: (Kalas) are mentioned in the Prasnopanishad.

it has been established in the Scriptures that those, who have been freed from all the shackles of Samsara attain equality with Paramatma, the Supreme Soul, in regard to the essential nature which is full of unlimited knowledge and Bliss, in regard to the eight qualities beginning with "being devoid of all sins" and ending with "unfailing will" and also in regard to the enjoyment of Beatitude.

"They attein a state of equality with me (like Myself in regard to the possession of auspicious qualities)."

"Baderayana affirms that there is no contradiction between the two statements that the Mukta's essential nature is knowledge only and that they are endowed with many qualities. This is because of earlier statements according to which the pure soul is bereft of all blemishes, and full of auspicious qualities."

It is further established that the Released Souls attain a similarity with Paramatma even in regard to their bodies which are composed of unmixed and supreme Sattva guna. (Suddha-Sattva).

"He enjoys whatever he desires, assumes whatever form he wants and follows (The Lord)."

"Badarayana holds the view that the Released Souls are in two forms (i.e. with a body or without a body as they like). It is like the Soma Sacrifice, 'Dvadasaaha' by name, which is to be done for twelve days and which is of two kinds (either with one master or many masters) or (either for prosperity or for progeny.)

Here the word 'muktaanaam' used in the plural number shows clearly that the Released souls are many and are different from one another. So do the Scriptures declare.

"All become free by the grace of the Paramapurusha."

"The worshippers of Paramapurusha become great and attain the Transcendent world of Bliss (Paramapada)."

"They attain a state of equality with Me in regard to the possession of auspicious qualities like Myself."

As it is stated here itself that "He is a witness." (Saak-shee—names 15 and 517) and that He is the object of attainment by the Muktes (Released Souls), it is clear that there is difference between Bhagavan and Released Souls. So do the Scriptures declare.

"When the upasaka sees the Lord as being pleased with him and also realises. His greatness, he becomes bereft of all sorrow."

"When he understands that the Atma (Individual Soul) (which is driven about) and He Paramatma, (who drives him) are different."

"The Released Soul enjoys all bliss along with the omniscient Brehman."

"He attains the Lord of Supreme Effulgence."

It is also clearly stated in Mokshadharma (Mahabharata):
"He is Lord Narayana and He must be known as the Supreme Purusha and the Inner Soul of all beings. Just as the lotus leaf is not tainted by water, He is not tainted by any dirt (i.e. blemish). He, who is the other, is known as Kermatma and is the victim of bondage and release. He becomes associated with all the seventeen (qualities).

Note:—The seventaen qualities are: Five Karmendriyet five gnanendriyas, five bhutas, mind and time-

From all these, this theory is dispelled by the Sastras them. selves, theory vizy, that Brahman Itself, circumscribed by a real or unreal upadhi (i. e. a limiting adjunct) becomes a prey to the worldly miseries like the ether circumscribed in a vessel, and that there is absolutely no difference in the state of Release between the Supreme Brahman and the released souls. Because of this absolute similarity between the Paramatma and the Jivatmes, statements like. "He who knows Brahman becomes Brahman Itself" which speak of non-difference between the two are reconciled with the other view that those two are different. This is in analogy with the statement. "This is a cow" in regard to those which have broken horns or without horns. All the cows under the genus of cows are called as such though there is an external difference-some having broken horns and some not so. In the case of those who say that there is non-difference, statements which affirm

hon-difference and which affirm similarity between Brahman and Jivas in the state of Release will contradict each other-

औषाधिष-भेदवादिनां च मुक्तस्वरूप-मंगोपगमात् मुक्तैः अपुरुषार्थत्वं भेदवाद-असामञ्जस्यं च स्याताम् । इदमेव साम्यं मुक्तौ अभेदो व्याख्यातः—

Aupaadhika-bheda-vaadins (I.e. those who hold the view that non-difference is the truth and difference is caused by limiting adjuncts) accept that there is an end to the entity of the Mukta or Released Souls. In that case the state of Release will cease to be an object to be desired or longed for; again it will be against the statements that declare the existence of difference in the state of Release. The supreme similarity (between the Paramatma and the Mukta) which we have delineated has been described as non-difference. So (Abheda) the non-difference delineated in the Upanishads refers only to the similarity of the qualities and not to the non-existence of the entity of Mukta as such.)

"Tad-bheava-bhaavam aapannah tadaa asau Paramaatmanaa Bhavatlabhedee ... ... ... II"

tasya—pertaining to Paramatma; bhaavah—qualities like knowledge, strength etc. teshaam bhaavah - their manifestation; i.e. similarity of qualities. In the interpretation given by others, the second word 'Bhaava' would be purposeless, "This|Mukta (Released soul) attains a nature which is similar to that of Paramatma. Then he becomes non-different from Paramatma."

The prohibition of difference in the state of Release has been indicated to be with reference to the adventitious conditions as gods and the like (by the same Vishnu Purana as follows)—

"There is no longer the difference in the form of gods and the like; that shroud (i. e. Karma, which has been concealing the similarity between the Jiva and the Paramatma) has been dispelled.

  - 4 " छाया वा सत्वम् अनुगच्छेत् ", तथाप्रकारम् इति ॥

This word 'gati' (in the name 'Muktaanaem paramea gatih') has at its end the suffix '(Ktin' in the sense of the passive. 'Gatih' means attainment. A word in the Accusative case (i.e. objective case) refers to an object which is most desired; and that is the goal of attainment. By this it is shown that the relationship between the Released Soul and Paramatma, the object of attainment, is that of servant and master.

The Vedic Mentres say :

"Having attained the Supreme Soul (Parametma) full of bliss".

In the same manner (does the Mukta follow the Paramatma).

of Jivatma and Paramatma. The same scriptures reveal that the Jivatma and Paramatma. The same scriptures reveal that the Jivatma is 'sesha' or subordinate to Paramatma and that this subjection is natural to him like knowledge and other qualities of his; and in the state of Release this attribute of subjection is not negatived. On the other hand because of the removal of obstruction, it becomes manifest.

"He becomes endowed with the form natural to him (which was concealed till now)" says (the Chandogya Upanishad),

Vishnu dharma also states:

"Just as the radiance of a gem is not newly created, (but only made manifest) when the dirt on the gem is removed by polishing, so too knowledge and other qualities of the sout become bereft of Karma. For knowledge and other such qualities are indeed quite natural to him (and are always there though latent at some times (i.e. in Samsara).

"Ohl the Ruler of Men! Knowledge and non-attachment riches and virtue—all these four qualities are eternally present in the Jivatma who is like Brahman Itself because of his similarity."

The Brahma Sutra also confirms this; "When the Mukta attains the Brahman, there is the manifestation of his essential nature which is his own. This is revealed by the use of the word 'svena' (his own) as an adjective qualifying the noun 'roopena' (his essential nature or form)"

Here an objection is raised: "He attains independence"; "He becomes a sovereign". After quoting these texts, the independent status of a Mukta is established by the following Brahma Sutra; "For that very reason he has none as (his) lord." Against all this, how can it be said that he exists for the benefit of another and how can the undesirable state of a dependent be predicated about him?

Dunce I Don't become an object of ridicule. Here the import of the word 'ananye-adhipatityam' (i.e. being without another master) is that He is under the control of Bhagavan only, who is His own Master. The domination of other things like distress and karma over the Mukta has been removed. This does not mean that he is an 'anaatha' (i. e. one without a master to save him). If that were the case, the word 'anadhipathi' (which means 'without a master') would have been used, and not 'ananya-adhipatih' (which means 'without another master). In the case of a wife, being subject to a greatly loving husband is not loathsome to her; for we see that even kings and others are eagerly served and subserved by their sweet hearts and others when they do what is most pleasing to them. Again and again it has been indicated that it is the qualities that occupy a place of importance (and not any thing else). It has been established in the Brahma Sutras that the equality between the Paramatma and the Jivatma is only with reference to the enjoyment of Bliss and excludes the state of being the ruler on the one hand and the ruled on the other.

"The Jivatma is like the Paramatma Himself except with reference to the activities regarding the Universe, viz. its organion, destruction etc."

"There are clear indications to show that the equality of the Jivatma and Parametma is only in the enjoyment of Suprema Bliss."

Sri Vishnu Tattva:— 1. "The Mukta attains complete subjection to Paramapurusha. He gets rid of all bondage and attains unparalleled freedom. He enjoys all Bliss along with the Paramapurusha."

rests with Paramatma. This is the relationship between the two. Nothing alse appeals to me."

Sri Nareyaniya (Mahabharata)

"At the end of the observance of our vow, we saw men with highly euspicious qualities, white, bright like the moon and endowed with all lovely features. Their hands were joined in prayer at all times, and they were meditating upon the Brahman with their faces turned towards north east."

"With their hands joined in prayer they are always happy and are always repeating the word 'namah' (which means salutations unto Thee)".

"They have controlled the sense-organs, and remain without food. They do not perspire and are always sweet-smelling."

These and other such texts describe the residents of Sveta-dvipa (the Holy White Island) and say that they are endowed with divine features and the like, and they derive great pleasure in being the servants of the Lord and in doing unceasing service to Him. The same is said to be the state and occupation of the Muktas or Released Souls.

This is reiterated by the following text:

"The best among the Bharatasi Those men who are released from here have the same characteristics as those who are the residents of Sveta-dvipa (The Holy White Island)."

By the use of the word 'paramaa' (highest) as an adjective qualifying 'gatih' (goal) (in the phrase 'paramaa gatih) it should be understood that there are some for whom the goal is of a lower order. Such a goal, which goes by the name of Kalvalya, is resorted to by those souls who are free from old age, death etc. (Sri Krishna says in the Gita)- 'They resort to me and make efforts to be devoid of old age and death.'

It is stated that such a place of theirs (Kaivalya by name) is somewhere between samsara (material world) and Paramapada (Transcendental word).

"That is the eternal world of those yogins who are satisfied with enjoyment of the Bliss of their own individual soul,"

Such is the Supreme Goal of the Muktes. "He is the Highest means; He is the Supreme Goal."

"He who is the inner Soul of the universe and the highest goal".

"(They attain) Me, the unsurpassed Goal."

"He reaches the end of the road (i.e. Paramatma)," "There is nothing greater than the attainment of the (Supreme) Atman".

Texts like these can be easily got.

That Bhagavan is the Supreme Goal of attainment for the Muktas is corroborated by the next five names (13 to 17).

14. Furusha- The generous Giver.

He bestows gifts in plenty. 'Puru' means plenty, and sanoti' the verb signifies the act of giving. The suffix 'da' is added when the root 'san' is preceded by the particle 'puru'. The rule says that it is added even in the case of other particles. Bhagavan indeed bestows even on the Muktas the enjoyment of the Bliss of Himself, His qualities and His glory ell of which are beyond the range of words and mind.

Here are the Vedic Mantras that reveal this:—

"He (Bhagavan) alone confers Bliss".

"He (The Mukta) enjoys all desirable things along with the omniscient Brahman."

"By his celestial eye and mind he (the Mukta) sees all desirable things and enjoys."

There the Mukta enjoys all kinds of bliss. He eats, plays and experiences joy."

"He enjoys all that he desires and assumes whatever form he likes."

"He (The Para Brahman) is Itself Bliss. Having attained that Para Brahman this Mukta becomes endowed with Joy."

"The Sastras declare that the Mukta becomes endowed with joy when he attains the Brahman."

"Bhagavan (who is Anandamaya is said to be the source of Bliss for others. (i. e. the individual souls)."

15. Saakshee:—He who sees them all directly. Bhagavan is known as "Saakshee" (witness) because He directly sees the Muktas enjoy the Bliss He has bestowed and he is also happy seeing them full of joy. The suffix "in" is added to the root according to a grammatical rule to form a noun to show that the person is direct eye-witness to a particular act. The object of attainment by the Mukta, viz. Brahman, is specially delineated by the Sruti as "Brahman, the Omniscient." Omniscience is explained as knowledge capable of cognising all things of varied nature. (15)

16. Kshetrajnah: -The knower of the field for action.

Bhagavan is called Kehetrajnah because he knows the extremely suitable place for conferring on the Released Souls

16. क्षेत्रं तु परमन्योम मुक्तेभ्यो वेति नित्यगः। दातुं स्वानुमर्वं यथ्च क्षेत्रज्ञः स तु कथ्यते।।

In this way the joy of enjoying Him. The suffix 'ka' is added to the root 'Jnaa' (to know) in the word Kshetrajnah according to the grammatical rule which says. "The suffix 'ka' is added to a root which ends in 'aa' (like jnaa), when it is not preceded by a preposition and the final 'aa' of the root is dropped," The parama-vyoma, i. e. Vaikunta is referred to here as Kshetra (field) because it is the place which yields the crop of Bliss in plenty. Or 'Kshetra' may mean the body of Bhagevan itself possessed of a similar quality. The Vedic Mantra proclaims—"Brahman has Akasa (i.e. Vaikunta) as its body."

In Narayaniya (Mahabharata) the goal of attainment by the Mukta, i.e. Paramatma, is specified as the Kshetrajna in the following Sloke."

"Oh Brahma ! The goal of attainment for the Muktas is specified as the Kshetrajna."

That again is the place where the Muktas enjoy Bhagavan.
"He (the Mukta) enjoys (Bhagavan) in Parama-vyoma,
i. e, Vaikuntha."

"The greatness (in the form of enjoying Bhagavan) is obtained by the Mukta in Sri Vaikunta."

"He ( the Mukta ) shines in Sri Vaikuntha."

"He (the Mukta) enjoys Bliss in Vaikuntha"

Here is a Mantra which expresses the wish of a Mukta who does not want rebirth in this world.

"When compared with the eternal Valkuntha (Parame-Akasa) this Akasa (Ether) adorned with flower - like stars is without lustre like night. I go to Valkuntha and begin to live there. May I not have rebirth."

"That is the Supreme Abode of Mine, after reaching which they (the Released Souls,) do not come back."

In the Mokshadharma, it is said: "When the soul gets rid of the fear of old age and death, he becomes endowed with the auspicious qualities mentioned in the authoritative texts vix. Vedas and Agama, and he becomes freed from the cause (i.e. Karma) and its fruit (i.e. the body),

The Akasa he reaches (i.e. Vajkuntha is without the name and form of the ordinary world and he remains there without a body (like the one in the material world)."

In the Vishnu Purana:-

"Those yogins who are exclusively devoted to Brahman and who are engaged in its meditation, reach a supreme place which the Socris (Eternal Angels) are always seeing (i.e. enjoying)."

In the Brahma Purna much is said about Sri Vaikunta, it begins with these words:

That is called 'Parama-Vyoma' (i.e. Supreme Akasa or Sri Vaikunta) about which it is said that there is nothing in it (like those that are seen in this world)."

Then it continues

"The undisputed conclusion is that it is the place known as moksha" (Saivation) and that it is the place of Supreme Effulgence which belongs to Vishnu."

That is my Supreme Prakriti (or Transcendent Nature) which is both Vyakte and Avyakte (manifest to the devotee) and unmanifest (to the impious). O Best of Bharetas (Arjuna)! The Soule (Jivas) enter this Prakriti and they become Muktas (Released Souls), O Parthal (Arjuna); It is the goal for the

The pure and subtle Akasa (Sri Vaikunta) shines with His effulgence. That Transcendent world (Paramapada) is like pure crystal and replete with joy. Those who have realised the Tattvas (rishis) attain this world and are freed from the touch of things both auspicious and inauspicious (i.e. punya and papa). They are of the size of a trasarenu (i.e. a particle of dust composed of three atoms) and are adorned by millions of rays. Neither do they take birth in this world, nor do they die."

All this is well-known from passages like these,

In this Paramapada, there is a city which goes by the name of 'Ayodhyaa' and 'Aparaajitaa'. There] is a Palatial mansion 'Aparaajitam' (Invincible) by name. There is a Hall of calestial beauty supported by thousand pillars etc. In it is a couch on which the Lord along with Lakshmi is to be meditated upon as the object of enjoyment for the numberless Released Souls. All this is well-known from the Chandogya, Taittiriya, Kaushitaki and other Upanishads. (16)

Aksharah: —He who never wanes.

He is called Akshara, because He never becomes less; but as the object of enjoyment He ever grows more and more like a stream of honey in spite of His being enjoyed by the Muktes at all times there. Such is the manifestation of His unlimited qualities.

The suffix 'ach' is added to the varb 'Kshareti' according to the grammatical rule that the suffix 'ach' should be added after pacati' and other verbs. The names 'Vikramah' (79) and 'Suraanandah' (188) are words ending with the suffix 'each'

"Paramapurusha is unsulfied even though He is attained and enjoyed (by others, i.e. Muktas). Since He does not owe His greatness to others and since He is great by Himself, His supreme nature never diminishes".

In the Saariraka (i.e. Brahma Sutras) in the fourth chapter moksha has been affirmed to be of this kind. This chapter cannot be interpreted as delineating fruits of a lower order. In that case the earlier three chapters which deal with the means of attaining Salvation, the Upanishadic texts which have been quoted as authority, and Smriti, Itihasa and other Scriptures also will have to be taken as dealing with those fruits of a lower order, and all of them will become Sastras that have nothing to do with the Moksha. Thus Bhagavan is the Supreme Goal of attainment for the Muktas. (17)

18. Yogah-He who is the Means.

It is stated that this Bhagavan alone is the natural and independent means for salvation. The word Yoga is derived from the verb 'Yujyate' which means 'With whose help the goal is attained.' The suffix 'ghajo' is added to form a noun by the rule—'ghajo' is added which signifies any case excepting the nominative-case."

The names 'Margah' (367,399) सर्गः (161) and others have been derived by the addition of the suffix 'ghajn'. The meaning of the word 'Yoga' is that He is the immediate cause of Salvation and does not stand in need of the help of snything else.

19. Yoga-vidaam Netaa- He who leads those who practise yoga.

Bhagavan leads to salvation even those who adopt the means that are not direct. 'Trich' is the suffix that has been added to 'nayati' from which verb the name Netsa is derived. Bhartaa (33) Dhaataa (43,951) and other names also have been formed with the suffix 'trich' at the end. Bhagavan carries on the task undertaken till the fruit is attained.

20. This is established by arguments:-

Pradhama Purusha Isvarah - The Lord of Primordial Matter and Purushas (i. e. Jivas).

Bhagavan is the Master in every way of the Primordial Matter and Jivas (Atma)—Pradhane, which is the cause of bondage, and Jivas, who are the souls bound by it. The suffix 'warach' is added to the roots 'sthee" (is), 'bhaas' (shine) 'ees' (to sule); and thereby the name "isvara" is formed. The name Sthaevera (428) also comes under this class.

"(Bhagavan) the Ruler maintains this universe in which the changing Prakriti and the unchanging Jive are united and which again is composed of matter, subtle and gross. The Jive who is not a master himself is kept under bondage and experiences (the fruit of his action. When he realises the Lord, he is freed from all bonds).

"Bhagavangis the master of Primordial Matter and Atma as well as the Lord of all qualities."

"That One Deity controls the Kehara (Primordial Matter) and the Jivatma."

In this way the Supreme Master (Bhagavan) has the power to indulge in sport binding with His Maya the erring Divas and setting free (from bondage) those who seek refuge in Him.

"The Master of all beings."

"This Prakriti, composed of the three gunas (Sattva, Rejas and Tamas), is mine. I am entertaining Myself playing with it."

"An instrument for play for the sporting Lord."

"A toy (the universe is for Bhagavan.")

"Bhagavan is at once the cause for the bondage, release and sustenance of this world."

Sri Vishnu Tattva declares:

"Excepting the Grace of Bhagavan there is nothing anywhere that can bring about the destruction of the Maayaa (I.e. the world) which He Himself has created. This truth we say in brief."

20 - बन्धहेतोः प्रधानस्य बध्यमाननृणां च यः। नियामकः सर्वदा सः प्रधानपुरुषेश्वरः ।।

Here are two Aphorisms from the Brahma Sutras to that effect.

"It is only by the will of Paramapurusha that the natural form of the Jiva is concealed. Again by His will alone the bondage and its opposite (i.e. release) of the Jiva are brought about."

"This concealment (of the true nature of Jiva) is caused by the contact with the body (at the time of creation) or by the contact with the Primordial Matter (i.e. Prakriti) (at the time of deluge)."

The suffix 'varach' is used to show that the quality spoken about is innate and inseparably associated with that person. By its use here it is shown that the difference among the three Realities (Sentient, Non-sentient and God) and the state of Bhagavan being the Ruler and the other two being the ruled are natural and not conditioned by any adventitious cause. ## 22. Srimaan- He of a lovely form.

Though Bhagavan is taking a form which is unique with head and body not mutually matching and not comely. He is Sriman; i. e., His form is celestial and very charming with beauty, loveliness and other qualities. The combination of the forms of man and iton in him is so perfect and appropriate that those who have seen it would almost feel an aversion when they see a simple lion or a man without such combination. The world was indeed protected only by assuming such a unique form.

23. Kesavah -- He who has lovely tocks of heir.

The name 'Kesava' suggests by implication that the Lord is possessed of qualities like supremacy delineated above and loveliness which are all his own by nature. The meaning of the word is—the Lord who is possessed of curly locks of hair which are sublime, soft and blue. The suffix 'va' is added to the word 'Kesa' by a grammatical rule, to denote the supreme toveliness of the locks of hair.

24. Purushottamah. The Supreme amongst the Purushas (i.e. individual souls).

The sublime quality that distinguishes Paramatma from other souls is shown by this name lest some should think that there are others equal to Him. The word 'Purusha' which signifies a sentient being distinguishes 'Paramatma from paakriti or Primordial matter which is devoid of knowledge and which is in two forms—subtle and gross (i.e. invisible and visible). The part of the word 'ut', in 'uttama, which means 'superior' distinguishes Paramatma from souls in bondage. 'Tarap, is a comparative suffix, and it would distinguish Paramaatma, had it been used, from the Released Souls (or Muktas),

The superlative suffix 'tamap' in the word 'uttama' distinguishes Paramatma from the Eternally free souls like Adisesha end Garuda. This distinction of Paramatma from all (the forms of them) is because of his sublime superiority which is natural to 'Him and which is due to His being opposed to all blemishes, His help to all things by pervading and protecting them and by His being the Supreme Master of all.

This great secret along with significant suggestions has been sung in the following sloke in Bhagavad Gita:(15, 16)-

"There is mention in the Sastras that there ere two kind of Purushas (Kshara—souls in bondage; Akshara—Muktas or Released souls).

"Earth, water fire, wind (ether all of which are the forms of Prakriti, are mine)."

"Who realises me as having no birth from beginningless time".

From these and many other passages it can be seen that Paramatma alone is Supreme. Here also it is clear that there is absolute difference between the enjoyer (Jivatma), the object of enjoyment (nonsentlent matter) and the Director (Paramatmah). Therefore the theory that Brahaman itself becomes Purusha and Prakriti is refuted. There are other theories that Brahaman undergoes all changes, and wallows in the material world (because of Avidya or Nescience, that ther is a Brhaman other than the isvara (the Suprema Ruler), the nonsentient Prakriti, released Soul and Isvara all of them get dissolved in Brahman and emerge from it. If these views are accepted they go against the declaration here about Purushottama and against all the established doctrines of the Veda. (24)

25. Sarvah- He who is all.

Bhagavan is superior to all, and does not depend on anybody for anything. Siill He does not neglect any one since He sustains the forms, the existence and activities of all of them. He considers them as His body even as a soul does its own body. So He is Sarvah— all. (The root 'sr' in) 'Sarati' gets the suffix 'van' according to the rules of grammar. 'Sarati has the suffix 'van' in the sense of moving the limbs, 'Sarati' which means 'moves' is to be taken here in the sense of 'knowing.' Here is an etymological interpretation of this name, 'Sarvah'.

"They call Bhagavan 'Sarva' as He is the cause of creation and destruction of all things that are known as 'Asat' (i. e. Achetana) and 'sat' (i. e. chetana), and as He has the knowledge of all things at all times." It has been declared that the basis for the use of Saamaanaadhi karanya (i. e. co-ordination or grammatical apposition), of all things with Paramatma is this kind of pervasion or relationship. The Vedic Text begins by saving—.

"All things are connected with Him as gems in a threadand declares "He is verily all this."

"Thou pervadest all things. Therefore Thou art 'Serva, (all):"

26. Sarvah-The Remover.

Bhagavan is known as 'Sarva' because He removes the evils of all objects that are His body. The suffix 'van' is added to the root 'sr' according to the rule mentioned above. (26)

27. Siveh -He who confets auspiciousness.

He is Siva as He confers auspiciousness on all. The word "Siva" is dervied from the root 'Seeng' which signifies auspiciousness. The suffix 'van' is added according to the rule "sarva' nightshva. Siva". The grammatical rule lays down that the long vowel 'ee' of the root is shortened to 'i' and it does not undergo the change called 'guna'.

"The Eternal' The Auspicious and Never-deserting."

"When He is remembered, the devotee becomes the abode of all auspiciousness".

"Lord Vishnu is auspiciousness incarnate".

The result of the contact with Bhagavan does not stop with the destruction of some particular sins as ordinary acts of expiation do, nor does it get exhausted by the granting of only a particular fruit (desired) like Kaareeri, Chitre, Darsapoornamase and other sacrifices or like the worship of other minor deities, nor obstructed by powerful impediments, nor reduced in degree, nor is it destroyed. Not only does it completely destroy the inauspiciousness in a devotee, but also fulfils all his desires in many ways. Even then it does not stop with it (but is ready to grant more).

29. Bhootaadih—He Who is eagerly resorted to by all Moreover He is eagerly sought after by all because He is most desirable. So He is called 'Bhootaadih'.

The names 'Sarvaadih' (100) 'Nidhih' (30) and such others also have this 'ki' suffix.

34. Prabhavah-He of exalted birth.

He is Prabhava, because His birth is of a sublime nature. The sublimity of His birth consists in its being unsulfied even by the shadow of a blemish; and it is capable of uprooting the fetters of ell births of those who realise it; thus it is entirely different from the birth of other gods. Here are the relevant texts.

- " He is unborn,"
- " Learned men know the( cause of) His birth very well."
- "He was not born of any one, not did He live in the womb of any one. By his power Krishna brings about the redemption of all."

35. Prabhuh-He who is all powerful.

Though He comes down as a man who is or some other being which is absolutely dependent on others, He is still Prabhuh (most powerful).

The affix 'du' has been added to the root 'Bhoo' with the preposition 'pre'; and the word 'Prabhu' is a proper name. This is an exception to the rule that the affix 'du' cannot be added to signify a name.

He is capable of bestowing fruits like the enjoyment of the pleasures of the rare posts of the gods and others as well as even Moksha. This is clear from the fact that Salvation was conferred even upon Sisupala (who always abused Himi and Chintayanti (Gopi who was a great devotee of Sr) Krishna).

The affix 'kvip' comes after 'bhoo' when the word so formed denotes a name or surety. For the purpose of His sport (leetae) He, out of His own free will, with His Prakriti (of essential nature) which is exclusively His and which is of the quality of pure sattva, assumes and permeates the forms similar to those of gods and men. Unlike in the case of the four-faced Brahma and others, who are not independent His birth is not controlled by any other god or by Karma,

- * "For the sake of His devotees supreme Brahmen manifests itself (Svayambhu)."
- <sup>2</sup> "I get into my own Prekriti (composed of suddhesattva) and am born by my own with".

Though the two Prakritis, the one composed of the three qualities (Sattva, Rajas and Tamas) and the other the sentient, belong to Him, still this Prakirti (i.e. suddha sattva is specifically, referred to as "My own Prakriti" because it belongs exclusively to Him and is the world of enjoyment.

in the Harivamsa in the episode of bringing back the sons of the Vaidik Brahmin from Sri Vaikuntha, He refers to the two Prakritis (chetana and Achetana) which are the instruments for His sport, and continues <sup>3</sup> You have seen the splendour of Brahman which is celestlet and wonderful. O Best of Bharatas! I am that; and that is my splendour and it is eternal.

Bharata! That Prakriti of mine is superior and it is of two kinds, gross and subtle (visible and invisible). O the greatest amongst Bharatas! Once the souls enter into it, they become Muktes (i.e. free from the cycle of birth and death).

It is clearly mentioned in Sri Vishnu Tattva after mentioning the five saktis:—

(Five sektis are the five forms of Bhagavan, Para, vyuha etc.

""The manifestations of the Supreme Being as Matsya (Fish), Kurma (Tortoise) and Varaha (Boar) are composed of this effulgent substance (known as Suddha Sattya) and not of any other substance which is not like it and so countar to it. O Best of Brahmins!"

Vishnu Purana refers to the five forms of Bhagavan, as "All these five sagtis" by which it is indicated that they are all of them unique and superior because of the nature of their manifestation, purpose, cause source, time, number and other things.

In Ramavana it is said:-

"The Supreme Lord of all worlds Himself (brought about the end of the Rakshasas) with a desire to do good to the world."

<sup>4</sup> "Being requested by the gods who wanted the end of the proud Ravana, Vishnu, the eternal Lord, took birth in this world of mortals.".

" "He manifested by Himself and shone." (37)

38. Sambhuh— The Source of happiness. He is 'Sambhu' because He causes 'sam' (Happiness) to all by manifesting thus His beauty, availability and other qualities.

In the section dealing with 'du' suffix, that suffix is added to words like 'mitadru' according to a grammatical rule.

  - 39. Aadityah-The Person in the Sun.

Next the Purusha in the sun is given as an example for the manifestation or incarnation. Additys (sun) is the abiding place for Him.

The affix 'nya' comes after the proper names Biti, Aditi and Aeditya. It has been established thus in the Brahma Sutra:

िन.--39. निवासः सविता यस्य स आदित्यः प्रकीतितः।

"The lovely resplendent Purusha who is seen in the interior of the Sun."

"He, is only the same (Deity) who is seen in the heart of a human being and who is seen in the Sun".

"He must always be meditated upon who is in the middle of the orb of the Sun".

This passage is quoted and the Upanishad says with reference to Him who is in the interior of the Sun that "His two eyes are like the lotus flower that has been blossomed by the Sun," (39)

40. Pushkaraakshah—The Lotus-eyed.

The name Pushkaraakshah associates Bhagavan with the possession of lotus eyes which is a specific indication that He is the Sole Ruler of the entire universe. This is a compound word ending with the 'ach' suffix according to a grammatical rule that the word 'Akshi' will take the 'ach' suffix when it does not mean "vision". (40)

  - 41. Mahaa-svanah-He of venerable sound.

This name indicates another distinctive mark of His. Mahaan means venerable and Svanah means sound, i.e. possessed of venerable sound. The final vowel 'a' of the word 'mahat' is replaced by long 'aa' in a compound where both the words are in the same case (i.e. in apposition),

"His name is 'ut' (He who is above foibles)".

The name and form of this (Supreme Being) have as their basis sound (i.e. the Vedas).

"He is indeed the three Vedas. He is the charming Purusha shining in the interior of the Sun." Thus His form is the three Vedas themselves; or He is the Supreme object of worship since He is signified by the Saavitri (i.e. Gayatri).

Therefore it is mentioned in the Moksha Dharma about Bhagavan as follows:

"I am the Eternal Purusha who is in the Solar Orb and who is closely associated with Vidya". (41)

42. Anaedi-nidhanah—One who is without beginning of end.

With such a celestial name and form He is without beginning or end. Since His youthfulness is eternal, He is possessed of a body which is eternal, and which is devoid of the foibles of birth, old age and the like. This should not be interpreted as signifying the eternity of His essential nature, because that is the same in the case of the four-faced Brahma and others also.

"He has a resplendent form and has the power of making all that he wills come out true."

"He is the enchanting Purusha."

"Out of the sparkling Purusha (sprang all objects)."

"He is of the radiance of the Sun and is beyond the region of Tamas (i.e. Prakriti, mortal world).

"He has all the worlds which are His creation, and endowed with all fragrance and with all tastes".

"The Supreme Purusha is to be meditated upon as having the lustre of gold and reached by a knowledge which is unaffected by external forces and which can be compared to the undisturbed dream (of a man)."

"Purusha who is lotus-eyed."

There are thousands of Srutis and Smritis like those quoted above which establish that the Lord has a body which He assumes out of His own free will, which is like a blue cloud in the midst of sparkling rows of lightnings, which is spotless, blue and shining, and which is endowed with lovable qualities like Supreme loveliness, beauty and youthfulness.

It is further stated with reference to this form of Paramatma as follows:

"He is possessed of a body which is always in the same state and immutable."

"He has the mole named Srivatsa on His chest and is endowed with ever-lasting beauty."

Sage Parasara says—"This Bhagavan is Time itself and keeps all things under His control."

"There is no Tattva (Reality) superior to Vishnu and hie body is beyond the sway of time."

By these and other such clear declarations the fact is beyond dispute that the body of the Lord is eternal. The reasons for the same are—It pertains to Bhagavan who is always the cause; it is also one of the attributes like knowledge etcwhich define His essential nature (Svarupa); it exists beyond the Prakriti which is called Tamas; it is beyond the region of mutations like birth and the like; it is specifically stated that it is immutable and is beyond the sway of time; and also by the Tat-kratu maxim (i.e. the theory that the result is in the same proportion as the means)—

The devotee attains the blissful experience of the body of Bhagavan which is similar to the one on which he meditates here.

ईश्बलवदागम-न्यायितरोध-दोष-मूषिकाध्रातम् अस्य रूपस्य काल्पनिक आगन्तुकत्व-अनुमानं न प्ररोहेत्। अत एव नीरूप-वादाः अपि भौतिक हेयदेह निषेधकाः नेतन्याः। नीताध्रवः

- <sup>3</sup> ''रूपं वा अतीन्द्रियम्, अन्तः करणप्रत्यक्षनिर्देशात्''
- <sup>4</sup> "अञ्जसैव विश्वसृजो रूपम्" इति अज्ञ ।

Such is the strength of the scriptures (Agamas) and reasons about the nature of the form of the Supreme Being. Contrary to this, no theory based on inferences can be put forward which will try to set up a body which is imaginary or new (and not eternal). Therefore texts, which seem to declare Paramatma as formless, must be taken to mean that He has no body which is like that of the mortals or which is despicable. In fact Sastraic texts like the following give the same interpretation:—

"The body of Paramatma is not made up of the combination of elements like earth, water etc."

"His form is not composed of earthly elements like fat, flesh and bone."

In the wake of Badarayana (the author of the Brahma Sutras), the commentators (Vakyakara and Bhashyakara) also have propounded that the form of the Supreme Brahman in the interior of the Sun is eternal.

"His body is beyond the range of the sense organs, for it is stated that it can be cognised only by the eye of the mind."

"Truly the body of the creator of the universes is eternal.",

Even the incarnations of the Lord have no beginning or end unlike the bodies of the worldly beings. But it is only a case of exit from and entry into the Paramapeda like an actor coming on the stage from behind the curtain and then disap. pearing by going away.

"This my unique body is endowed with four arms and is in that celestial Abode. O gods! Worship the inscrutable body of mine which has come to the human world. I live in it for ever."

"He entered the world of Lustre of Vishnu with His own body and with His followers."

43. (951). Dhataa—The creator.

This name signifies the glory of Bhagavan which is superior to that of Brahma and others, because of His being the cause of all things, The word ends with the affix "trn". 'Bhartae' (33) and other words also are like this. The name Dhastae signifies that Bhagavan, in the form of Aniruddha, places Brahma the foetus who is the aggregate of sentient beings in Prakriti which is the cause of all and which is the aggregate of non-sentient objects.

"The great Brahman (i.e. Prakriti) is my womb and I impregnate it." in the Maula Samhita it is stated—

"Dhaataa places in the Kshetra (i.e. Prakriti the foetus (i.e. Jiva) which is the seed for actions."

44,(486). Vidhaataa-The Producer.

Bhagavan is called Vidhastaa, because He develops the foetus and makes it appear.

"He who creates Brahma at first."

"Then once again Narayana"—begins the Vedic text (and says) 'There the four-faced Brahma was born."

"Bhagavan saw Brahma as he was being born."

"From Him, Viraat (i.e. Brahma) was born."

"Therein was born Brahma himself who is known as the grand size of the universe." From these and other texts the fact mentioned above (can be known as being correct). (44)

- 45. Dhaatuh uttamah—Far Superior to Brahma.

Therefore Bhagavan is far superior to the creator. From this it goes without saying that He is superior to (Daksha and other) Prajapatis who are created by that Brahma, on the analogy of the maxim of Danda and Apoppa.

Danda-apoopa-nyaya—The maxim of the stick and the cakes. When a stick (to drive away the rats) and the cakes have been kept together, and one says that 'the stick has been eaten away by the rats', we are naturally led to expect that the cakes also would have been eaten away by those rats, as a matter, of course, since both of them have been kept together. So when one thing is closely connected with another in some way and we say something of the one, it naturally follows that what we assert about the one can, as a matter of course, be asserted of the other also. If it is stated that Vishnu is greater than Brahma, who creates the Prajapatis, it naturally follows that He is greater than those Prajapatis also who were created by Brahma).

"Narayana is the Supreme Tattva (Reality)."

46, Aprameyah-The Immeasurable.

Bhagavan is immeasurable by the sense-organs of those Brahma and other gods.

"When the 'sa' of a root like ('Pramea') is followed by 'yat', it takes 'ee' effix," "Brahma, the great god, does not know the Supreme

Brahma himself declares-

"We do not verily know the beginning, middle and end of the birthless Supreme Creator (Vishnu) whose forms all things are. We neither know the essential nature of the Supreme Ruler; nor his sublime greatness, nor His power".

Again in the dialogue between Brahma and Rudra wa come across statements like the following;—

"O greatest beings!. It is impossible for you, for me or for others to visualise Him. He is the cosmos itself. Whether He is taken as possessed of (auspicious) qualities or as bereft of all (bad) qualities, He is ever spoken of as being cognised only by knowledge."

"He is the inner Soul of yourself and myself and also of all who go by the name of Atmas (embodied souls). He sees everything directly in person, but He cannot be realised by anyone anywhere."

From these texts it is clear that He is immeasurable because He is beyond the region of the sense-organs and He cannot be cognised by anyone in full. (46)

"This universe became dissolved in Bhagavan who is the creator of all."

"Purusha to whom do pertain all the acts of the universe, who is the first Deity, who is birthless and who is all-pervasive."

All this can be clearly seen in the Visvakarma-Sukta which begins with the Mantra—"He who offered all these worlds" as oblation in His own body. (i.e. All these worlds in their subtle form were in His body). (50)

51. Manuh—He who wills.

The creation of the cosmos was only out of a minute part of His will that is reputed. He is 'Manu' because He thinks or wills. 'Manu' is derived from the root 'man' (to think or know). The affix 'u' comes after the root 'man' (to know) and the word 'Manu' is formed. (51)

- 52. Tvashtaa—The chiseller.

The world that has been created by Him thus is invested with name and form and the distinction as god, man, etc. is brought about in diverse forms and so He is called 'Tvashtaa' (the chiseller). The word is derived from the verb 'tvakshati'

नि -- 52. नामरूप-ध्याकरणात् स्वष्टा मृष्टस्य गद्यते।

which signifies the act of chiselling. The suffix 'trch' is added"The 's' or 'k' when-initial in a conjunct consonant, is droppedbefore a 'Jhai' affix and at the end of a word." So the 'k' in 'Tvakshati' is dropped. Chiselling means investing an object with a definite shape. Or the word Tvashtaa can be derived from the root 'tvish' to shine. The affix 'Trn' and the change of the penultimate vowel 'i' (in Tvish) to 'a' are prescribed by a grammatical rule. Or when the root 'tvish' is used to denote a deity, the penultimate letter 'i' is changed into 'a'. The word Deepanam signifies illuminating, i.e. developing the limbs.

"Tvashta, who is omniscient and who fashions the forms and (names of the objects of the world)."

"The creator of the World (Parametma) produced the objects of two kinds (Sat and Asat, i.e. sentient and non-sentient) with the help of the Veda."

53. Sthavishtah-He who is exceedingly huge in size.

The affix 'ishtan' has been added to the word 'sthools'.

By a grammatical rule the letter 'la' in word 'sthoola' is dropped and the previous vowel 'oo' takes the 'guna' (substitute (i.e. becomes 'ev'); and hence the word 'Sthavishta', 'I shall become many' is the infallible will of Bhagavan. In consonance with this, He expanded Himself. From the aggregate state which is undeveloped and subtle, He took the expended form as bodies and senses of the experiencing god, man, animal and plant-life, as the sound touch and other qualities that are the objects of their sense-organs, as the Brahmaanda (the egg-like universe) pregnant with the fourteen worlds which are the places of residence for all those beings, as well as its sheath, and again as the individual effects which are in a gross and developed state. Thus He manifests Himself. Here are the texts in support of this theory—

"There is no end to my expansion" (Gita).

"He who has expanded Himself in the forms of ether) water, air, fire and earth, and who is more atomic in size (i.e., more subtle than the atom itself."

"All this universe is the expansion of Vishnu Who is all things by Himself.

" O Lord, thy expansion is, verely all this." (53)

64. Sthavirah-He who is existent at all times.

This name proceeds to signify that despite His being the original cause of all, still Bhagavan is different from the mud and other such causes in the world. The world 'Sthavira' is formed by a grammatical rule which decrees that the root 'stha' (tishtati) to stand) takes the affix 'Kirach'; the long vowel 'aa' (in sthas) becomes the short 'a' and a new letter 'vuk' is added. The meaning is He exists at all times.

Though for His sport (namely the creation etc. of the world) He accepts the help of Time. He is not bound by it. By this it is indicated that His nature is entirely different from that of milk etc. which stand in need of some time to turn into curd etc. That is because Time is entirely under His control, Vide—

66. Dhruvah-He who is firm and unchanging.

He is Dhruvah, because His essential nature does not undergo any change. Though there are endless transformations He is always immutable. The root 'dhru' signifies both gatie (movement) and sthairya (firmness): The affix 'ka' is added to the root by a grammatical rule. Similarly the names' Guhah (365), Vrshah (314), Nimishah (215) and others have been formed with the affix 'ka'.

"He who is invincible, eternal and unchanging.

"He who is immutable and pure."

"He who is bereft of decay and death,"

Unlike the mud, thread and other things which are controlled and acted upon by a potter, a weaver and others. Bhagavan is not controlled by any one—Agraahya. The affix 'nyat' has been added to the word in the end according to the grammatical rule—The suffix 'nyat' comes after a verb that ends with the vowel 'r' long or short of in a consonant.

The names Vedyah (165), Maanyah (755) and the like have been formed similarly.

This name makes it clear that this world which is subject: to creation and destruction is but a small atom when compared with that Paramapada. According to some Tri-kakub-dhaamas. Is the reading. In both cases the word Kakut or Kakub signifies parts. He is called Trikakut-dhaamaa, because He has the Transcendental World as His Supreme abode which is thrice the size (of this world). Wide the Stuti -

"All the things in this world are but an one-fourth part; the eternal Paramapada is three times as big as this." The word 'Tripaad' is interpreted as being extremely large in size and 'Paada' as small as on atom.

"The extent of this world is but a hundred millionth part of His (form)",

"This world is just an atom (when compared with Paramapada) which is as huge as Meru Mountain."

Qr the word 'Trikekut' may be taken to indicate the six qualities, knowledge and others, which are divided into three groups, two in each. He is their repository, i.e. He is endowed with the six qualities in all their entirety. He is known as. 'Triyugam' because of the possession of the three pairs (of qualities).

(c. In this case, the meaning is radiance. 'Dhaama' is a separate name.

63. Pavitram - Purity Incarnate,

In this way the qualities, possessions, and body of Bhagavan have been portrayed step by step and now we pass on to His essential Nature which is to be cognised by means of these.

The affixes 'itra' and 'utra' come respectively after the roots 'as' 'trai' and like these.

Or the affix 'itra' comes after the verb 'poo' (to purify) in the sense of the 'agent or the instrument' when it is employed in connection with 'Rishi' which signifies a Vedic Mantra or a Deity. (When applied to Rishi the force is that of an instrument and when applied to a Devata the force is that of an agent.)

- 64. Mangalam Param The Embodiment of Supreme Auspiciousness, which is opposed to all that is of the nature of a blemish. The word mangale is derived from the root 'mangi' meaning 'to go' which takes the affix 'alach'. He is the sole resting place of all that is auspicious by virtute of His being self-luminous and blissful. The word 'param' signifies the unlimited nature (of the auspiciousness). That Bhagavan has the glory of the continuous enjoyment of qualities and lordship which are innate to Him, endless, limitiess and innumerable. It is possible to establish that in His transcendental state He is not wanting in anything and always contented. He is very much like an Ocean of Nectar, waveless and still but He excels it by the unlimited Bliss resulting from the enjoyment of His own Self-luminous Self which is by nature devoid of all blemishee, endless, unparalieled and most agreeable. This has been determined by the following Brahma Sutras:

"That which is denoted by the word Ananda-mays is the Supreme Brahman; because there is the repetition (of various grades of bliss which culminate in the Anandamays of the Highest Bliss)."

It has been declared (by the Upanishads):

"The Brahman is Truth, knowledge and Infinity".

"The Brahman is Bliss".

"The Supreme is full of tranquility and nectar (i.e. sweet-ness)".

"When the Supreme Brahman is seen as tranquil, steady and motionless, contented and sweet as nectar, then the mind should be fixed on it for meditation. This is the highest state of meditation."

The theory that the Supreme Brahman is nothing but intelligence has been refuted in a hundred ways in the work "Akhanda-Khandana".

Though Bhagavan is endowed with intelligence, bliss, ability, lordship and other qualities, if He is spoken of as intelligence and bliss only, it is because He shines by Himself for Himself in an exceedingly agreeable manner and not because He is either intelligence alone or Bliss alone. A gem, the sun, and a lamp show the objects on which their rays fall and at the same time they shine by themselves without expecting their help. So they are known as being luminous and also luminaries. In the same way Bhagavan visualises all objects by knowledge which is His quality, and without tooking for help from them He shines by Himself, And He is known as 'knowledge' and also "knower'. Or if He is referred to as knowledge, it may be on the analogy shown in the Brahma Sutra:

"The denotation (of the individual self) by the word vijnana" is due to its having that quality (of vijnana) as its essence, as is the case with the Omniscient Lord."

Therefore texts like the following do not contradict one another: "He is Truth, Knowledge". "He who is omniscient and knows all."

In the Varshneya Adhyatma speaking about the individual self it is stated:

"Just as the individual soul, whether small or big in size, remains in a tranquil state of knowledge, in the same way Paramapurusha in all beings must be visualised as knowledge itself. He alone makes others know what is to be known."

65. Isaanah—The controller.

By this name, Bhagavan is distinguished clearly from the bound souls, released souls and ever-free souls whose qualities are shrouded or manifested. "The affix 'chaanas' is added to a verb in expressing habit (standard of age and ability)". The word signifies that His innate nature is to keep under control and direct all things under all circumstances.

"That highest and greatest Lord of all Lords".

"Intelligence, ability and action which are innate."

"There is no one in the world who is His master. No one rules over Him: He has not a sign (i.e. a body). He is the cause, He is the Lord of him who is the lord of the senses (i.e. the individual soul); He has no progenitor and no master."

"He is the Lord of all, the controller of all, the ruler of all."
He does not become greater by means of a good act, nor smaller by a bad one; He is the Lord of all, the king of all beings, the protector of all beings. He is the bridge and

"This, the Supreme Soul, is the ruler of all beings in the universe: He is the king of all beings."

- "He is the Ruler of the universe for ever; and there is no other deity in whom the Rulership rests".

"The Lord (dwells, O Arjuna! in the region of the heart) of all embodied beings."

"Bhagavan alone rules (over the whole universe). This is the truth, I tell you."

"Paramatma is the support of all and He is the Supreme Ruler." And such other texts.

Therefore to those who prattle that the Supreme Being is under the influence of illusion, or of limiting adjuncts, or undergoes transmutations, or His over—lordship omniscience and other qualities are adventitious, thrice do I offer the oblation of handful of water mixed with seasams (i.e. I shall consider them as non-existent and shall have nothing to do with them).

The foremost action resulting from the quality of lordship is denoted by the name Praanada. He gives life. The affix 'Ka' is added to the word. # 68. Jyeshtah-Highly praise-worthy.

When the the word 'presesya' meaning preise-worthy takes the superlative suffix 'ishtan', the substitute 'jya' takes its place. He is highly praise — worthy because of this sublime glory which can never be fully visualised in spite of its being experienced by Himself and by eternelly Free Angels at all times and in all ways. Vide—

"Vasudeva is the Bhegavan; more praise-worthy is His glory."

"Brahman alone is the most praise-worthy".

Or Jyeshta means "He is the oldest of all beings" since He existed before all of them. "Jya" is also substituted for 'Vriddha' when 'ishtan' and 'eeyas' affixes follow.

In the Sabha Parva (Mahabharata)-

"He is the subtle Prakriti or Primeval cause and the eternal Agent (Kartaa). He is also greater than all beings. So (Bhagavan) Achyuta is considered the oldest". (68)

70 (199). Prajaapatih—Lord of the Everfree Angels. Who are they and what is His relationship with them?

The answer is given by the word 'Prajaapati'. The Suris (or the Ever-free Angels) are the Prajas (here) who are infinitely superior to the bound souls and freed souls.

"The wise souls fall at the feet of the Supreme Lord who is Truth Incarnate and who is ever shining as a Ray in the midst of rays."

"Him whom the wise Ever-free Angels realise in the depths of the ocean and Who is in that great imperishable place".

'The free souls reside in Him who is far superior to the Universe".

The use of the locative denotes the lordship (Adhirisvara). The locative affix 'adhi' is used to signify rulership of the country. The Panchalas are in Brahmadatta. That is to say that Brahmadatta is the protector of the Panchala kingdom.

In Vishnu Purana in the episode of the churning of the Milky Ocean the praise of Lakshmi by Indra begins with the following verse and is elaborately described.

"This Lakshmi is eternal, the universal Mother and its ever in union with Vishnu. Just as Vishnu pervades all things She also does, O best of Brahmins."

Brahma Purana begins by saying "Her power is invincible and awe-inspiring and She is considered as the power of Vishnu Himself. She is the Supreme Being who lives in the lotus-like heart of all beings of the universe and She is endowed with diverse forms. Her name is Prana or life. She is the mother of all Mantras and is the eternal Mother of the Universe".

Then it says: "She is the Goddess, dark like broken collyrium, is free from (bad) qualities and is like Ether."

"Likewise Lakehmi is His Supreme Power and She is endowed with the quality of Mercy. She is called the Supreme Prakriti and possesses the six qualities, knowledge and others".

Lakshmi is the supreme, unique and eternal Sakti of Bhagavan; She is His second and transforms Herself into diverse forms, high and low.

She has innumerable names and is the head of the Sakti-Chakra—the wheel of powers. She stands steady, pervading the entire universe, moving and non-moving."

"She is eternal and inseparably associated with Bhagavan Vaspideva, who is the Master of great glory, who is endowed with six qualities, and who is all powerful." She is like the moonlight of the cool-rayed moon: She is one with Him, yet remains distinct. She pervades the Universe and is the very embodiment of all Saktis.

She is endowed with all glory and qualities, and is eternal. Her charma is the same as that of Bhagavan. She is the life-giving Sakti of all beings on earth. She is the source of all Saktis and is the sublime element in all."

Lakshmi-sahasra speaks of Lakshmi thus; and other texts also must be written. There again it is stated:

"All the Saktis that have emanated from Lakshmi are always pervading the entire Universe. They remain, under the command of Sri. as the cause. Therefore when Lakshmi, the Mother of the Universe and the beloved consort of Bhagavan Achyuta is pleased with some one, these Saktis themselves highly pleased, bestow prosperity which he desires."

He is called Madhusudana because He is the controller of all beings and because he bestows undisputed prosperity by slaying the Asuras. The suffix 'Lyu' is added to the root 'sood' which comes under the group of verbs beginning with 'Nandi'. Similarly the names Nandana (530), Vardhana (262), Madana, Sankarshana (556), Janardana (128) ere words which have the 'Lyu' suffix in the end. The Arsha interpretation is as follows:

"He is Madhu-sudena, because He guides all Tattvas and also because He is the slayer of Madhu".

Or there is another interpretation:—He who always attracts the sense-organs of Ever-free souls to Himself without any obstacle.

"Madhu is the name of the sense-organ. Since He draws them all to Himself He is Madhusudena." (74)

75 (36). Isvarah-The Ruler.

He is Isvara because His desire is un-impeded in that boundless world of Supreme Bliss. Vide—

"His desires are true and His will also is true."

"He has self-control and goes wherever He wants." (75)

76 (909). Vikramee-The most powerful.

The name Vikrama signifies that His nature is such that it dispels all possibility of anything going against His desire or will. The suffix 'ini' added to the word Vikrama shows that the quality is great, praise-worthy and eternal. Vide—

"He creates and destroys the world by His mere will. When such is His power, should He make any great effort to put down His enemies?" And such other texts also. (76)

77. Dhanvee-The wielder of the bow.

He is Dhanvee, because He always has the celestial bow, Sarnga by name, quite suited to His unexcelled valour. Here also the affix 'ini' has been added in the sense of having. Dhanvee indicates that He has all the Celestial weapons.

"He is the wielder of the bow Sarnga. He is Hrishikesa. Furusha and Purushottama. He is invincible and wields the sword. He is Vishnu as well as Krishna endowed with great strength."

"Arrows of different shapes and a bow of huge size follow Kakutstha (i.e. Rama). All of them have assumed the bodies of human beings."

"Therefore, O kingl?Bhagavan Narayana, the wielder of the mighty bow is the Creator and Destroyer (of the universe)".

"The two kinds of Ahamkara, known as the Bhootaadi and Indrivaadi, which stand in the forms of Sankha and Sarnga, are held by the Lord,"

78. Medhaavee-The Omniscient.

He is endowed with the quality of innate omniscience which is boundless, eternal, natural and appropriate to His greatness. The word Medhaavee has been formed by the addition of the suffix 'Vini' to Medhaa (knowledge) in the sense quoted above by the rule: "After a stem ending in 'as', and after the words 'maayaa', 'medhaa' and 'sraj', comes the affix 'vini' in the sense of possession."

79. Vikramah—He who moves about on the bird (Garuda).

A. This name signifies that He goes about here and there as He likes in a playful mood riding on Garuda, who is the King of birds and the embodiment of the three Vedas.

"May we approach and meditate upon Garuda of golden afeathers who is the subordinate of the Supreme Purusha (i.e. Bhagavan). May that Garuda inspire us".

82. Duraadharshah - Who is unassailable.

On account of the profundity of His character Bhagavan, like the ocean, cannot be overcome by any one. Vide—

"He is mind-made (i.e. He is realised only by the mind), has Prene for His body, light for His form; He wills the truth, is like the Akasa, is all-action, is all desires, all sweet odours, all tastes, has appropriated all this (set of qualities) and does not speak since there is no one whom He has to respect or please."

"He is the Supreme God and is profound (by nature."

"Like the deep ocean, Bhagavan is ever imperturbable".

"He resembles the Ocean by virtue of His profound nature,"; and texts like these.

Here are some Vedic passages which are relevant to this section;

"That is the supreme abode of Vishnu."

"In that Parama-Akasa (i.e.) Sri Vaikunta, which is indestructible";

"In the Heaven the Muktas attain (all greatness)."

"That resplendent world is mine."

"The Celestial place which is undecaying and immeasurable."

"Come to that heavenly abode for eternal stay giving up all your worries."

"He entered that resplendent world that pertains to Vishnu."

"Time with all its divisions of kalaa, muhurta etc. are never the cause of any mutation of that sublime World of His."

"That is the Supreme world of Released Souls." By these texts and those quoted already in the course of the explanation of the several names, it is proclaimed that Sriman Narayana's Transcendental World (i.e. Sri Valkunta), like His own essential nature and qualities, is beyond the away of time, indestructible, devoid of all transmutations; is beyond the range of Tamo-guna (i.e. the dark Prakriti), eternal and a place from which there is no return for those who reach it,

"That is only one without a second",

"Then there was neither the sentient, nor the non-sentient". By the words only one in the Mantre the doubt may arise if nothing else exists except Bhagsvan. But the supreme Transcendental World—Sri Vaikunta—is not nullified by this since that world also is eternal and unique. In that Sri Vaikunta, Bhagavan Narayana is with His Celestial Consorts, Sri and Bhumi. He is on a Celestial Couch which is in a Celestiel Hali about which we learn from the Paryanka Vidya in the Kaushitaki Upanishad and others; Service to Bhagavan is being done by the Eternally free Angels like Ananta, Vainateya (i.e. Garuda) and Vishvaksena about whom mention has been already made. Thus the supreme sovereignty and the universal rulership which is for the benefit of the world and which is the great secret of the Vedas, has been delineated.

। ' पञ्चश्चनितमयो देव: बहिनोंकिश्वरेश्वर:। आस्ते स्वानन्दभावेन परमध्योग्नि सुस्थित:।।'' इति च ।। (82)

This is clearly stated in the Saiva Purana narrated by Vayu --

"The Lord of the universe dwells in the Supreme Region of Vaikunta along with Lakshmi. The incomprehensible Paramatma is there with His devotees as well as the devotees of those devotees."

The Vishnu Tattva says — "The Lord whose body is composed of the five Saktis (Celestial Powers) and who is the Ruler of the rulers of the outside world' dwells in the Supreme Region (Vaikunta) replete with Bliss in the enjoyment of self." (The five saktis (or powers) are—Time, knowledge, action, desire and life.)

83 (536). Kritajnah-He who is grateful.

This name signifies that the Lord remembers the little good will shown to Him by the human beings in the world, despite the fact that they have forgotten the natural relationship between them (viz. that He is their Master and they are His servants); and they think, that all things belong to them; and are acting as though they are independent due to their ignorance from beginningless time. "The affix 'ka' comes after a verbal root that ends in 'ea' when there is no upasarga (preposition) preceding it (and when the object is in composition with it." The names 'Brahmajna' (674), 'Praanadah' (66, 323, 409, 956) and others come under this rule. The declaration (of Sri Krishna in Gite) is as follows:

"If a man, even of exceedingly wicked conduct, (worships me without, resorting to anyone else,) he must be esteemed (and honoured) as being indeed righteous. For he is rightly resolved."

In the case of such a devotee Lord does not see anything that He can do by way of return for his good act.

"That cry for help uttered aloud by Draupadi even from a distance calling me "Govinda"—that cry is never away from my mind like a debt that has increased with the interest accumulated on it." (83)

84. Kritih-He is Himself that act.

That virtuous act of the Jivas owes its origin to the Lord who is pleased. Vide —

"He makes that person do virtuous acts whom He wants to lift up from the worlds of material existence."

"And the affix 'Ktin' comes after a root when the sense is that of an appellative, the word being related to the verb from which its name is deduced as a Karaka, but not as an agent Karaka. Here it is with reference to a word in the feminine gender. 'Bhuti' (636) 'Siddhi' (99) and others also come under this group.

87. Saranam—The Refuge.

He is the Refuge for all without a difference. The word 'Saranam' is derived from the root 'sr' which signifies protection with the addition of the suffix 'Lyut'. Karanam (380), Kasranam (381), Pramaana (430, 959) and other names also have been similarly formed.

He is the means not conditioned by any limiting adjuncts.

88 Sarma-Bliss.

Sarma is His name. He is Sarma, i.e. Bliss which is the highest goal to be attained. The suffix 'Manin' has been added to denote the sense of happiness. Vide—

The word is derived from the root 'Laa' (to take or accept). The suffix 'Ka' is placed after a root, the final letter of which is 'aa' when it is preceded by a preposition (Vi+aa+laa+k=Vysalah)

He is Pratyayah since one places confidence in Him. For He makes all have confidence in Him.

Vide-"That Deity who reveals knowledge about Himself".

In Vishnu-Tattva:- "O Brahmin: That Supreme Person (Purushottama) should be relied upon more and more."

Sri Krishna Himself says in Sabha Parva (Mahabharata)

Sarvesvareh — He who reaches all.

He is called Sarvesvarah because He quickly reaches all those who have taken refuge in Him, whether they are qualified or not in order to avoid delay in dispelling their uneasiness. The affix 'varat' comes after the root 'vas' (to pervade) when the word formed from it refers to having the power of granting success soon, and the penultimate letter 'a' of 'as' is replaced by 'ee' and thus (ee+s+vara) the word 'isvara' is formed.

102. Vrishas-kepih - Veraha, the Dharma Incarnate.

It is being declared that Achyuta is no other than the Dharma-Varaha. Such is the etymology given by the ancient seers:

"Kepi is the sublime Versha and Vrisha is Dharma. Therefore I am Vrishaskapi. Kasyapa, the Prajapati (the secondary creator) declared about me thus." (102)

This Bhagavan is the spring from which flow the blesssings to His devotees. About Him the Sestres say:—

"Therefore the Purusha is greater (than all)".

"Janardana is, therefore, superior."

As revealed by these texts. He is Ameyaatmaa; i.e., His essential nature cannot be comprehended by any one that it is this much. (103)

104. Sarva-yoga-vinissritah—He who can be attained by all means.

To the question "How is He great?" the answer is Sarva-yoga-vinissritah. Through the practice of all the Yogas (i.e. means) laid down in the Sastras as well as those determined by one's own intelligence, which are very much like the great secrets propounded by the Vedas, it is possible to attain Him. Or it may be said He is easily attainable. Vide-

"Paramatma, the Lord of the Universe, is ever with that person who realises Him by means of comprehension through his mind alone, becoming pleased with the enjoyment of His (Paramatma's) glory."

In Paushkara (Samhita) it is stated-

In Vishnu Tattva— "If Bhagavan Madhava accepts a person who is devoted to Him, though only by mind, is it possible to determine that only this amount of his misery has been wiped out and not more than that?" (104)

He is called Rudra because He makes His devotees shed tears of joy with their hearts moved by His fascinating form and diverse virtuous set. The word Rudra means one who makes others cry'. The root 'Rod' (to shed tears) takes the affix 'Rak' and there is the 'elision of the causative sign 'ni'. Vide-Sri Vishnu Tattva:

119. Suchisravaah-He who listens to the pure words.

He is Suchi-sravash since He surely listens to the words of His devotees.

"O Dhananjaya! (Arjuna!) I listen here to all that is pure and agreeable to hear. I do not heed to what is sinful. Therefore I am known as 'Suchisravaah.'.

That alone is pure which is offered with devotion. Vide -

"I ate the good and pure food offered with devotion by Vidura".

120. Amritah—The Ambrosia.

He is known as Amrita, because He is sweet to the devotees to an unlimited extent, or because He wards off old age and death to them, or because they never get satiated in spite of their constantly deing service to them.

"When the sages saw Janardana, they never got satiated as with nectar," (120)

121. Saasvatah Sthaanuh—He who is eternal and steady

The nectar, which is the essence of the Ocean, is known as such because of its having just a little of the above-mentioned power. But Bhagavan is different from it, because He is Sasvata and Sthanu (Eternal and steady). By Himself He is eternal and cannot be taken away from those who are enjoying Him. He is the object of enjoyment to those who never think of returning to the world of mortals for rebirth. That other nectar (obtained from the ocean) is not only transitory, but can be taken in only once.

The doctrine of the Bhagavatas holds that the Supreme Brahman has three aspects, Para, Vyooha and Vibhava.

Amongst them, the Para is that form which is not conditioned by any limiting adjuncts and which is not the effect of another object. It is endowed with the six qualities (knowledge, strength etc.) It is like a great ocean with surging waves. It has a world of enjoyment which is boundless and eternal, and in which it exercises undisputed sovereignty. That again is the object of attainment for the released souls.

व्यूहः च मुमुक्षु-सिसृक्षया प्रदेय-सृष्टि - स्थिति - लयाः शास्त्र-तदर्थं-तरफलानि द्यानाराधने लीला च इति ईदृश-कार्योपयुक्त-विभक्त-परगुणरूप - व्यापारशीकर-व्यूह्-निर्वाहित-लीलाविभूतिकं मुक्तिसाधकं चतुर्धा अवस्थानम् ।

The Vyuha (or Emanation) is in four forms (Vasudeva Samkarshana Pradyumna and Aniruddha) assumed by Bhagavan with a desire for the creation of persons who have a longing for release. They are in charge of the work of creation, sustenance and destruction; they propound the Sastras, explain their significance and give the fruits in accordance with the rules laid down therein; they also teach the method of meditation and worship of Bhagavan, and other things which pertain to the Leele or sport of Bhagavan. The six qualities of the Para Rupa are allocated amongst the four Vyuhas and each has its own form and duties. They are the means for the attainment of salvation.

The Vibhava is that group of manifestations of the Lord which are taken by His own will, which are like the Vyuhas, which are of the same species as god, man, animal and so on, and which belong to the same class as His own glory.

Vide the Saatvata (Samhita) which begins thus (with the delineation of the Para or the Transcendental form):

"The Lord has a body endowed with all the six qualities. He shines with intense brilliance and luminosity, and has hands and feet all around. This is called Para-rupa which is unique, which is the support of all and which is all-pervasive. From this emerge three other forms (Samkarshana, Pradyumna and Aniruddha) which are distinguished by the possession of knowledge and other qualities alloted to each one of them and which bestow the fruit, namely Beatitude. These are known as Vyuhas or Emanations.

The Vibhava is of two kinds Mukhya and Anuvritti (i.e. Vibhava and Vibhavantara). They are also endowed with knowledge and other qualities. There are diverse forms of this Vibhava and their worship confers the fruits, viz. joy here and bliss in the other world.

In them, (1) some like Matsya and Kurma are direct manifestations; (2) in some incarnations, the Lord enters into the bodies of distinguished sages like Bhargava Rama (Parasurama), Krishna-dvaipaayana (Vyasa) etc. In other Vibhavas He invests His Sakti for some period in some persons as in the case of Puranjaya and others. There are yet others in which He manifests Himself in idols as for instance in the Archavatara (or the Incarnation in Icons.) Thus there are four aspects (beside the Para-rupa)

ननु बह्यादयोऽपि भगवत्त्रादुर्भावाः करूपन्ताम्, तदभेदो-पदेशात्। तदिदं जड-जिल्पतम्, अस्मदादेः तृणादेश्च तत्त्रादुर्भावत्व-प्रसङ्गात्। अस्ति हि सर्वस्य अभेदव्यपदेशः । "सर्वं खलु इदं बह्यः" इत्यादिः। नियमेन तेषां ब्रह्मादीनां भगवदवतार-गणनामु अभेरगणनात्, देव-मनुष्यादिवत् सृष्टि-प्रकरणेषु सृज्यतया परिगण-नाच्च। प्रत्युत तेषां प्रादुर्भावेश्यः भेदव्यपदेशाः, प्रादुर्भावशब्द-विस्थाणेन प्रादुर्भावान्तर-शब्देन निर्देशाः, भगवद्विभूतिलेशोद्भवत्व-तत्त्राद्भाविष्येष - अधीन - वृत्तित्वादि - व्यवहाराश्च्राभगदघ्छास्तेषु बहुतम् उपलम्यन्ते। (अतः एव हि तेषां प्रादुर्भावेश्यो भेदः तद्विभूतित्वं च शास्त्रितम्।)।।

Here an objection is raised by some—Brahma and others also may be conceived to be the incarnations of Bhagavan, since it is taught in some places that there is no difference between them and the Paramatma. This should be treated, as the prattling of a dunce. If that view is accepted, people like us and grass and other things also will have to be taken as incarnations. For in regard to all these things also, it is stated that there is no difference between them and Brahman. Vide -"All this is indeed Brahman". Moreover Brahma and others are not as a rule included in the class of the Incarnations of Bhagavan; but they are classified along with gods, human beings and others as created beings in scriptures where creation is referred to. On the contrary there are several statements in the Bhagavat-Sastras (i.e. Pancharatra-literature) to the effect that Brahms, Rudra and Indra are different from the Praadurbhaevas or Incarnations of Paramatma; that they are mentioned as Preadurbhaavaantara as distinguished from the Pradurbhava of Bhagavan; that they are created by a fraction of the great glory of Bhagavan, and that their very existence and activities are dependent on the Incarnations of Bhagavan. (It is therefore established in the Sastras that they are distinct from the Praedurbheeva (or Avatara) of Bhagavan and that they are His possessions).

in Paushkara Samhita (it is stated) -

"The red-eyed Bhagavan, Adhokshaja, is the teacher of all Knowledge. The four-faced Brahma who is the embodiment of learning and who is worshipped by all the worlds, is only a tiny Amsa (part) of Bhagavan and he is the subordinate of Bhagavan, since he propounds the knowledge he got from Bhagavan to all in the world".

The word 'yasya' (whose) indicates that Brahma is only a part of Vishnu in His incarnation as Kapila and the word 'Visvavyanjana takshana' indicates He is the subordinate of Vishnu. That the Amsa signifies the foremost part is stated by the Brahma Sutra—"It (the individual soul) is a part of Para Brahman), because its distinction from Para Brahman is taught (by the Sastras)".

"इसु-क्षीर-गुडादीनां माधुर्यस्य अन्तरं महत्" इतिवत्।

Similarly the emanation of the other god (i.e. Rudra) from Anala-saayee (i.e. Bhagavan who lies on fire) is described as follows:

"Maharudra, who is also known as Sankara brings about the destruction of the universe always at the end of the Yugas. He too is a distinct emanation (Praedurbhava-antara) of the Lord who is Analasaayee and who is also at the base of all things supporting them".

The word 'Antara' in 'Praadurbhaava-antara' signifies bheda or difference as in the case of the word 'antara' in the following verse: "Ikshu-kshira-gudaadeenaam maadhuryasya antaram mahat' (i.e. "There is a vast difference in the sweetness) of sugarcane, milk and jaggery".

Praedurbheava (emanation) and Praedurbhava-antera (other emanation) have been defined as being clearly different from each other.

"Those which are produced purely by the act of Bhagavan are known as Praedurbhaevas. But Praedurbhaeva-antaras (other incarnations) are brought about by 'amsa' (a small part) of Bhagavan."

In this sloke the phrase "Purely by the act of Bhagavan Himself" (svavyaapaara-vasaat) signifies that it is the act of the unique Self (Bhagavan). The use of the words 'But' (tu) and 'amsa-vasa' shows that there is distinction between Pardurbhaya and Praadurbhaavaantara and that the latter is subordinate to the former.

Again they are defined similarly elsewhere-

"Preadurbhava (incarnation) is the change of the body of Bhagavan without giving up His own nature. But that Reality which emanates from an amsa (or a part) of Bhagavan is known as Preadurbhaava-antara (Other incarnation)".

तथा मुख्य-औपचारिक-विभागश्च--

" प्रादुर्भावान्तरै: साध प्रादुर्भावेः द्विज! अखिलैः । अध्ययेः प्रभवाक्येस्तु गोणमुख्ये: सुरेश्वरैः ॥ " इति ।

Similarly there is the subdivision of Mukhya and Aupachaarika (Principal and Secondary) in these. Vide—

"O Brahmin! All these Praedurbhaevas and Praedurbhaevaantaras as well as the creation and Dissolution, Gods etc. are of two kinds, principal and secondary."

तथा मुमुञ्जभिः प्रादुर्भावानाम् आराध्यत्वं प्रादुर्भावान्तराणां आराधन-निषेधश्च

Likewise with reference to those desirous of Release it has been laid down that they should worship the Praadurbhaavas (Incarnation of Bhagavan) and they should not worship the Praadurbhavaantaras (other Incarnations).

"When persons are initiated into the Mantras and are invested with the qualification for the worship of Achyuta for the atteinment of the state of Salvation, the worship of gods other than Achyuta is prohibited for them. Bhagavan Achyuta in His forms named Vyooha (Emanations) or Vibhavas (Incarnations) alone already mentioned should be worshipped."

The worship of Skanda, Rudra, Mahendra and the like is prohibited in regard to them. Knowing this a person should not engage himself in the worship of all and sundry, "(and should not bring about confusion in devotion)."

In Sri Sattvata Samhita It has been clearly declared that the Consorts (Sri, Bhoomi and Neela), Ornaments (Crown, Srivatsa, Sankha and Chakra), and attendants (Garuda, Ananta and Vishvaksena) are all instruments for the enjoyment of the Bliss of Bhagavan and therefore form part of His body. Time, Brahma, Siva and others are instrumenta for the creation of the material world which are conducive to the joy of Lila (or sport). Vide—be "In this way the hosts of gods alone with the numerous Mantres and their accessories, stand clinging themselves to the body of Bhagavan.

I shall now state the foremost group of gods who are the instruments in the creation of the worlds, who are endowed with magnificent bodies and who carry out the commands of Bhagavan.

Time is under His control. So are the Sastras with their accessories, gods that preside over knowledge, the ocean, Siva with his hosts, the group of Prajapatis, Indra with his followers, the seven ancient Sages and other seers, the planets slong with the clusters of stars, the clouds, all the serpents, the lovely bevy of the Apsarasas (divine demsels), medicinal herbs, animals, all the sacrifices along with their accessories, the Vidyas, higher and lower. Fire end Air, the Sun and the Moon, Water and Earth. The Tattvas, twenty four in number, are the chief components in the composition of the material world. This world is Pradhana which is all-pervasive and non-sentiant by nature. With the recitation of the Mantras and the meditation on the Lord of the Mantras this also becomes an object of worship."

धतः श्रीजन्मरहस्ये चतुर्मृखादि-प्रसंगः श्रीपौष्करे प्रादुर्भाव-विभूतितया अन्तर्भाव-निबन्धनोऽनुसन्धेयः। एवं च ध्यामोह एव सिपूर्तिसास्य - पंडितन्यायः पंण्डितंमन्यानाम्। सर्वं च एतत् तत् तत्त्र स्थापिष्यते।। (122)

Therefore the reference to the four-faced (Brahma) end others in the Janma-Rahasya in Sri Paushkara must be understood due to their being included amongst the possessions of Praedur-bhaava (i.e. Incarnations of Bhagavan). Consequently the theory propounded by the wiseacres that the Trimurtis (Brahma, Vishnu and Siva) are of equal status is only due to their ignorance. All this will be established with arguments in the proper places as occasion arises.

The transcendental nature (Paratva) of Paramatma has been spoken of mostly by the names ending with 'Versacoha' (122). Generally speaking here ends the portion comprising the two questions and replies regarding the goal of attainment and their reply. The questions put were "(1) Kim ekam dalvatam loke? (2) Kim vaapi ekam paraayamam?"—which is the supreme deity and which is the supreme goal of attainment?

Hereafer with the question "Stuvantah Kam?" (Eulogisin. whom)? etc. which refers to the meens of attainment and the answers thereto begin the 'Vyooha' (Emenations of the Lord) Amongst them (which are four in number—Vasudeva, Samkarshana, Pradyumna and Aniruddha), Vasudeva may be taken to have been dealt with when the Para aspect was spoken of.

With the names beginning with 'Mahaa-tapaah' Samkar-shana (the second in the Vyoohaa) is going to be dealt with.

Samkarshana, Pradyumna and Aniruddha,

123. Mahaa-tapaah—He who is endowed with great knowledge.

He has knowledge which is to be highly revered. Vide—
"Of Him who is possessed of 'Tapas'!" 'Tapas' signifies great knowledge. All the six qualities are going to be delineated. Out of them two qualities knowledge and strength are associated with Samkarshana. Here knowledge is interpreted as the desire for taking in people so that there may be the cessation of the miseries of the world which they have been having from time immemorial.

174. Sarvagah -- He who reaches all.

By His strength which displays His capacity to support, Bhagavan supports, like the Atman, all those whom He has taken in and thus He reaches all. So He is called Sarvagah.

"The 'Da' affix comes after the verb 'gam' (to go) when in composition with the following words as its objects—anta, atyanta, adhva, doora, paara, sarva, and ananta. His name 'Samkarshama' (556) signifies that He draws all to Himself and so has it been etymologically derived.

125. Sarva-vit-He who obtains all.

Then with a desire to create all that had been drawn to Him, (Bhagavan as) Pradyumna obtains all through creation. Herein lies His greatness in the delightful display of His power to create the Universe. (125)

126. (285) Bhaanuh—He who shines.

Though Bhagavan creates all things, He remains unchanged and shines. The affix 'Nu' is added to the roots 'Bhaa' (to shine) and 'Daa' (to give)". (Bhaa + nu = Bhasnu).

"He shone by Himself" is the relevant text.

It is His virility which keeps, Him unchanged (when He changes all). (126)

Next the Protector Aniruddha is refered to by the name Vishvaksena. Yaska derives the name as follows: "inena seha vartate—senali". He is Senah (Sesvarah) because He remains with 'ina' (the master). All beings in all the Worlds have a protector in Him for them. Here His Sakti (Splendour) which shows His capacity is indicated. (127)

128. Janaardanah—The destroyer of persons (who are antagonistic). He is konwn as Janaardana since He destroys without expecting any outside help those persons who are antagonistic to the protection of people. Vide —

"He is Janaardana because He protects the people from Dasyus (demons)," This is Tejas or power to overcome enemies without standing in need of external help. The testricted number of qualities in the forms (Samkarshana, Pradyumna and Aniruddha) signifies that only those qualities ere manifested, in action (while all others are latent). But the qualities of Bhagavan are never concealed.

Vide-It is stated in Mura Samhita.

"Knowledge, lordship, splendour – all these qualities of Bhagavan are not in a less measure, but are in full. The Supreme Soul has four forms (Vasudeva, Samkarshana, Pradyumna and Aniruddhe). He knows all and sees all. He is the Lord of all and is omnipotent. He is possessed of immense riches. He is free from the knots of Karma and is not wanting in anything. He is a trusted friend of all. He has all under His control, but He is not under the control of any one. He is beginning-less and also endless. He is devoid of slumber and fear, wrath and lethargy. He is bereft of desires and ignorance, fatigue and disease. He is free from foibles and unwelcome things and He is spotless.

Those who have realised that Bhagaven is possessed of these qualities, have understood Him correctly; and those who have not realised in this way, have not understood Him. Therefore Bhagavan Vasudeva is both endless and boundless. Thus He stands supreme by virtue of the qualities of endlessness and boundlessness, Such is the text in every Section."

129. Vedah-The propounder of the Vedas.

Again by the name 'Vedah' it is stated that Samkarshana is the propounder of the Sastras. "And after a verb ending in a consonant comes the effix 'Ghajn' (when the word to be formed is masculine and related to the verb as an instrument)."

(VId + a + h (Vedah). (By which all is known). The Sruti declares—

"He who taught the Vedas to Him (i.e. Brahma)." The Means (for Salvation, Agamas (or Scriptures), Path, Leader, Brahmana and Acharya (or Teacher) are the various names by which Samkarshana is known.

130. (133) Vedavit-The knower of the Vedas.

He is 'Vedavit' since He knows the meaning of the Vedas without doubt or mistake. Bhegavan Himself said (in the Gita)—

"I am indeed the knower of the Vedas," (130)

131. Avyangah---He who is not bereft of the limbs (of the Vedas),

Bhagavan is known as 'Avyangah' since He is not bereft (of the knowledge) of the Chandas, Kalpa and other accessories of the Vedas which He Himself has created. (131)

The Vedas with their innumerable branches are said to be His body since they reveal the inner-most secrets of Bhagavan.

"He, who does not know the Veda, does not know that Infinite Brahman".

"He shakes His body composed of the Vedas".

Or the name Vedaanga can be taken to signify that the Srutis and Smrities are His body since they are His commands. Vide—

The next three names establish the omniscience of Bhegavan.

- 135. Lokaadhyakshah-He who controls the world.
- 136. Suraadhyakshah -- He who controls the gods.
- 137. Dharmaadhyakshah—He who controls Dharma.

The word 'Loka' signifies those who are 'eligible for the practice of dharms. 'Sura' signifies the gods who are worshipped with the Dharma. 'Dharma' signifies the means of worship prescribed (by the Sastras). The Adhyaksha or the presiding Delty over all these is Bhagavan as Aniruddha who closely observes so that He can grant the fruits of the Dharmic acts. He also sees that fruits are not obtained by those who do not practise the Dharma and that those who practise it do not go without the fruit. Hence He is known by the names of Dharmaina (the knower of Dharma), Upasyajnah (He who knows the means), Adhyakshah (the Presiding Deity), Satyasandhah (Highly Truthful); He alone bestows the knowledge of all this.

138. Krita-akritah—The grantor of the fruits in this world and in the other.

Dharma is of two kinds t (1) Pravarataka dharma (which prolongs the Samsara) and (2) Nivartaka dharma (which puts an end to it). Bhagavan is called 'Krita' by secondary sense since He grants transitory fruits to the Pravartaka dharma (which is this-worldly); and He, is called Akrita since He confers eternal fruit on those who practise Nivartaka-dharma. Therefore Bhagavan is called 'Kritaakritah'. (138)

140, (773). Chatur-vyoohah-He who is with four forms

How can one have four forms? The answer is 'Chaturvyoohah'. For the purposes mentioned above and for showing the forms that have to be meditated upon and worshipped.
Bhagayan manifests Himself in four forms one of which is endowed with all the six qualities and the other three with two in each, which have their own limbs, colour, ornaments, weapons, vehicles, banners, etc., and which are also in the four—fold divine states of Jaagrat etc.

Note: The four-fold-states are: Jaagrat-Wakeful State, Syapna-State of dreams; Sushupti-Dreamlessideep sleep; and Tureeye-the fourth and final State. Each of this states is in groups of four. In the first group the external senses function; in the second group they do not function, only the mind is active; in the third group even the mind does not function, there is only breathing; in the fourth group even the breath is suspended. In the Paramapada there is a column (pillar) composed of Suddha-sattva material which is known by the name of Visakha-sthambha. There are four parts in the pillar from the base upwards and on the four sides of each part are the four Vyuha-forms-Vasudeva, Samkarshama, Pradyumna Aniruddha. The four parts with four Vyuhas in each correspond to the four stages of development that may be found in the worshipper who meditates on them.) (140)

He is possessed of four teeth in His transcendental form which is the source from which all the four Vyuhas or Emanations emerge. Hence Bhagavan is known as Chaturdamshtra. The possession of four large teeth is considered to be the special mark of a great person. Vide—

"Chatur-dasa - sama - dvandvah Chatur - damshtrah Chatur - gatih."

(The eyelashes, nostrils, eyes, ears, lips, chest, elbows, wrist, knees, testicles, hips, hands, legs and heels) — these fourteen, parts which are in pairs are mutually alike; Rama has four broad teeth. His gait is of four kinds like those of the lion, tiger, elephant and buil). (141)

Vishnu

147. Jegadeadijah—He who was bein at the beginning of the universe.

Next the Vibhavas are being dealt with. Vibhavas, the incarnation as (Vishnu) the second of the Trinity is signified by the name Jagadasdijah. He is born as one of the Trinity—the three deitles that are at the beginning of the world.

The affix 'da' comes after the verb 'Jen' (to be produced) with a past signification when the word in composition with it is in the Locative case. Aadi—jeatah = Aadiiah.

The names Medhajah (759) and Gadaagrajah (770) and others also are governed by this grammatical rule.

Vide-The words of Brahme:

"By the grace of Achyuta I am the creator of the beings of the world; by His wrath Rudra is the destroyer; born of the Supreme Being between the two (myself and Rudra) Parama Purusha is the sustainer of the universe."

The gods say in the Udyoga Parva (of Mahabhajata) the same thing:

455. Praamsuh-The Tall.

In the same place He became very tall, "The words 'kharu' 'sanku' etc. are irregularly formed by the 'ku' affix. The root 'As' (Asnoti) gets the 'affix 'u' and a new letter 'num' (A+m+s+u-Amsuh). He is mentioned as ''All pervading' in the Mantra in praise of Him. Vide—

"When the water fell on His hand, Vamana became ex-Vemana (i.e He became tall). As He measured the earth, the moon and the sun were on His chest. When He measured the ether with His foot, they were at His navel."

"May that Vamana protect you always who in a trice became Trivikrama and measured all the three worlds by His foot and shone with sparkling weapons". And so on,

The Veda with the beat of drums proclaims this great deed by saying -

- "Vishau measured this (earth)."
- "Vishnu measured with three steps,"
- "This Vishnu measured this earth for getting the land (for Indra)"
- "The Lord measured the Earth in three steps."
- "Pravishnuh"-so He is called the Supreme Vishnu, (155)

156. Amoghah—He who is never purposeless.

He is known as Amoghah since no act of His is purposeless.

The Mantra in His eulogy says—"To Him of Infinite greatness". That is because He blessed without difference both Bali and Indra," Vide.

"In a trice did He extend His sublime grace to Sali and give him a position equal to that of Indra. And He also enabled the gods to partake of the offerings made in a sacrifice."

"Bali offered the water (in the hand of Vamana) and acquired lovable enjoyments. Even while remaining on the face of the earth, he obtained the status of a god as well as the rulership of the gods for one full Manvantara bereft of all anomies." And so on. (156)

157 (252), Suchih-Pure.

He is Suchih (Pure) since He does not expect anything in return for all the help. He gives. The words 'Rishi', 'Ruchi' and the like also come under this rule. After a verb ending in a consonant, but preceded by 'i' 'u' 'r' (long or short) and after the verbs 'Jnaa', 'Pree' and 'Kr' comes the affix 'ka' (a)—(suk + ka)

He is known as Veerahae—He is the slayer of the disputations men who put up fallacious arguments and who try to prevent men from meditating on Him.

The suffix 'Kvip' is added to the root 'han' (to kill), with some nouns in the Accusative case. The rule that prescribes, this suffix to the words Brahmen, Bhroona and Vritra is only general and can be extended to others also like 'Veera'.

The names Keemahaa (295), Krodhahaa (315), Bhagahaa (564) and the like have been similarly formed.

The Six Celestial Qualities of Bhagavan

171, (662) Ateendriyan—He who is beyond the range of the sense organs.

Next the Sage proceeds to examine the essential nature of Bhagavan who is sweet as the ocean of honey and endowed with qualities with the object of delineating the six important qualities which are the essence of the forms Para, Vyuha and Vibhava.

Bhagavan is Ateandriyah, because He is beyond the range of the instruments of knowledge. (171)

- 172. Mahaa-maayah—He Who is possessed of Maayea or wonderful power of enchantment.

How is He (said to be Ateendriya)? He has a great Maayaa which like a curtain conceals Him and which charms the minds of all those in the world who are not devoted to Him. Vide—

It will be shown later that this Maya is not Illusion. (172)

173. Mahotsaahah-He of great enthusiasm.

This name postulates the quality of lordship in Bhagavan as distinguished from the Isvara of the Sankhya-system who though endowed with knowledge, is yet a non-doer of acts, who is lethargic and indifferent. Bhagavan has a great zeel for doing acts which signify His fordship. Because of this ardour for work Bhagavan does all acts by a mere fraction of His independent will. There is no one above to direct He is also skilful in creating newer and newer objects of enjoyment in countless numbers and sizes, the means and methods of experiencing them for the sake of persons in accordance with the nature of their karmas, big or small, experienced or yet to be experienced. Though He is omnipotent and independent. He creates things endowed with qualities that are natural to them and possessed by them before. only a tiny part of an atom of a drop of His infinite ability that is seen in the capacity of Brahma and others to assume bodies of the size of an atom and so on. 174. Mahaa-balah He of immense strength.

He is Mahabalah (possessed of great strength) which distinguishes Him from other agents who are always in need of external assistance. Because of this strength He is never fatigued though engaged in unlimited activities. He stands firm on His own greatness and does not stand in need of external support. He bears all things without effort like His aver-blossoming splendour which can never be checked.

The Maulas state: "He makes the many multitudinous."

It is only a perticle of this strength that is seen in water, air, earth and other things. (174)

. 175. Mahas-buddhih—He of infinite knowledge.

He is Maha-buddhih (possessed of great knowledge) to refute the school of thought which holds the view that the cause of the world is not omniscient. The Sage says.

नि.—175. महाबुद्धिः महत् ज्ञानं स्वरूपं यस्य सा उच्यते ।

This omniscience of the Supreme Being is with reference to all objects far and near, in all places, at all times and of all nature. It is true because it is not doubtful or erroneous. also eternal because it is natural to Him and not tainted by pain; It is not the effect of Karma or desire. It does not stand in need of eye and other instruments of knowledge. If He uses His organs of sense, it is because of His free will. is lotus-eyed and the hearer of what is pure and faultless. He may use His eyes to see and ears to hear. Nor is there any restriction that the roops (form), rasa (taste) and the like can be cognised only by a particular sense-organ since He can do all things by all sense-organs. It is well-known that the eerpent amongst the creatures sees and hears with the eye alone. If that is the case (with the beings of lower strate) hew will it be impossible for the Omnipotent God to do it?

His perception is direct and clear like the vision of the asmalaka-fruit laid on the palm; and it is infallible since He can accomplish any thing. Vide—

"He has eyes on all sides and faces on all sides."

"He sees without eyes and hears without ears."

"He has everywhere eyes, heads and mouths".

The venerable Acharya Nathamuni has said:

"Who sees directly by perception and of His own accordall things simultaneously."

यत् केचित् सर्वज्ञम् अवजितरे---

। " एकेन तु प्रमाणेन सर्वेज्ञो येन कल्प्यते ।

Some people spoke in contempt of the Omniscient Being by saying—

"If it is imagined on the basis of one instrument of knowledge that there is an omniscient being, then that being can as well grasp by the eye alone sweetness and all such objects of sense-organs."

That is with reference to an omniscient being arrived at by Inference (Anumaana) by the Bauddhas. For that is the context there. Otherwise it will be opposed to the Sastras.

2 "नित्यश्चेत् अर्थवादत्वं तत्परे स्यात् अनित्यता।" इति शास्तीय-सर्वज्ञत्व-न्युदासनम् अत [एव अन्यपरोक्तं दुरुक्तं वा; चक्षुः-श्रवः-प्रभृतिषु काक-उलूक-गृधादिषु मन्त्रसिद्ध-औषध-तपः-प्रभावादि-संस्कृतेषु च करणानां ज्ञानकार्यं = न्यतिहार-तन्त्रता - प्रकर्षं - तारतम्य-दर्शनात् सार्वङ्ग-शास्त्रस्य अयोग्यार्थताऽपि दुवंदा। गुणान्तर-वैचित्न्येऽपि एषा एव दिक्। अस्य लवो बद्ध-मुक्त-नित्येषु चैतन्यम्।। (175)

"If you say that the eternity of the Supreme Being is only a preise, then it will amount to saying that it is not eternal."

Similarly the omniscience propounded by the Sastras will be nullified. Therefore the statement should be taken to signify something else or as incorrect. Moreover it is not correct to say that the statement in the Sastras about the omniscience (of the Supreme Being) is fictitious and wrong; for we see in the world that in the case of serpents and others of that species, in the case of crows, owls, eagles and other birds, in the case of men who have attained perfection in the mystic Mantras, and in the case of those who are preficient in medicine and in the practice of austerities, there is some uniqueness in the functions of their sense-organs of knowledge in a greater or less degree. The same can be said of the wonderful nature of the other qualities of Bhagavan. The knowledge in souls in bondage, released souls and Over-frae Angels is but a small fraction of this quality of Bhagavan. (175)

176. दक्षिभावम् आपद्यमान - दुश्धादि-कारणेश्यो भेदकं सत्यपि हेती अविकार-लक्षणं महत् वीर्यमस्य इति महावीर्यः । अगरु-मृग मद - कस्तूरिका-कुसुमामोदवत् सन्निधिमात्रेण निर्मर्योद - कार्यकारी हि अयम् । यथा—

176. Mahae-viryah- He of great virility.

Bhagavan has the quality of great virility by virtue of which He remains unchanged though there may be a cause for change. This quality distinguishes Him from milk and other things which become transformed into curd etc. Like the smell

177. Mahaa-saktih-Of immense power.

The name Mahae-sakti signifies that He has immense power to be the material and sentient cause as distinguished from the doctrine of the school of Pasupatas that Isvara is only the sentient cause and not the material cause as well. This power brings about the production of all things at all times, whather there are helpful accessories or not; it is capable of putting into use all the means; it is capable of changing the Prakriti which has been assumed as a part of His Body. When the capacity of insects like spider and others to be not only the santient cause but material cause also is undisputed, how can this power of an omniscient Supreme Being be a point of dispute? The change that is going on in Pradhaana (Primordial Matter), cure, wilk etc. every moment, is due to a particle of this power of Bhagevan. (177)

178. Mahaa-dyutih -- He of great splendour.

The name Mahaa-dyutih indicates that He has a great splendour which distinguishes Him from the other causes in the world which stand in need of assistance and that He does not require such a help. This effulgence is opposed to darkness (ignorance), both inner and outer and it is fascinating for those who are well-disposed and frightful for others. The justre in the Sun, gemete, is but a small drop of this-further action; and like the great rivers that flow towards the ocean carrying with them the excessive waters, these qualities shine in the Bhagavan who is unlimited. Very well-known is this greatness of Bhagavan- Vide—

"His supreme power is revealed, indeed, as being varied, natural and as being associated with knowledge, strength and action".

"He is the unique collection of splendour, strength, soversignty, great powers of knowledge, excellent heroism and other such qualities."

"Knowledge, power, strength, lordship, heroism, splendour—these in all their entirety are expressed by the word 'Bhagavan' and only evil (undesirable) qualities and other things are not." Bhagavat-Sastras (i.e. Pancharatra Samhitas) deal with this topic in all their entirety. Amiability, Love and other innumerable qualities also are treated as being included in these six qualities with a definite purpose. (178)

179. (662) Anirdesya-vapuh—He who is possessed of an indescribable body.

He has a body endowed with these six qualities and so He is Anirdesya-vapuh. Vide—

"The God who has a body endowed with six qualities and who has brilliance like that of glowing fire."

This has been indicated in the Maula Samhita also -

"In Bhagavan we see intellect, mind, body and limbs. From the texts of the Sastras also Bhagavan is seen as being possessed of intellect, mind, body and limbs."

"Those who are possessed of intellect, mind, body and limbs, are beings whose bodies are formed by the seven great elements (mahat, Ahamkaara and Pancha Bhutas). "Of what substance is the body of Bhagavan composed?" A doubt is raised if Bhagavan's body also is composed of these elements; and the reply is given—"Bhagavan's body is composed of Bhagavan's form itself." Of what is Bhagavan Himself composed? He is knowledge incarnate, tordship incarnate, power incarnate, like the glowing ember, of the burning khadira and silk-cotton trees that is fire on all sides, like pure honey, when drunk, that is sweet on all sides; like a bar of gold that is being polished is gold all round; and like a mension that will be attractive when observed from all angles. Similarly Bhagavan is entirely lordship and power in full. Whatever He wants to become He becomes." This is going to be declared as the topic of Pancopanishad (five upanishads). Just as the lustre of a gem is set off by a leaf of gold in the background, the splendour of Bhagavan endowed with six qualities is only enhanced by Pure Sattvaguna, but not, concealed as is the case with other objects by the Triguna (i.e. Prakriti composed of the three qualities Sattva, Rajas and Tamas.) This is the truth about Bhagavan".

Vishnu Purana says—"Regarding His form, colour etc. there is nothing that can be compared with them." That is to say His body is beyond comparison. (179)

Hamsa-Avateara

188. Suraanandah-Source of delight to the gods.

This name refers to the Hamsa Incarnation (Swan) of Aniruddhe who is the source of all Avataras. Since Bhagavan is their saviour in times of distress, the gods take delight in Him. (188)

Padmanabah

195. Bhujagottamah—The Master of the Serpant.

In the names Padmanabhah and Amaraprabhuh (48 and 49) mention was made of Padmanabha who is Aniruddha, the last of the Vyuhas (or Emanations). Here by the name Bhujagottemen that Padmanabha is being referred to who is the first among the manifestations of Bhagavan. He is uttema (the master) of Bhujaga (the serpent Adisesha); i.e. He who sleeps on the couch which is the body of Ananta (the Serpent). The rule is laid down for His meditation as "The great Lord possessed of a body of celestial consciousness lying on the Ananta-couch in mind."

in Aranya-Parva (Mahabharata):-

"Bhagavan Vishnu slept all alone on the waters on the vast body of (Ananta) the Serpent who is possessed of limit-less splendour."

MATSYA AVATARA (FISH INCARNATION).

Guruh Guru-tamo Dhaama Satyah Satya-paraakramah I Nimishah Animishah Sragvee Vaachaspatih Udaaradheeh II (22)

211. Guruh Guru-Tamah — The foremost among the Preceptors.

Next begins the Matsya Avatara (Fish Incarnation). He is the great Preceptor Who confers a knowledge of all Things.

"He is the Preceptor of even the ancient." is what the Hairanya-garbhas say about Him.

"Thou art worthy of respect and art a teacher greater (than all)."

The word 'Guru' is derived from the root 'gr' (to sound), "The affix 'ku' comes after the root 'kri' (to do) and 'gr' (to sound), 'U' is substituted in the place of 'r', and 'ra' follows such 'u'."

Here the word 'Guru-tamah' is an adjective that quelifies the name 'Guru' and not a separate name by itself. (211)

Bhagavan is called Dhama (the Resting Place) since He is the saviour like a helmsman who steers at the time of Deluge the boat carrying the seeds of all the transitory meving and non-moving objects.

The affix 'manin' is added to the root 'dhaain' under the grammatical rule: "The affix 'manin' comes after all roots."

Bhagavan is Stagues (possessed of a garland). Though He is in the form of an animal moving horizontally (here, fish in the Matsya-avatata), He has the Vaijayanti Garland which is always associated with Him and which is indicative of supremacy.

(Vaijayanti—the necklace of Bhagavan Vishnu (composed of five gems, viz, pearl, ruby, emerald, sapphire and diamond).

225. Sameeranah-He whose actions are delectable.

In this way His activities are to His own liking and to that of His devotees; hence He is called Sameerana.

The word 'Sameerana' is derived from the root 'eer' which means 'to move' or 'to shake'. The affix 'yuch' comes in the sense of the agent having such a habit etc. after intransitive verbs denoting motion or sound ('chalana-moving; 'eer'-going, or shaking). Pavana (292) and other words also are formed by this rule.

. Here are some verses from the Scriptures as the authority for what has been said before:

"Bhagavan took the form of a Fish and at once proceeded to the Rasaetala-loka (the Nether-world). He, the embodiment of the Vedas, brought from there the Vedas, to the place of Brahma.

Matsya-avatara (Fish Incarnation) should be meditated upon as follows:

"He is adorned by knowledge and other numerous qualities in the form of fins and shines with a proboscis shooting out like a horn. He has the intoxication of the Supreme Brahman rising out of Himself,

"He has a body which is spotless like the white pearls and which carries at the end of the Kalpas (aeons) the vast Earth which is in the form of a boat and which has in it groups of Prajapatis (Secondary creators). And He has the form of a fish with unwinking eyes and closed mouth." (225)

NAMES REMINISCENT OF THE PURUSHA SUKTA AND UPANISHADIC VIDYAS.

Next 'Sahasra-moordha' (The Thousand-headed) and other names of Bhagavan which are quite in consonance with the forms mentioned in the Para-vidyas) and described in the Purusha-sukta and other Vedic texts-all of which (texts) have been resuscitated by the Incarnation, viz. Matsya-avatara, which is an embodiment of Knowledge.

- 226. Sahasra-moordhaa The Thousand-headed.

  तत्कार्यं ज्ञान-किया सामर्थ्यानन्त्यं लक्ष्यते इति अभियुक्ताः; औचित्यात्, बहुशास्त्र-संगतेश्च ।
- 226. Sahasra-moordhaa-The heads, eyes and feet mentioned in these names are to be interpreted as including all organs of knowledge and action as being implicit. The word "Thousand" signifies that they are innumerable (and not only one thousand). That this is the meaning can be understood from the Vedic texts:

"He has eyes on all sides."

"Brahman is possessed of hands and feet everywhere."

Learned scholars worthy of respect have declared that these words (eyes and hands and feet on all sides) signify that Bhagavan is endowed with infinite capacity to know and act, which are the functions of those organs. Such an interpretation is not only appropriate, but also is in agreement with many Sastraic texts.

Time is always a toy for Bhagavan. By its divisions into past, present and future, it is responsible for the knowlege of an object as old or young. He controls it which brings about the union or separation of Prakriti and Purusha (Metter and Soul). It is also the cause of the six kinds of transmutations of Prakriti (viz. birth, existence, change, growth, decay and finally death).

तम् एके व्यवस्थितां प्रकृतेः परिणामपरंपशमाहुः; अपरे परमेश्वर-चेष्टा-समष्टिम्; अन्ये स्वतन्त्रम् :

Some say that Time is only the series of the transmutations of Prakriti (Matter) in a fixed order. Others opine that it is the sum-total of the activities of Paramesvara. Yet others are of the view that Time is an independent entity.

The passage in the Paushkera Sembita should be suitably interpreted. (Here is the passage.)

"Adhyaatma refers to Time, the Reality. Adhi-daivam is Parametma, who is the inner Soul of the Universe and Whose form is the cause of its creation and destruction. Adhi-bhoots should be understood as the three worlds composed of the five elements (Pancha-bhoota).

Time in this world of Avyakta-tattva is in the form of Adhyeatma. Adhi-daivam is 'liyaa' (worship). Adhi-bhuta is true enjoyment." (234)

235. Vahnih—The Bearer.

Since Bhagavan bears the Universe in the form of space, He is called Vahnih. The word 'vahni' is formed by the following grammatical rule: "The affix 'nit' comes after the roots 'vah', 'sri', 'yu' 'dru', 'glai', haa' and 'tvar'. (Vah+ni=Vahnih).

The foremost space is Parama-akasa (the Supreme Abode). Others like the sky, directions etc. are space only relatively and they are but a tiny corner in that foremost space. Vide—

"After (Vasudeva and other forms) the fourth part (viz. Ani-ruddha by name) came out in this world."

That thing is called space which is the cause of the comprehension of an object as 'this' and 'here'. And that is the gift of Bhagavan to all—the souls in bondage, the released souls, and the Ever-free souls (Nityas) (235)

236 (818) Anilah-The Giver of life-breath.

Bhagavan is called Anila since he alone bestows the lifebreath on all. The well-known wind is only a tiny fraction of this Anila viz. Bhagavan.

"The wind was born out of His breath,"

"Who ever can breathe and who ever can live if the Akesa (viz. Paramatma) were not there?"

The word 'Jahnu' has been derived from the root 'hae' (to forsake.) He is 'Jahnu' because He conceals His greatness from the non-devotees. This is the interpretation given by the Etymologists. In Udyoga Parva it is said:

"That Discus of the omni-present Vasudeva acts by His will for the benefit of the Pandavas being invisible (to the eyes of others), O Great King !"

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE NAME NARAYANA

246. Naaraayanah—The Support of the hosts of souls.

Sage Vyasa next gives the special name of the Paramatma, Narayana, who has been spoken of by the various names mentioned hitherto and also particularly by the Upanishads in every one of the various branches of the Vedas. This name aignifies the Paramatma (the Supreme Being) as distinguished from His own other forms (i.e. Incarnations). Here are some Vedic texts:

"We meditate on Narayana."

"Najayana is the Supjeme Bjahman."

"Verily only one viz. Narayana was there."

"Then again there was the same Narayana."

"Narayana is the eye and the object seen."

"Then there was the celestial Deity, Narayana."

The Veda itself gives the derivation of the name Narayana thus: "Whatever object there is in the Universe which is seen or heard, Narayana remains pervading all that, both inside and outside."

More than this we do not say since it is something that should not be seen by six eyes i.e. a secret that can be known only by four eyes, (two eyes of the teacher on the one hand and two of the pupil on the other). (246)

247. इदमेव गूढं ज्याचष्टे नरः। अनम्बर-चिषचितिभूतिकः।। (247)

247. Narah-He who is imperishable.

The same (i.e. the word Narayana) is explained in a mystic way by this name 'Narah' which means He has imperienable possessions, the sentient and the non-sentient (both of which are eternal by nature). (247)

"Those who adopt this (discipline of devotion) which is in accordance with virtuous conduct and which is sweet like nectar, are exceedingly dear to me." (256)

257. Vrishaahee -- He Who has the day which is Dharma (suspicious).

He is called Vrishaahee, because the day on which a devotee first approaches the Lord, is itself a day of virtue (vrisha—means dharma) since it is the day on which the inauguration is made for the flow of all auspiciousness.

"The affix 'tach' is added to the words 'rasjan', 'ahan' and 'sakhin' when standing at the end of a Tatpurusha Compound." The name Vrishashee signifies that He has such a day of Vrisha to be given to us.

Vide:-

"Today I am going to see the face of Vishnu which has eyes lovely like full-blown lotuses. Therefore my birth has become fruitful this day and this is an auspicious dawn for my night."

Here the 'Vyaapti' (pervasion) is to be taken as 'signifying the 'vyaapti' of the school of Tarka (Indian Logic). According to that school 'vyaapti' is concordance as in the case of fire and smoke. Wherever there is smoke, there is fire. But fire is greater, because it exists in places where there is no smoke e.g. a red-hot ball of iron. In the same way there is inseparable connection between Bhagavan and others, but He is greater by virtue of the diverse kinds of help He renders to all who are of a lower order. Vide:

265. Sruti-Saagarah-He Who is the sea for the Vadas

He is the final receptacle for all the Vedas which are replete with His qualities, delineated above and which end in Him even as the ocean is the last resurt of the waters of the flowing rivers. Vide;

"The Vedes speak only about Navayans."

"I am the only one that [is to be realised by all the Vedas"—This is what Krishna says in the Gits. (265)

By virtue of the strength of such arms, Bhagavan is endowed with such an irresistible power like the force of the gushing waters of the great sea at the time of Deluge which cannot be resisted by the bridge of sand built by children for sport.

"in the sense of hard and difficult, or light and easy, the affix 'khal' is added to a verb when 'iishad', 'dur' and 'su' are combined with it as an 'upapada' (particle). The names 'Duriabhah' (783) and 'Durgamah' (784) are formed similarly.

268. Vaagmee—He Who is the worthy object of words of praise.

highly worthy of preise. The affix 'gmini' comes after the word 'yeach' in the sense of 'matup' (i.e. possession). The preise-worthiness here is due to the fact that He is proficient in words and is the embodiment of the Vedas which bring Him success (in argument), and which are aweet, majestic, kind and beneficent. Vide;

"The Vedas are but words expressed (by Him)."

"HE (Rama) is proficient in glying ready replies to arguments put forward (by others), end in this He is like Brihaspati, (the Lord of speech)."

"Speak again; for I am not satisfied by hearing such words of nectar."

"Rama is wise and speaks sweet words; He is the first to speak and also speaks kind words,"

"He nariates the episode of the Bharatas and the Srinjayas which is praise-worthy, which confers happiness, which is commendable, which is comprehensible to those desireus of Release, and incomprehensible to the lifeless (who are ill-disposed)."

269. Mahendrah-He of great wealth.

Since Bhagavan pervades thus on all sides, He has supreme overlotdship which is worthy of respect and He is called Mahendra.

The word Indra is derived from the root 'idi' (to own grea wealth). "The words 'rijra', 'indra' etc, are irregularly formed with the affix 'ra'. (idi+ra=Indra). (269)

270. Vasudah-ThelWealth-giver.

Even though Bhagavan has supreme overlordship, which is unassailable by virtue of His being the Mahendra (the great Lord of wealth), He bestows the wealth on the needy even though they are insignificant people. Vide:

"The supreme Delty confers the three worlds and Kubera the riches". (270)

THE COSMIC FORM OF VISHNU

272. Naika-Roopah—He of multiferious forms.

Next the Cosmic nature of Bhagavan is dealt with which is in consonance with the greatness delineated above:

Bhagavan is in diverse forms as a result of which it is quite appropriate to His being cognised as all those things themselves.

"The negative particle 'ne'remains unchanged in 'nabhraai' inapaat<sup>8</sup> and other words". The words given in this rule are only by way of an example and so the word 'Naikaroopa' also may be included in that list. Or it may come under the rule that the negative particle has two alternative forms, one as 'na' and the other as 'a'. Here 'na' remains in the same form The word 'Naika-maaya' (303) also comes under this rule.

The Mantra for His meditation is "Unto Him of multifa-

"I see Thee everywhere with Thy endless forms". (272)

Every one of these forms of His is so big as to prevade the space in all the quarters and the sky. So He is Brihad-roops. Vide:

274. Sipi-Vishtah-He Who pervades the rays.

'Sipl' means rays and 'vishtah' means, 'has entered'. He has pervaded all the rays.

Yaska in his Nirukta says: "Sipayah are said to signify the 'rays', and they have entered into Him."

There is also a similar interpretation by the ancients:

"The meaning of the word 'Sipi-vishta' is: He 'has tawny hairs on His body; with that bedy He has pervaded all other things. So He is 'Sipi-vishta'.

In the Udyoga Parva (Mahabharata): ...

"That is 'Sipi-vishta' which enters into the pores of the body like the rays of the sun."

"Thy powerful rays are filling the whole Universe and are burning it." (274)

Bhagavan shows this celestial form to Arjuna and others who long to see it. So He is called Prakeasane, Vide:

"I shall give you a divine eye: See the sovereign powers I am endowed with."

"This form of Mine you have seen which is very difficult to see." (275)

281. Mantrah -The mystic word.

The etymologists interpret the word thus: "Tan-mentagram treayate iti Mantrah"—Mantra is that which protects him who meditates on it."

In the Brahma Purana in the context of the praise of Bhagayan to drive away the wicked, Sage Narada puts the following question to Bhagayan: "O Madhusudana! Who can remember Thee at that time when his life departs?" The reply of Bhagayan is:

"He, who thinks of me always, will certainly cross this vast and frightful sea of Samsara which is filled with the waters of greed and avarice."

(The Varaha-charama sloka also says) -

"The man who, when his mind is in its normal condition, when the body is not shattered, and when the elementary constituents of the body (dhaatus) are in perfect equipoise, meditates on me who have the world as My body and who am not subject to births due to Karma—when that man lies like a log of wood or a piece of stone in his dying moments, I think of (him) My devotee and lead him to attain the Supreme Abode.

It is because of this there is no occasion for the attainment of fruit for actions not begun or for the non-attainment of fruits for actions completed.

- 290. Satya-Dharma-Paraakramah—He Whose qualities and valour are true.

Here 'Dharma' signifies the auspicious qualities of Bhagavan, and 'paraakrama' His exploits. All of them are always true and never go in vain. So He is Satya-dharma-paraakramah.

Beginning to speak of the qualities and acts of Krishne, Arjuna says in the Gita: "O Krishna I I consider all that you tell me to be true."

"Vishnu has prowess that is true and unfalling,"

"In Vaakas and Anuvaakas, Nishads and Upanishads, as well as in the true Sama Hymns, they declare that His acts are given true, and He is Truth itself."

(The Vaaka, Anuvaaka etc. refer to the different sections and chapters of the Veda.) (290)

292. Pavanah -- He Who moves about (Wind).

Bhagavan is called Pavana since by nature He moves about in all places and at all times. The wind (the bearer of fragrance) is called 'satata-gati' (constant wanderer) because it has just a fraction of this quality of Bhagavan.

The word 'pavanah' is derived from the root 'pavi' (to move about). (292)

293 (817). Paavanah-The Purifier.

He is Paavana since He makes the Ganga and the like that are connected with Him purify the world. Agastya says to Rame:

"O the Scion of the Raghu race! Thou alone art the purifier of all the worlds." (293)

294 (916). Analah-He Who is Insatlate.

Even though Bhagavan has thus done good in several ways, still He is insatiate. (Analah). Such is the greatness of His benevolence. He is the god who is never tired of doing good. The fire in the world is called 'anala' (insatiate) only because of the possession of a particle of this great quality of being insatiable (by fuel).

"Like the fire that grows by the sacrificial offerings, He grows more and more.". (294)

  - 295. Kaamahaa—The Destroyer of desires.

Bhagavan's name is Kaamahaa, because He destroys the desires for worldly pleasures of those who have realised the nature of His qualities as described above.

"My mind is free from the stain of desires. So it has secured a place at Thy feet." These are the words of those that have realised Him.

301. Yugazdi-Krit—The Creator at the beginning of a Yuga (seon).

Next the limitless nature of Bhagavan is dealt with. Amongst His Incarnations that in which He reclines on the leaf of a banyan tree (Vata-patra-saayee Avatara) is given as an example. Even at the end of a Yuga, He makes the beginning of another—Yugaadi-krit. Even at the periodical dissolution of the Universe, He saved it from the distress of Deluge and began the Universe again. 303. Naika-Maayah-He of multifarious wonders.

Bhagavan is Nalkamayah by virtue of the innumerable, inscrutable and wonderful exploits of His like being an artless and charming infant, swallowing unlimited number of worlds and lying on the leaf of a banyan tree unsupported in the waters of the Ocean. The word 'maaya' here is not used in the sense of illusion; because its usage in the sense of 'truth' also is found in many places. Vide:

"Know that Maayaa is Prakriti". Here Prakriti signifies the Primordial Matter which is the source for the creation of many objects.

"Maayaa, Vayunam, jnaanam"-all signify knowledge.

"It is equated with Divine Knowledge".

"Thou knowest all the means for realising the fourfold ends of life." In all these places the word 'Maayaa' is used in the sense of knowledge. In Vishnu Purana it is used to signify a real substance that cannot be dispelled by correct knowledge and which is destroyed by means of arrows. Vide:

"Thousands of that Maayaa of Sambara Asura were destroyed one by one by the swift-moving discus (of Vishnu( which came to protect the body of the boy (Prahlada)", (If the word 'Meayaa' here means 'illusion', it could have been des troyed only by correct knowledge and not by the discus as stated here).

In the Chapter on the Maayaa in the Varaha Purana 'Maayaa' is used in the sense of the wonderful exploits of Vishnu.

"The appearance of the cloud, the return of the waves of the ocean (after touching the shore), the waxing and waning of the moon, the blasts of wind, the flash of the lightning, the movement of the hot-rayed sun—all these are the various wonderful acts (Masyaas) of Vishnu."

Learned men have explained 'Maayaa' as 'great wonder'.

Sage Markandeya describes in the Aranya Parva (of Mahabharata) the marvellous act of Vishnu when he sees Him lying on the leaf of a banyan tree and says:

"O King I I was struck with great wonder when I saw the entire world (in the belly of Vishnu)."......

"After speaking a few words thus, the highly wonderful God disappeared, O, the foremost of the Bharatas I How marvellous it is I"

Thus with reference to the word 'Maayaa' there is an abundance of usage in well-known and faultless texts in the sense of 'highly wonderful'. (308)

305. Adrisyah-He Who cannot be seen.

The actions of Bhagavan are really unscrutable. Vide:

"When the entire world has met with destruction, where and how does this infant lie? Even though I try to know this by the power of my austerities, I am not able to understand this infant."

"After verbs having a penultimate short 'ri' the affix 'kyap' is employed with the exception of the two roots 'klip' and 'chrit'."

314. Vrishah-He Who drenches.

The selfsame Lord, by His nectar-like effulgence and words, drenches him who is fatigued by wandering in the midst of the sea (of Samsara) and consoles him. So He is called Vrishah.

'Vrishah' is derived from the root 'vrish' (to drench).

"Then the child that was endowed with lotus-like eyes and effulgence and who was adorned by the Srivatsa (mark on His chest) spoke to me these words sweet to the ear: "I know that you are very tired and you want to take rest'." (314)

PARASURAMA INCARNATION

Next Bhargava Rama (i.e. Parasurama) is suggested (by the following eight names).

315. Krodhahaa-He Who gave up His anger.

At the mere request of Kasyapa, He gave up His anger which brought about the destruction of the Kshattriyas twenty-one times. So He is called 'Krodhaahaa' (315)

316. Krodha-krit-He Who showed His anger.

Before that He showed His wrath against them—Krodhakrit. (316)

The Supreme Soul-Vasudeva

The following twelve names (334 to 345) are about Adhyaatmaa—Vasudeva and His qualities. (The vasudeva Mantra also has twelve letters.)

334 (701). Vasudevah-He Who pervades and sports.

Bhagavan is 'Vaasuh' and 'Devah'. He is Vaasu since He lives in the world making it live within Himself like a mother and also protects it by covering it like a bird that protects its young ones with its out-spread wings. (The word 'Vaasuh' is derived from the root 'vas' (to reside and to envelope). He is 'Devah', because He plays, wishes to conquer, and again shines; He is eulogised and goes (to His devotees).

(The root 'div' from which the word 'deva' is derived has got several meanings—to sport, wish to conquer, to shine, to praise, to feel happy, to dream, to glitter and to go.)

The ancient seers have interpreted the name Vasudeva

"Like the sun that covers the entire world with his rays, I also cover the world and I am the abode of all beings. So I am called Vasudeva."

"I am the abode of all beings and with a divine form live in all of them. Therefore I am known as Vasudeva and am referred to as such."

"Learned men declare that Bhagavan is called Vasudeva, because He abides in all things and all things abide in Him".

Such is the statement in all Sastras about Him. We do not write anything more explicitly since it is a secret (and has to be learnt from a preceptor). (334)

With such an ausploious and enchanting body, Bhagavan nourishes the meditator whom He considers as His own body. The nourishment and protection of such meditators is achieved only by means of His qualities which are being meditated upon by them with love and devotion.

"When the eternal Bhagavan abides in the heart of a person, the body of the latter becomes possessed of a great charm in this world."

O devout (disciple) I Your face shines like that of a person who has realised the Brahman."

In fact a devotee is both like His Soul and like His body (in the eyes) of Bhagavan. Vide:

(Aksha literally means the axis—a part of a chroiot-Here it is used to denote the charlot itself by a figure of speach known as Synecdoche (part put for the whole). So the word Aksha in this name signifies a vehicle.)

Mehaakshah means Bhagavan Who has a vehicle which is 'Mahaan' worthy of reverence. Bhagavan has for His vehicle Garuda who is said to be the very embodiment of the Vedas. Garuda serves as a vehicle for Bhagavan Who is therefore called Garuda-Vahana. (355)

He is Samayajna, therefore He knows how the fire and other things should act; for example, the flame of the fire should go upwards.

(Even after the period of deluge and at the beginning of creation) the Creator created the Sun and the Moon as before (and assigned their duties to them)."

361. Havir-Harih - He Who takes the offerings.

"For the meditator there is delay only till he is not freed (from the body); then he attains (Me)."

Bhagavan knows the time leid down by the Vede thus and bestows Himself on them and is also taken by them. So He is 'Havih'.

The word 'havi' is derived from the root 'hu' (to give and also to take). "The 'affix 'isi' comes after the verbs 'arch' 'such', 'hu', 'srip', 'chad' and 'chard'". ('hu' + 'isi' = havih).

The Name 'Hari' means that He removes the obstacles of the meditators. The word is derived from the verb 'harati' (takes away) with the addition of the affix 'in'. This affix is added by the rule: "The affix 'in' comes after all roots."

"Harl destroys all sins when He is remembered even by men with evil hearts. Even if fire is touched unawares, it certainly burns."

Havîr-Harib is one name.

Vishnu as the Consort of Lakshmi

362. Sarva - Lakshana - Lakshanyah — He Who is appropriately distinguished by all the symbols which define Him (as the Supreme Deity).

Bhagavan Vishnu as the Consort of Lakshmi is next dealt with.

He is appropriately cognised by the knowledge which is characterised by the defining marks that proclaim His good fortune in having the constant embrace of the Goddess Lakshmi (and being Her consort).

Sarva - Lakshana - Lakshanyah — Those distinguishing marks are given in the following Sloka:

नि.—362. सर्वलक्षणलक्षण्यो लक्ष्मीलक्षणचिह्नितः।

And in His Mantra (He is portrayed as follows): "O the Lotus eyed (Lord)! The Sea of Bliss and Good Fortune!" (362)

"The affix 'yat' is added after a noun in the Locative Case in the sense of 'excellent in regard thereto'."

363. तथा च लक्ष्मीवान्—तथैव लक्ष्म्या नित्ययोगवान्। यथा—

  - 363. Lakshmeevaan He Who is always with Lakshml.

Therefore Lakshmeevaan He has the eternal companion-ship of Lakshmi. Vide:

"At the time of my marriage (with Lakshmi), I in a playful mood placed (before all) the 'Dvaya'—(the great secret that The Supreme Reality is a Couple, and not Narayana alone, nor Lakshmi alone). Then I also revealed that like Myself Lakshmi also is beginningless (i.e. eternal). This Prakriti was embraced by My hands, and I by Her hands; wherefore I have resorted to Her and She, in Her turn has resorted to me. (So we are always together.)"

In this sloka, the word 'Prakriti' signifies Lakshmi, the Universal Mother. (363)

This is revealed by His Mantra: "The Conqueror of all distress."

382 (117). Kartaa - The Agent.

He is the independent agent in all those acts. A Jiva or the individual soul, who has the right to do an act and reap its fruit, considers that the resulting pleasure or pain is his 6wn. In the same manner or probably in a greater degree, Bhagavan regards the pleasure or the pain of the live as His own.

"When the subjects (of His kingdom) are in distress, Signama feels much more distressed; and in all their joys in festivities, He feels rejoiced like a father (at the jey of his child)."

If the distress and joy of Bhagavan and of the Jiva were distinct and different, and if the joy and the sorrow of the Jiva were not considered as His own by Paramatma, then the Upanishadic text that the Brahman itself has become many will not be appropriate. For the Upanishad says that the Supreme Brahman willed "I shall become many; (for that) the shall take birth."

383. अत एव तत्फलभोगेन हर्षशोकादिभिः विकुर्वाणः विकर्ता। स्वार्य-हर्ष-शोकाद्यभावेऽपि परार्थ-तत्प्रसंक्तिः अदोषः। अन्यथा परदुःख-दुःखित्वादयो गुणाः कथम् अस्य स्युः? (383)

383. Vikartae—He Who is affected and undergoes modifications.

Since Bhagavan identifies Himself with all beings, their joys, softows etc., which are the fruit of their acts good and bad, are experienced by Him also as though they were His own and He undergoes mutations. So He is called Vikartaa. He has no joy or sorrow which results from His own act; and the experience of joy and sorrow is only for the sake of others. So it does not bring any discredit to Bhagavan. Otherwise how can such noble qualities be predicated of Him, qualities like feeling sorrowful at the sorrows of others? (383)

384 (548). Gahanah-He Who is deep and inscrutable.

He is Gahana (beyond the understanding of all) because of this magnificent quality of identifying Himself with the individual souls and considering their knowledge, abode, enjoyment and instruments of enjoyment as His own and protecting them.

"Though Bhagavan remains with them, the gods do not understand Him."

"He Who remains in the Earth (but whom the Earth does not know)." The entire section of the Antaryami Brahmana beginning with this Mantra is relevant to this idea.

The circle of planets is closely fastened to Bhagavan, Who is therefore called Yyavasaayah. (Seeyate—tightly bound).

The affix 'ghain' has been added to the root 'see' with the prepositions 'vi' and 'ava'.

He has the Ether as His body where all the stare have their place. It is because of this His Mantra reads;

"Unto the Embodiment of the Ether."

j. .

The meditation on Him has to be done as follows:

"The Lord Who is the support of the wheel of Samsara." (386)

- 387. Vyavestheanah—The Basis (for the divisions of time).

Time, which is the root of all the mutations in the world and which is divided into 'kale' 'muhurta' atc. has its base only in Bhagavan. So He is Vyavasthaana. (387)

Incarnation as Rama

Next begins the story of SrigRama which resuscitates even the dead.

391. Parardhih-He of noble and auspicious qualities.

The abundance of the auspicious qualities in Bhagavan in His Incarnation as Rame is superior even to the Supreme Overlordship of Sarvesvara. Hence He is Parardhih. It is because of this that, even though Rama's status is very high, He is often compared with Soma and other gods who are of a lower rank. Vide:

"In valour Rama is similar to Vishnu; He has a delightful appearance like the moon."

Rama is endowed with transcendent nature. (This is revealed by the words of Dasaratha addressed to Lakshmana);

"Dear son (Lakshmana): It has been declared (by Brahma and other gods) that this Rama is really the Supreme Brahmam incarnate. He cannot be realised by those who are bereft of devotion. He is immutable by nature. He is the inner Soul of all gods and a Mystery that can be known only by means of the Upanishads. He is the conqueror of His enemies."

"O King (Dasaratha): Many are the auspicious qualities that are in your son, Sri Rama." These are the words of the members of the Assembly summoned by Daseratha for consulting them about Rama's coronation.

"Unto Bhagavan" is the phrase in the Mantra that pertains to Him, (i.e. Sri Rama) (391)

392. Parama-Spashtah - He whose greatness is explicit.

He is Parama-spashta. His greatness can be clearly cognised by means of direct perception. Vide:

"It is evident that Sri Rama is 'Mahaa-yogee'—He is ever immersed in the one great thought of the protection of the world. He is the Supreme Soul and eternally existent (without any mutations.)"

"Sri Rama is the Sun even of the sun." (392)

393. Tushtah -- He Who was pleased.

He was much more pleased with the attainment of the state of being the son of Dasaratha and being the protector of the world when the entire humanity would have the right to approach Him for help than with the state of Supreme Lordship which can be resorted to only by those who have the necessary qualifications. Vide:

"Then Bhagavan chose Dasaratha as His father.".

"Rama highly valued the Dharma (duty) of a Kahattriya quite in consonance with the fact that He had taken birth in the race of Kahattriyas."

"I consider myself a human being—Rama, the aon of Dasaratha"—(these are the words of Rama to the gods who appeared before Him). (393)

Or the word 'Subhekshana' can be taken to signify: to be the object that is seen or to be the agent who sees; both were to His liking. Vide:

"Whoever has not seen Rama or whomsoever Rama has not seen, that person stands condemned by all the people in the world, and even his own self condemns him." (395)

"Rame, Who is fescinating by virtue of His qualities."

"Rama, the dark-hued and red-eyed youth, Who is majestic like the best of elephants."

"Like the Sun that shines with its rays, Rama shone brightly with His qualities which charmed the subjects of His kingdom and which were a source of joy to His father."

This is revealed also by the Mantra about Him.

He is Viraama, because before Him all become powerless—all, gods like Brahma who grant the boons, Ravana and others who have acquired the boons (by their austerities) and the boons themselves of being indestructible even by death. Vide:

"The four-faced and self-born Brahma (Rudra, the threeayed destroyer of the [three cities of gold, iron and silver, and Indra the great chief of gods—no one can save that person whom Rama has willed to slay)." (397)

398. Viratah-The Unattached.

Bhagavan is Virata, because of the spirit of detachment which is natural to Him. He has no love for kingship and other tritles. Vide.—

"Even the loss of the kingdom did not deprive Him (Rema) of His splendour just as the night cannot take away the lovellness of the cool-rayed moon."

"The carrying out of the order of exile given by His father was much more to His liking than even the coronation. Then He really shone with splendour."

"Even when Sri Rama abandoned the kingdom under the plea of Dharma (viz. obeying father's words), and when He ied me to the forest where I had to move on foot, (there was neither disappointment nor grief, nor fear in Rama"—Sita says.)

Maargah -He Who is sought after.

He is sought after even by sages like Bharadvaja.

Virajo Maargah is another reading. 'Virajah' means dustless (i.e. faultless); 'maargah' signifies 'path'. The meaning is; 'The path shown by Sri Rama is faultless.' Vide:

"I wish to have an abode in this forest here in a place allotted by you",

"Though wise and capable by himself, a person desirous of permanent good should, in times of difficulties, consult his good-hearted friends and agree to be guided by them."

In the Sabha Parva (Mahabharata), SrI Krishna Himself says:

"O Yudhishtiral When I am here for doing what is good to you, conduct the sacrifice (Reja-suya yajna) that you desire to do. You may ask me to do whatever you want. I shall certainly carry out your behests."

Again in the Udyoga Parva (Mahabharate):

"O long-aimed scion of the royal dynasty of Bharata! I am here ready to do whatever you want. I shall carry out your commands."

(Lakshmana was struck by the weapon, Sakti by name, and had fallen down unconscious.) All the inimical Rakshasas joined together and tried to lift and carry him away. They could not even move him. 401. Anayah-He Who cannot be spirited away.

Bhagavan is Anaya since He cannot be led away by those who are not well-disposed towards Him.

"Ravana who could lift with ease even the mountains, the Himalayas, Mandera and Meru, as well as the three worlds with all the gods, could not lift up in the battle-field even with both his hands the younger brother of Bharata (i.e. Lekshmana). 402(665). Veerah-He Who is the cause of terror.

Bhagavan is the source of fear and terror for the Rakshasas. So He is called Veerah.

The word 'Veera' is derived from the root 'Aja' (to drive or lead). 'Vee' is the substitute for 'Aja' when an Ardha-dhatuka affix follows with the exception of the two affixes-'Ghajn' and 'Aprilit also takes the affix 'Rak' under the rule: "The affix 'Rak' comes after 'Sphayi', 'Tanch', 'Chadi', 'Aj' and other roots.

"When Ravana, the king of the Rakshasas, even thought of the arrows of Sri Rama, which had the lustre of the club of Brahma and the glitter of the lightning he became uneasy."

"The king (Ravana) was overpowered by the powerful Rama like the elephant by the lion, and the serpent by Garuda."

Thus did Maricha say: "In every tree do I see Sri Rama dressed in the tree-bark and black deer-skin and with His bow drawn as though He is the god of death with the ropes in hand." And other such texts also. (402)

406. Vaikuntah-Remover of obstacles (of union).

He brings about the union of all. The word Vaikunta is derived from the root 'kuti' which means obstructing the pathe Here It signifies the obstacles to the union. Vikuntas are those whose obstacles have been removed. Bhagavan belongs to them and so He is called Vaikunta. Vide—

"By me the Earth was united with water, ether with air, and air with fire. So I am called Vaikunta."

Such a quality was seen in Bhagavan when He came as Sri Rama. Vide-

"The subjects of Rama's kingdom observed this quality in Rama and remembering it they never caused mutual harm."

When Rama was not with them, they never relished each other's company. This can be seen in the words of the wives to their husbands.

"Either go after Sri Rama or get away so that nothing will be heard of you."

407. Purushah -- The Purifier.

He is Purusha, because He purifies all by nature and is devoid of all sins. Vide:—

"O the scion of the Raghus! Thou alone art the purifier of all the worlds."

Sabari said to Rama: "O gentle Sir that bestows honour! I have been purified by Thy charming eyes."

The word 'Purusha' is derived from the root 'pri' (to protect or nourish). Or the word 'Purusha' is formed by the affix 'kushan' to the base 'purah'.

That Rama alone is considered to be the 'Purusha' in every way.

"These six gunas (qualities) add to the justre of Sri Rama; the Purushottema."

"Sri Rama is the Saarnga-bow-wielder; He is Hrishikesa He is the Purusha and also the Purushottama." (407)

413. Setrughnah - The Enemy-slaver.

He is called Satrughna, because Bhagavan subdues by His arrows of wisdom the groups of senses which are enamies like Ravana and which lead away people to the enjoyment of the earthly pleasures.

About meditation on Him it is stated:

Yogins with the power of discrimination even as Sri Rama vanquished the frightful ten-headed Ravana, the Rakshasa chief with hosts of arrows.

(Note: The mind is compared to Ravana and the ten indrivas to his ten heads and the arrows that Rama used to kill him to discrimination.)

"And the affix 'tak' comes after the verb 'han' (to kill) when the object is in composition with it and when the word to be formed denotes an agent other than a human being". (But the word 'Satrughna' is valid under the 'Mulavibhujadi' class and is formed by affix 'ka'.)

"The root-vowel of 'gam', 'han' etc. is elided before an affix beginning with a vowel when it has an indicatory 'k' or 'gn'.

"A guttural is substituted for the 'h' in 'han' before an affix having an indicatory 'jn' or 'n' and before 'n'. (413)

"Rama makes full and kind enquiries of all His subjects as though they are His kinsfolk in their respective order regarding their sons, sacrificial fires, wives, servants and disciples even as a father would of his own sons."

417. Rituh - He Who moves towards.

He gets into the hearts of all by virtue of the successive waves of His qualities which are unique and highly delightful. He gets into (the hearts of) all—Rituh. It is because of such a quality the seasons like Vasanta and Sisira get the name of 'ritu'. (Vasanta = Spring; Sisira = Cool season.) Vide:—

"King Dasaratha never became satiate by looking at Rama as He (Rama) approached him just as people oppressed with the heat of summer look to a water-ladan cloud which delights them."

The word 'ritu' is derived from the root 'ri' (to go) by the rule—"The affix 'tu' comes after the root 'ri'." (417)

421. Parigrahah-He Who takes all (with Him).

Here, there and everywhere, He accepts all—Parigrahah. He brought about the attainment of the Transcendent World (Parama-pada) not only to the citizens (of Ayodhya) and the subjects (of His kingdom) who had direct contact with Him and those related to them, but also the gods they worshipped and their gardens along with their trees, grass etc.

"Whoever had love and devotion for His Incarnations."

The predominant characteristic in Sri Ramavatara is amiability. (421

Kalki-Ayatara

Next the incarnation as Kalki is dealt with. He is in charge of destruction of the Universe and kills those evil-doers who cannot be won over by His good nature. He is lying in the Patala-loka.

422. Ugrah - The Formidable.

At the end of the (Kali) yuga when all are more inclined to commit sins and there is great confusion in the divisions of caste and the several stages of life (Varna and Asrama), Bhagavan becomes Ugra—furious and wrathful.

His Mantra portrays Him thus: "Unto Him Who is the very embodiment of destruction and is like the death-giving Vaisvanara Fire."

Sri Paushkara (Samhita) says: "Bhagavan Vishnu incarnates Himself as Kalki when there is complete destruction of Dharma (virtue) and after destroying the hosts of Miecchas remains in this world".

423 (92). Samvatsarah--He Who resides.

He is called 'Samvatsarah' as He resides in the Patalaloka reclining on Ananta (the Adisesha) fully armed with all the weapons ready for action awaiting the time (for manifestation).

The injunction for meditation on Him is as follows:

"Him Who has mounted the Ananta-couch."

"He Who is surrounded by Discus and other weapons, all in embodied forms."

The word 'Samvatsara' is derived from the root 'vasati' preceded by the preposition 'sam'.

"The affix 'sare' comes after the root 'vas' (to dwell) when it is preceded by an Upapada and the affix is treated as 'cit' which places the accent on the last syllable.

"Kalki will be ever roaming about the world engaged in the destruction of the Daeyus (miscreants). He will annihilate the Dasyus who are crying hourse intensely."

As stated above Bhagavan is quick in the act of exterminating the Dasyus. So He is Daksha.

"Very quickly does Janardana act" says another text.

"The word 'daksha' is derived from the root 'daksh' (to grow or act quickly)." (424)

425. Visraemah-The Place of Rest.

Bhagavan is the place of rest for those beings who are extremely tired by the heavy burden of their sins and by the experience of their fruits.

In Sabha Parvan (Mahabharata) it is said:

"Bhagavan comes into this world for the growth of Dharma and for the protection of the Brahmins (who are plous)." (425)

How can it be said that He is benevolent to those who are evil-doers? The answer is Visva-dakshinah. He shows His favour-uniformly towards all, whether their actions are right or wrong. Benevolence is that quality which shows forbearance even towards the wrong-doers. Vide:

Thus Bhagavan creates this world and grants the respective desires of the people (thinking that they would resort to Him for their redemption). But the worldly-minded ere infatuated by the pleasures of the world and are not inclined to turn to Him. Thus HIs expectations are not successful. In spite of this Bhagavan does not become dispirited or despondent and again with the fond hope that He will succeed in His next effort, (i.e. diligence) continues His acts. So He is Anirvinnah. It is because of this that there is neither beginning nor end for the creation of the world by Bhagavan.

"These acts of creation, protection, destruction and control by Bhagavan go on uninterruptedly." (436)

446 (971). Yajnah - The Sacrifice.

Bhagavan has been defineated in the Vishnu Purana as the sacrifice, its means and the ultimate goal (its fruit). The section there begins thus:

"In that place where Dhruva has been stationed in the firmament, that place—which is known as the Vishnu-pada in the third region, which is celestial and resplendent."

Then it proceeds to describe in order the several regions of Dhruva, the luminaries, clouds and rains.

"This Earth is the fruit of 'ijya' (sacrifice) and 'ijya' has this world as its foundation,"

"Then the fires are nourished through the offerings of ghee in sacrifices."

Therefore Bhagavan Himself is called Yajna. Vide.

"Sacrifice itself is Vishnu."

"After the verbs 'yaj' (to worship), 'yaach' (to ask for), 'yat' (to strive), 'vich' (to shine), 'pracch' (to ask) and 'reksh' (to preserve) comes the affix 'nagn' with the force of denoting mere action etc." (446)

- 447. कामाधिकारैः इन्द्रादिद्वारा इज्याम् अहंति इति इज्यः ।
  - <sup>3</sup> "ये यजन्ति पितृन् देवान् ब्राह्मणान् सङ्कृताशनान् । सर्वभूतास्तराहमानं विष्णुमेव यजन्ति ते ॥"
  - <sup>4</sup> "येऽप्यत्य-देशता-भक्ताः"
  - <sup>5</sup> "बर्णाश्रमाचारवता" इत्यादि ।। (447)

447. Ilyah-He Who is the object of worship.

He alone is the worthy object of worship that is done indirectly through index and other gods by people whose aim is to acquire 'kaama' or fruits of a lower order.

"Those who worship the Pitrs (the spirits of their forefathers), the gods, the Brahmins as well as Agni (Fire)—they (In reality) worship only Vishnu Who is the Inner Soul of all beings."

"Those, however, who are devotees of other gods and with great faith worship them, (they too worship only Me, but not in the manner and according to the rules prescribed there. to)."—(Sri Krishna in the Gita).

"(Bhagavan Who is the Supreme Person is addred) by the man who performs the duties and rites of his Varna and Asrama. Nothing else delights Bhagavan so much)" And so on. (447)

449. Kratuh-Object of sacrificial acts.

The five Mahas-yainas, The seven Paaka-yainas like Aupaasana etc., the seven Havir-yainas like Agni-hotra etc.,—all these have been laid down in the Vedas and they have been referred to by the name 'Yaina' (446) mentioned above. The Kratus are the seven Some-samsthes comprising Agni-hotra and the like. Bhagavan is worshipped by all these Kratus.

The word 'Kratu' which means 'that which is conducted' is derived from the root 'kri' (to do).

"The affix 'katu' comes after the verb 'kiri' (to do)"

Note: The Pancha Maha-yajnas are;

- 1. Brahma-yaina-Teaching and reciting the Vedas.
- 2. Pitri-yajna—Offerning of libations of water every day to the deceased ancestors (i.e. Tarpana).
- 3. Deve-yagna—A sacrifice made to the superior gods made by oblations to the fire or through fire to gods.
- 4. Bhoota-yajna—Ball (i.e. the offering of a portion of the daily meal (of rice, grain, ghee etc.) to all creatures. It is usually performed by throwing up into the air, near the house-door portions of the daily meal before partaking of it.
- Manushya-yajna—The sacrifice to be offered to men, (i.e. hospitable reception of guests).

The seven Paaka-yejnas are: 1. Aupaasana-homa 2. Valsva-deva 3. Paarvana (i.e. Sthaalee-paaka) 4. Ashtakaa-sraddha 5. Maasa-sraadha 6. Sarpa-bali (oblation to the serpents) 7. Easaana-bali (oblation to gods). (449)

Bhagavan is called Sattra, because He is there always in the Sattra as the object of worship.

The word 'sattra' is derived from the root 'sad' (seedati) signifying movement.

"The affix 'tra' comes after the following roots: 'gu' 'dhri' 'vee', 'pach' 'vach', 'yam', 'sad' and 'kshad'. (450)

So far Bhagavan has been described as the goal of those who follow the Pravritti-dharma, having an attachment to the business and pleasures of the world. Next it is stated that He is also the goal for those who are wedded to Nivritti-dharma (i.e., discontinuance of wordly acts or emotions, (quietiem).

Vishnu Purana itself says: "O Brahmin! That is a sublime place for Yatis (i.e. Yogins) who have washed off the mire of sins and who have controlled their minds when all their merits and sins have been annihilated," (451)

453. Nivrittatmaa—He Whose mind is turned away (from worldly desires).

The forms of Bhagavan as Nara, Narayane etc. are for instructing the world in the Nivilti-charms, one of the two charms. To indicate His profound non-attachment to material objects of pleasure, He has His mind withdrawn from them.

About His meditation it is said: "He Who has His thoughts concentrated within Himself."

"Unto Him Who is ever engaged in the meditation of His own soul."

"Him with His mind fixed on the lotus-heart." (453)

456 (428). Suvratah-He of good vows.

"O Arjunal (Son of Partha)! There is nothing that I have to do for self-advancement."

On this principle all the acts of Bhagavan are for the good of others and therefore all His observances are always auspicious—Suvrate.

"A person should meditate upon Him as standing on one leg, living on air and teaching the fornightly and monthly fasts (by observing them)."

Note: The seven names from 457 to 463 flave been Interpreted as relating to the Nara-Narayana Incarnation of Bhagavan. Parasara Bhattar, the Commentator, gives another interpretation to the above names from 457 to 463 as referring to Bhagavan Who helped the gods in the churning of the Milkocean, which topic is continued by the next seven names (464 to 470) also.

Or in the context of the churning of the Milk-Ocean for obtaining the Nectar—

457. Sumukhah—He Who has a charming face,

"He Who shines with a face which is delightful like the moon and which is replete with the nector of Bliss very much like the pot of nector held in the hand".

458. Sookshmah-The Subtle.

He is subtle because His thoughts are hidden from the Asur as.

459. Sughoshah—He Who is the object of loud and delectable praise.

His act of churning was delectable and was praised loudly both by the gods and the Asuras.

460. Sukhadah-The Joy-giver.

He gives joy to the gods by distributing the nectar to them.

461. Suhrit-The friend.

And the reason for the same is His love for them.

462. Manoharah—The heart-ravishing.

He was Manohara, because His form bewitched the minds of the Asuras.

"He is to be meditated upon as having a chaiming form and as creating wonder in the three worlds."

#463. Jita-krodhah - He Who conquered the anger.

On seeing His form the minds of the Asuras became confounded with confusion and thereby He overcame the enger of the Asuras against the gods. (463)

464. स्फुरत्कटक-केयूरमाला-मधनखेला-सहमहमिका-ध्यतीहार -विकान्त-बाह्वः सहस्रम् अस्येति घोरबाहुः ।। (464)

464. Veera-baahuh -- He of mighty arms.

He has a thousand arms which vie with one another in the wonderful act of churning—arms which are shining with effulgent bracelets, armiets and garlands. (464)

465. दिन्यहेतिभिः राहुमुखान् विदारितवान् इति विदारणः।

466. Sysapansh-He Who Julis them to sleep.

With His elegant and lovely smiles, sweet glances and the play of His eyebrows, Bhagavan fascinates and brings under His control those that stay behind when others have gone. He is Svaapana.

"He with eyes full of exuberant love and blooming youth". (466)

467. तेषु सुप्तेषु स्वकीयैः सह स्वैदिवहारात् स्ववशः । "सर्वेश्वराय" इति तन्मन्ते ।। (467)

467. Sya-yasah—He Who is under His own control.

When others are asleep, He plays as he likes with those who are his own (i.e. gods).

In His Mantra it is said: "Unto the Lord of all". (467)

468- सुरासुर-मन्दर - वासुकि-प्रभृतिषु शक्त्या आप्यायनाय स्यापनात् स्थापी ।। (468)

468. Vyaapee -The Pervader.

469. Naikaatmaa-He with diverse forms.

He is Naikeatmaa, because He had assumed many forms at the time of churning, one as Vishnu (to help the gods to churn), another as the Tortoise (to support the Mandara Mountain) and yet another as Mohini (to distribute the nectar).

470. मधन-धारण-वैरिविदारण-सुधादानाद्यनेक कर्मा नैककर्म -कृत् ।। (470)

470. Naika-karma-krit-He of diverse acts.

He did many acts like churning the ocean, supporting the mountain, overcoming the enemies, distributing the nectar and others. Thus He is Naika-karma-krit. (470)

471. अथ धर्मात्मा । पुरुषार्थ-व्यवस्थापनाय सर्वान्तः वसतीति वत्सरः । "वसेश्च" इति 'सरन्' प्रत्ययः ।

The Embodiment of Dharma

471. Vatsarah - He Who lives within (all beings).

Next Bhagavan is described as Dharmatma—the embodiment of Dharma. For bestowing fruits in a just way for the acts of all, He resides in all beings.

नि.—469. तदातनैः बाह्यकोमं मोहिन्याद्यवतारकैः। नैकात्मा इति श्रुतः सम्यक् मुन्यणी मनुरूपदः।।

472. Vatsalah -- The Affectionate.

The cause for that quality is described by the name Vatsala. He is affectionate towards H's children who are attached to Him. He has great love and affection for those who have sought refuge in Him. Even though they have been with Him for a long time, He is eager to do something for their good for some inexplicable reason. This can be compared to the young mother cows' love for their new-born calves which (cows), not knowing what to do simply bellow and suffer from the burden of the udder full of milk which is trickling down. That Bhagavan has such a quality is well-known from the attitude of Sri Rama towards Ravana. This is known from the words of Sita:

"It is well-known that Rama knows this great virtue, and that He is very affectionate towards those who have sought refuge in Him".

Since Bhagavan has taken this quality as an instrument in the protection of His devotees, that quality too has attained a reputation and popularity.

"The affix 'lach' comes after the words 'vatea' and 'amsa' in the sense of love and strength respectively." (472)

474. Ratna-garbhah -- He Who is in possession of abundant wealth.

Amongst His devotees there are some who are after wealth, and Bhagavan has immense wealth to be given to them.

475. Dhanesvarah-The quick giver of wealth.

He is quick in bestowing on His devotees whatever wealth they desire.

"The affix 'varat' comes after the root 'as' (to pervade) when the word formed from it refers to 'having the power of granting success soon'. By the letter 'cha' the penultimate letter 'a' in 'as' is replaced by 'ee'. (475)

479. Sat—He Who is commendable.

Bhagavan is Sat, because the Dharma mentioned above is itself commendable,

"Likewise the word 'Sat', O Arjunal is employed with reference to a commendable action."

The commendable nature of Dharma is due to the fact that Bhagavan Who is to be attained by it is Himself highly commendable. His praise-worthiness is due to His eternal existence

480. Sad-aksharam—He Who is ever existent without decrease or destruction.

He is Sad-akshara because His existence and goodness are eternal and unconditioned. Here the word 'Akshara' is an adjective that qualifies the noun 'Sat'. 'Ksharam' is that which comes to an end in some place or at some time. The true nature of Bhagavan as Sad-akshara is described as follows:

"He is free from decrease, destruction, modification, growth and birth. He can only be spoken of as that which always is."

The same is declared by the Sruti also: "Existence alone, my dear child, this was in the beginning, one only without a second." (480)

These two are spoken of in the Sruti elso:

"This world comprises the good and the bad. Bhagavan is above both of them—the Asat and the sat." (481, 482)

483. Avijnaataa-The Non-cognizant.

Even though He sees the innumerable sins committed by the pious devotees. He not only does not punish them, but also forgives them. Not only this much, He is even oblivious of their sins. So is it stated about Sri Rams:

"Though harsh words are used against Him, Rama does not retaliate."

Not taking into account the faults committed by those who have taken refuge in Bhagavan is certainly a quality that is commandable. Therefore my revered father (Sri Vatsanka Misra, Koorettalvan) has said:

"Thus we speak in reproof of Thy omni-science, and say Thou art ignorant. Thou dost dote on the faults of Thy devotees."

There are some who hold the view with reference to the Brahman, which is all-knowing, that it is pure consciousness and so not possessed of knowledge. They are really deaf to the words of the Vedas, the conclusions of the Acharyas and evan to logical propriety. Those poor people are only to be pitied and are not worthy of refutation or criticism. On the other hand He is omni-scient, Sahasra-amsuh— 'Sahasram' means countless and 'Amsu' means varieties of knowledge; So Bhagavan has infinite knowledge.

An objection may be raised: Is it not a contradiction to say that He is all-knowing and that He does not know the faults of His devotees? 'No' we say. Ignorance of the faults of His devotees means only that He ignores tham as being insignificant. He pays no attention to their faults. Vide:

"Though there may be faults in Him (Vibhishana)" (I offer him protection; and great men will not find fault with me).

"Even a man of wicked deeds is a good man provided he worships Me without expecting any other benefit. (He must be honoured; because his knowledge is sound.)" (484)

485. Vidhaataa—The Controller.

It cannot be said that even though Bhagavan forgives the sinning devotes, the latter will have to experience the purishment and tortures meted out to him by Yama whose duty is to punish the sinners. For Yama also is under the control of Bhagavan (and he cannot do anything, against His will. The name Vidhaataa (the Supreme Controller) signifies this.

Yama himself says (in Vishnu Purana):

"The Supreme Lord Who is worshipped by Indra and other gods knows that I am impartial and so He has ordained me to do good or bad to people in the world according to their deserts."

It this connection the entire dialogus between Yama and his servants may be studied as described in the several Puranas—Brahma, Vaishnava, Vamana, Narasimha, Lainga, Vaishnava-dharma, Sri Vishnu Tattva and Bhagavata. (485)

486. Krita-lekshanah—He Who has prescribed the distinguishing characteristics (for the pious).

If Bhagavan Himself overlooks the faults of men, what is there that will distinguish the good from the bad by which He will accept the former and discard the latter? The reply is Krita-lakshanah. He has laid down the distinguishing characteristics of those who are to be favoured, viz. they are well disposed towards Him.

Vide in Heri-vamsa:

"They who bear the mark of the discus on their bodies may be admitted to my vicinity and they that do not have the mark should not be admitted near me."

In Vishnu-dherma:

"While you are going about in the world, you will see that man alone violates my commands who does not bear mark of having sought refuge in Vishnu."

In Vishnu-tattva:

"The bearing of the mark of the discussand others on the body is indicative of his connection with Me even as the bracelet and other ornaments indicates the chastity of a woman (whose husband is alive)".

This (bearing the mark of the discus) also may be the distinguishing mark of a devotee of Vishnu. Anything other than this will lead only to his abandonment and therefore there is no room for the charge of partiality or crueity in Bhagavan.

Those who bear these marks are unassailable to Yama and his servants. For their saviour is Bhagavan Who is armed with the effulgent Chakra having a thousand spokes.

"You should not even go near that place which is within the range of the glances of that devotee in whose heart the Supreme and imperishable Lord Narayana resides. In fact I too cannot go there, because my valour and strength cannot stand before the Discus. That devotee belongs to an entirely different world." (This is the instruction of Yama to his servants.)

488. Sattva-sthah - He is in their hearts.

Again they are impregnable to Yama and his followers since there is no Karma in them which alone is the cause of their sway over them, How is it they alone are devoid of Karma? The answer is because Bhagavan resides in their hearts—(Sattvasthah).

"When Lord Hari, Who is imperishable and eternal and Who wields the Discussand the Mace, abides in the heart of a person, how can sin exist there? Because the sin has been destroyed by Him. How can darkness co-exist with the sun?"

"When Vishnu Who is flawless like a spotless crystal gem is in the heart of a person, how can the defects like jealousy remain there?"

... So says the Vishnu-dharms:

489. Simhah - He Who punishes.

Not realising the greatness of devotees, if Yama and others assail them thinking that they are ordinary human beings, Bhagavan punishes those assailants. So He is called 'Simhah'.

Yama himself declares :

"Vighnu has the power to control me also."

Therefore Markandeya says in Lainga (Purana) I

"When the gods see a Vaishneve who is exclusively devoted to Vasudeva (Vishnu) and whose sins have been completely butnt out, they are afraid (of doing any harm to him); they bow before him with respect and go away as they dame.

Yama also, who is the san of the Sun-god, on easing a devout Sri vaishnava bereft of all ains, would rise with respect and bow before him with folded hands.

Therefore a person should worship with devotion the Stivaishnavas as Vishnu Himself. The Vaishnava attains union with Vishnu. No doubt should be entertained about this."

Again in the same (Lainga Purana) in the episode of Kausika, the action of Brahma is described when he comes across some devotees of Vishnu who are singing His plories:

"Brahma the Pitas-maha (that is the grandfather, the first creator) of the world, on seeing Kausika and other god-singers advanced towards them with respect, welcomed and worship-ped them."

In that story which begins thus much can be found relevant to this topic to the heart's content.

In Vishnu-tativa beginning to speak of hell it is said:

"The servants of Yama automatically keep themselves away from those who have taken refuge at the feet of Bhagavan Hari, and for whom Hari is the only master and no one else.

Even the gods who are in charge of the Hell, are affaid to do any harm to the Vaishnaves, because any insult to them will bring about the destruction of the entire world.

Ever since the beginning of the world no devotee of Vishnu has ever been in the Hell. This is due to the great power of the valour of the Supreme being, Bhagavan."

Again in Vishnu Dharme ::

2. 495. Guruh—The Preceptor.

He is Guru, because He gives instruction to the gods in their respective spheres of duty through the Vedas.

"He Who teaches him (i.e. Brahma) the Vedas."

"I am under the control of my Guru, Bhagavan Hari"—(says Brahma.)

"Fire is 'guru' (the cause) of gold in purifying it from dirt.
(Just like this Bhagavan is Guru of; all since He enlightens them by dispelling their ignorance)through the Vedas)."

"He is the teacher of even the ancients, for He is eternal and not limited by time."

This preceptorship of Bhagavan is very well-known in the story of Haya-sitas (i. e. Hayagreeva):

"O King! Harl, as Haya-griva, (the Horse-faced God) rescued the Vedas from the Nether-worlds and taught them to Brahma. Then He re-assumed His own form."

This is known also from the texts like the following:

"In times of yore all the Vedes were brought back from the fless-tala." (4°5)

RAMAVATARA

503. Kapeendrah—The Lord of the monkeys.

Then In times of yore Bhagavan came as Rama to promote the performance of sacrificial acts faid down in the Vedas which were rescued and taught by Him before (as Hayagriva). When He incarnated Himself as Rama playfully assuming a human body which was entirely different from His own essential nature, He was the Indra for the gods who were his servitors and who had assumed the forms of monkays which were different in a greater degree to their nature. So Bhagavan is called Kepindra.

'Sattvaan' Is one who knows Brahman or one who is possessed of the quality of Sattva. 'Saatvata' signifies the act of the person or the Scripture that is followed by him. Saatvatas are the Bhagavatas. Their Lord is Saatvataam Patih. By this derivation the meaning of the following sloka is suggested:

"निराशीः कर्मसंयुक्तान् सात्वताध्राप्यकलपयम् । सात्वत-ज्ञानदृष्टोऽहं सात्वतः सात्वतीपते! ।। इत्युक्तं व्यवयित् अनयेव व्युत्पत्याः।

Or the Yadavas are called Saatvatas, and being their Lord, Bhagavan is Saatvataam patih.

The affix 'nich' has been added to form the word 'seatvata' in the sense of 'he does' or 'says'.

524 (66, 206) Ajah-He Who is signified by the letter 'A'.

Bhagavan is to be meditated upon as being signified by the letter 'a' which is the origin of the Pranava and as being at the head of all Realities. He is Aja, because He appears in our knowledge as being indicated by the letter 'a'.

"Narayana is the Supreme Lord Who occupies the highest place amongst all the Tattvas (Realities) and Who is signified by the letter 'a' which is the origin for the word Pranava (i.e. Onkara) (which is invariably pronounced at the beginning of the recitation of the Veda and which has also a definite place at the end of the recitation)."

Palamatma is the twenty-sixth and the highest Reality signified by the letter, 'a'. Jivatma is the twenty-fifth Tativa and is signified by the letter 'm'. The other twenty-four Tattvas are non-sentient and they are: Prakriti (the Primordial Matter), Mahat, Ahankara, the mind, the five organs of sense (Jnanendriyas—eye, ear, tongue, nose and skin), the five organs of action (Karmendriyas—hands, legs, the organs of $25. Wahaarhah-He Who is worthy of worship.

Amongst these Tettves, Bhagavan is the Superior Tattva Who is to be worshipped by means of the Pranava and by offering one's soul to Him. (Maham means worship).

"The great secret which the gods are keeping as taught by the great Upanishad is that the Jiva is to be offered to Bhagavan, the Supreme Brahman by means of the Pranava, (in which the first letter 'a' signifies Paramatma and the last letter 'm' Jivatma,)". $25. Svaabhaavyah—He Who is to be meditated upon by those who belong to Him.

Thus by this Mantra (viz. Pranava), all the souls, which are His property, should inevitably meditate upon Him with love, he being the Master of all of them.

"If you desire the highest goal of life and the means of attaining it, you should understand clearly that you are the servant and that Isvare is the Master and that this relationship is eternal and a natural one".

"There is no other reason for the Supreme Being to be the Ruler of the Universe."

Or He is Svaabhaavya, because the relationship between the Lord and the souls as Master and servant is eternal and natural, and must be meditated upon as such.

527. Jitaamitrah-The Conqueror of the foes.

Egotism, the feeling that all things are mine (and not God's), and the desires in the devotees are enemies (amitra) for the understanding of the secret delineated above. Bhagavan vanquishes all of them for the benefit of His devotees. So He is Jitaamitra—the Conqueror of the foes. This is a well-known fact that desires and the like are the enemies.

Sri Krishna reveals this fact to Arjuna in the Bhagavad, Gite in six slokes the first and the last of which read thus:

"This (cause of sin) is desire as well as anger born from the Guna called Rajes."

"O long-armed Arjunal Put an end to this invincible enemy namely Keema (desire)." (527)

The Kapile Incarnation of Bhagevan

529. Aanandah—He Who is Bliss.

3 - Next the Incarnation of Bhagavan as Kapila is dealt with.

Bhagavan is called Aananda because He is endowed with a Bliss which is beyond the region of thought and word and about the greatness of which a detailed investigation has been made in the Ananda-vaili (a section of the Taittiriya Upanishad) and conclusion arrived at.

*****The affix 'ach' (a) comes after the words 'arsa' etc. in the sense of 'matup' (i.e. possession). (529)

Bhagavan confers that Bliss on the Released soule in the state of Release described above and makes them happy. So He is Nandanah.

531. Nandah—He Who is replete (with things blissful).

In this way innumerable objects of enjoyment are in great abundance in Him. So He is Nandah.

"The affix 'ghain' comes after a case-inflected word indicating location, (i.e. in the Locative Case)." (531)

- - 532. Satya-dharmaa—He Is true in His acts.

Bhagavan is noted for His uprightness towards His devotees from the time they begin to approach Him up to the time of their attainment of Him. So He is Satya-dharmaa. (532)

533. Trivikramah He Who traverses or pervades the three Vedas.

By this superior greatness of His, Bhagavan pervades through the three Vedas as their main topic. So He is called Trivikrams. Vide:

Triad is the term by which the three Vedas are referred to by the great seers. Thou traversest all the three of them (by Thy greatness) and so Thou art known by the name of Trivikrama."

The State of the Bhagavan is Maharshih since (in His Incarnation as Kapita) He realised the three Vedas by Intuitive perception as detailed above.

"One should think of Him as speaking through his mouths the Rik and other Vedas." This is the way in which he is to be meditated upon.

"Kapila, who was e seer from his very birth."

"He is the propounder of the Sankhya System and is spoken of as the Great Seer." (534)

535. Kapilaacharya—He Who is 'Kapila' (of brown complexion) and also an Acharya (Teacher).

He is of brown (kapila) complexion and a Teacher (Acharye).

Here is the form in which He has to be meditated upon :

"He Who is possessed of a lustre like the burning and smokeless ember, and has Sankha and Padma beads in his hand."

He is Acharya, because He has collected together all the knowledge with regard to the Tattvas (Realities) pertaining to his system of Philosphy. The Mantra describing Him says:

"To Him Who spread the knowledge of His system."

The word Kapila is derived from the root 'Kabr' (to colour).

"The affix 'liach' comes after the verb 'Kam' (to desire) or 'Kabr' (to colour) and the 'm' or 'br' is changed to 'p' (Kam+ilach=Kapila). (535)

The sons of King Sagara had offended the Sage Kapila by whom they were reduced to ashes. But later when Amsuman, the grandson of Sagara came before Kapila and bowed before him with respect, Kapila remembered only that good act. So he is called Kritajna. Kapila was not only pleased with the virtuous act of Amsuman, but also wanted to confer a boon on him. So he said to him, "Choose a boon."

"Amsuman approached Kapila and bowing before him with respect praised him. Then Lord Kapila seid to Him. "Choose a boon." (536)

538. Tri-padah—The propounder of the three (Tattvas).

He is known as Tri-pada since He has the three Tattvas which are to be revealed to the world. The three Tattvas are—Bhokta (the enjoyer, the individual soul), Bhogya (the object of enjoyment, the non-sentient matter), and the Ruler (Isvara). Vide:

"Having assumed the form of Kapila, I am going to reveal the three Realities for the benefit of all beings in the world the three Tattvas namely Pradhana (non-sentient matter), Purusha (the Jiva), and Paramatma.

The Transcendent From

544. Sushenah—He who is equipped with an efficient army-like body.

Another secret is revealed here with reference to Bhagavan in His Transcendent Form. He has a charming body which is composed of Suddhe Sattva and which is delineated by the Panchopanishad Mantras. This body is like a powerful army to Him since it helps Him to conquer the souls in bondage, the souls released end the Eternal Angels. As His body serves Him as a Su-Sena (good army), He is called Sushena.

545. Kanakaangadee—He who is adorned by armlets of gold.

Bhagavan is ever adorned by celestial ornaments of which the armiets mentioned here are but an example. These ornaments also are composed of that celestial matter (Suddha Sattva) which set off the beauty of the body described earlier. The word 'Kanaka' in Kanakaangadi is only suggestive of the unique and fine substances which are of a transcendental nature and are different from the material of this world which is composed of the three Gunas—Sattva, Rajas and Tamas.

The suffix 'ini' at the end of the word 'Kanakaangadee' indicates the constant association of those ornaments of gold with the Paramatma. (545)

He is called Guhya since He is concealed by virtue of the possession of a body composed of the celestial materials which fact is revealed by the great Upanisheds referred to as Panchopanished earlier.

(Just as the material body in this world is composed of the Pancha—bhutas (five elements), the bodies of the Paramatma and others in Sri Vaikunta are composed of fine

547. Gabheerah - He who is deep or mysterious.

He is deep because of His inscrutable and superlor nature which is revealed by the Panchopanishada (mentioned earlier). By coming into contact with Him, even the bound souls, defiled by the beginningless Nescience, become clean like the muddy water which becomes clean by its contact with the kataka' seed. Such being the case, need it be said that Bhagavan Who is ever effulgent by nature will be more so.

The words 'gabheera' and 'gambheera' have been formed irregularly. The affix 'eeran comes after the root 'gash', the 'm' or which is changed to 'ph'. Optionally the root receives the augment 'num'. (547)

The Ocean cannot be said to be knee-deep even though one is able to see things on its bed because of the clear water which is translucent. (In the same way Paramatma cannot be fully understood even though His qualities are understood to a certain extent by the Upanishads).

Where and in what manner has He been concealed?

Ramayana says only this much about the Superior nature of Paramatma: "The Creator is far beyond the region of Tamas (i.e. Prakriti-mandala) and He bears the Conch, the Discus and the Mace."

The same is repeated here as Chakra-gadas-dharah. It does clearly declare that His weapons are eternal and celestial by nature and are composed of the divine material called Pancha-sakti in the same way as He has a body and ornaments, eternal and celestial by nature. (550)

$54(58).. Krishnah-The Dark-hued.

He is Krishna as He has a body composed of the Suddhasattva which has a fascinating complexion dark like that of a blue cloud.

"The affix 'nak' comes after the verb 'krish' (to plough) when it means one of the colours." (krish+nak=krishna).

It has been declared by the ancients that the body of Bhagavan in His incarnations as Varaha and the like is composed of the same material (Suddha-Sattva).

"O Arjuna; the son of Prthaa! I become a big plough of black iron and plough this Earth. Since my colour is black I am known as "Krishna"."

All these as mentioned above are described clearly in Sri Vishnu Tativa:

"There is one important Sakti in the form of My body which is fivefold. Even though Bhagavan is endowed with all kinds of Saktis (powers), He, because of His compassion, which is natural to Him, does not give them up at any time, Parameshtee, Pumaan, Visvah, Nivrittih and Sarvah—these are the five Saktis of the Paramatma."

Their real nature is described as being twofold and then it is continued:

"O Best of Brahmins; The Incarnations of the Supreme Being as Matsya, Kurma, Varaha and so on are only made with these Saktis, but not in any other way which will be contrary to them." (554)

(555)

555. Dridhah-He Who is in a gross form.

From out of this eternal form of His, Bhagavan assumes by means of this Sakti the Vyuha (Emanation) for blessing His devotees.

"Dridha" is derived from the roots 'drh' and 'drhi' (to grow),

'Drdha' in the sense of 'firm' and 'strong' has been irregularly formed as the past passive participle." (555)

Who (assumes this gross form)? Sankarshana,

The Maulas say about Him thus: "In this world, He draws within Himself both the Chit and the Achit in the same way: He is Sankarshana. His power of attraction is uniform."

55% Varunah—He Who envelops.

"By Whom are covered the Ether, the Sverga and the Earth."

"By Him all this is enveloped."

So He is called Varuna (Who covers everything).

The word 'Varuna' is derived from the root 'vrjn' (to envelop). "The affix 'unan' comes after the roots 'kr', 'vr' and 'dr." (Vr+unan=Varuna). (558)

.... 559. तं स्वामित्वेन वृण्ते इति वरुणः; तत भवो वारुणः।

Like a shady tree, He is possessed of all things that are required by those who resort to Him and He elso puts up with hundreds of injuries done by them. So He is Vriksha (their Resort).

Vriksha is derived from 'vrj' (to seek or resort to).

"He is the one Resort for the good and the supreme refuge in distress".

"Like an unmoving and firm tree He stands in the Heavens.".

"There is no doubt that the ripe fruits of all desires will fall from that tree of Brahman Who is eternal and Who is the resort of all." And so on. (560)

Bhagavan has two eyes which nourish the devotees by showering favours on them. So He is Pushkaraaksha.

The word 'pushkara' is formed by adding the effix 'karan' to the root 'push' (to nourish). It gets the 'kit' affix here. (561)

"Riches of all kinds, valour, reputation, prosperity, knowledge and non-attachment—these six qualities go by the name of 'bhaga'."

'Hanti'—He goes to them (i.e. has all of them). The verb 'hanti' is derived from the root 'han' signifying movement.

In this context all that has been said in the Sixth Amsa of Vishou Purana with reference to the derivation of the word 'Bhagavan' must be written here. (564)

568. (37). Aadityah—The Son of Aditi, (Devaki) or He Who has to be realised by means of 'Aa', Bhagavan has the name of Aaditya, because He is to be realised by the mystic letter 'Aa' which signifies Him. The letter 'Aa' is said to be the 'Bija-mantra' of God Sankarshana. The word 'Aditya' is split into two words 'Aat' and 'ityah'; (From the letter 'Aa' + to be attained.) ""The affix 'Kyap' comes after the roots 'i' 'stu' etc."

Or He is Aaditya, because He is the son of Devaki who was Aditi in her previous birth. The Vaishnava Dharma states that Bhagavan spoke to Devaki as follows:

"You are Daakshaayani (the daughter of Daksha) born as Aditi in this world. You are the mother eternal of the world. I confer favours on you." " (568)

Narayana

The following section pertains to the Incarnation of Bhagavan as Narayana.

569. Jyorir-Aadityah-The Respiendent Aditya (Sun.)

Bhagavan has an effulgence which is celestial, unique and wonderful. So He is Jyotir-Aditya. The luminary, popularly known as the Sun, will fade into darkness before His resplendence.

Narayanesya says :

"When they both (Nara and Narayana) began to fight with Bhava (i. e. Rudra)" "All the luminaries became devoid of their luminosity and Brahma too slipped from his seat." (569)

570 (146). Sahlahnuh-He Who has patience.

In that fight the Lord put up with the wrong committed by Siva and therefore He is Sahishnu.

In the same context it is stated :

"Rudra then apologised to Narayana Who was His Lord to win His favour. He also performed Prapatti to Hari, the Creator of the world, the foremost Deity and the Giver of boons. The Supreme Ruler, the Giver of boons, became gracious, controlled His anger, became pleased and associated there with Rudra."

572. Su-dhanvaa - He Who has a splendind bow.

He has a bow that brought about the end of the fight between the gods and Asuras which began with the distribution of the Nectar.

"Then Bhagavan saw the celestial bow that was in the hands of Nara."

"Then Nara (the companion of Narayana) covered the entire region of the sky with his great arrows bejowelled with bands of gold."

573. Khanda-parasuh---He with the broken axe.

Bhagavan got the name of Khanda-Parasu since the fight with Rudra came to an end with the discharge of the axe by Bhagavan.

"Then for the destruction of Rudia, Nara took up a reed and by the recitation of Mantras gave new power to it, At once it became an immense axe. It was thrown on Rudia with great force. But then it got broken. Because of the breaking of the axe, from that time I came to be known as 'Khanda-parasu'—the Lord with the broken axe." (573)

Incarnation as Vyasa

575. Draving-pradah—The Wealth-giver.

Next the Incarnation of Bhagavan as Vyaca (is described). He bestows the entire wealth viz. the substance of all the Sastrae and their meaning. The following sloka describes the form in which He is meditated upon:

"Vyese holds in his left hand the collection of all the Sestres and their purport, and propounds by his right hand the true import of all the Sestres." (575)

576. Divi sprik—He Who touches the Lord in the Parama-

By His Para-vidya (Brahmic or Supreme knowledge), He touches the mystic nature of His Reality as it is in the Paramapada (Transcendental World).

"He Who knows the Supreme Reality" is the Mantre for His meditation.

"The affix 'kvin' comes after the verb 'sprsa' (to touch) when it is in composition with a case-inflected word other than 'udaka' (water)." Here the word is 'divi'.

"The Locative ending is not elided after a stem ending in a consonant of a short 'a' when the compound is a name."

He is Sarva-drk since He sees the great glory of all others also.

The Mantra about Him is "To the Omniscient".

"The rule about the 'kvin' affix quoted in the previous name (576) should be applied here also,"

"A stem formed with the affix 'kvin' substitutes at the end of a word a guttural for the final consonant." The letter 's' in the root 'drs' is substituted by 'k' and the form is 'drk'.

583. Saama—The Dispeller.

He is Saama since He dispels the sins of those who sing about Him.

The word 'saama' is derived from the root 'sho' ('so') (to put an end to). "The affixes 'manin' and 'manin come after the roots 'so' (to put an end to) and 'at' (to go). (583)

How does He give the treatment? He cuts asunder the bonds in the form of Rejoguna and Tamoguna when acts are performed in a disinterested manner with a spirit of renunciation of desire for the fruit. Here the word "Sannyassa" signifies the surrender of the burden to the Master. That surrender elone is the remedy for the Samsara. This is in accordance with the Sauti also:

"Those who have acquired the true knowledge (of Tattva, Hita and Purushartha) by the study of the Upanishads, do Yoga by doing acts renouncing the desire for fruits and giving up the idea that they are the chief agent of the acts. By this material world He makes all those beings enjoy those things and Himself feels delighted by that. So He is Kumuda.

597. Kuvalesayah —The Controller of the Jivas who wander in this world as masters of their bodies.

(This name is interpreted by dividing it into several parts es: Ku+vels+iss+yes. 'Ku' means the world or in an evil way; 'vala' is derived from the verb 'valanti' which means wander. The word 'kuvalas' signifies the Jivas who are wandering in this world or who are going about in an evil way. 'Isa' means ruler. This refers to the Jivas who think they are the masters of their bodies end indrivas. 'Yaa' comes from the verb yeati' (goes). This refers to Paramatma. Thus the word Kuvalesaya' is the name of Paramatma who goes about controlling the Jivas who are wandering in this world in an evil way till the end of their worldly existence thinking that they are the masters of their own bodies and sense-organs.

Paramatma, as the Supreme Ruler, controls the Prakriti, the field in which the seeds for the growth of the worldly existence for the Jivas are sown.

them are dear to Bhagavan, He is Vrisha-priya. The purpose of these (Vedic) injunctions is only to please Him. This has been established by the Brahma Sutras as follows:

"The fruit proceeds from the Para Brahman. There are appropriate reasons for the same".

Dramidacharya also echoes the same idea; "It is only with the object of obtaining the fruit that all are trying to please the Paramatma by means of Dharma or virtuous acts. The Sastraic code also lays down that the acquisition of His pleasure is enough for the attainment of the desired fruit."

Therefore all other schools of thought holding views that differ from this are to be disregarded—views which say that the cause of the truit is Karma (action) or its latent impression, or power, or Apoerva (a unique substance), or Bheavana (Psychic effect), or Vidhi (Destiny).

603. Anivartee—He Who does not turn away (those who are inclined to come back to this world.)

If some are attached to Pravritti dharma, Bhagawan does not stop them from coming into this world through the path of the Pitrs beginning with Smoke. That is the cause for the continuance of this Samsara. Vide:

"Smoke, night, then the dark fortnight, the six months that constitute the Dakshinayana (the winter solstice)—there is a path which is characterised by all these. The Yogi who departs from this world and goes by this path, reaches the light of the moon, and then comes back (to this world)."

607. Sivah—The Auspicious.

He does what is auspicious for all whether they desire the enjoyment of worldly pleasures or whether they seek release. He is Siva.

"He is the cause of the bondage of worldly existence and also of release therefrom."

"The God rules ever the world of the Pitrs."

"He is auspicious for those that do auspicious things, and inauspicious for those that do inauspicious things." (607)

611. Sreemataam varah —The Foremost amongst the Opulent.

Bhagavan is ever the object of the ardent full and loving glances of Lakshmi whereas Brahma and others are but the object of a casual glance of Hers for a moment, Vide—

"Lakshmi, as She emerged from the Milk-ocean, was bedecked with white garlands and garments, and her body was beautified by all ornaments. Even as all the gods were looking with wide open eyes. She approached Vishnu and took Har seat on His chest.

'O Maitreya! When Lakshmi looked at those gods from Her seat on the chest of Hari, all of them at once experienced immense joy."

613. Sreesah-The Lord of Sri.

Bhagavan is called Sreesah, because He is the cause of the glory of Lakshmi also. Vide :

"He is the supreme glory of Sri Herself."

Or He is Sreesah because He has Sri as His Ruler. It is She that guides Him In the various acts of His in different conditions.

"(Lakshmi is ever with Bhagavan) either as His innate qualities in His Transcendental Form, or in a delightful form in His body, or as His support by Her essential nature of as a devout servant."

"The Ruler of the individual souls, of Prakriti and of the Ruler Himself" is one of the well-known names of Lakshmi.

Lakshmi is the main cause for the well-known greatness of the Lord. He is Sri-vibheavana since His greatness is manifested by Her. So it is described by Valmiki:

640. Architeh-He Who is worshipped.

Vyassa next proceeds to state that all that has been stated above with reference to superior qualities of Bhagavan is quite possible and stands to reason. He is Architah.

Archa is the incernation of Bhagavan in Images and Archita signifies He has that form. This incernation of Bhagavan in images or icons is not in a far off place like the Para-roopa, (the Transcendental form of Bhagavan). Nor is it limited to a particular place or time like His incernations as a god (Upandra for example) or a human being (as Hama), all of which are known as Vibhava-avatara. But it is perceptible in holy places, temples and houses at all times. The mysterious truth about it can be learnt from the Bhagavat Sastres (also known as Pancharatra Agamas), Bodhayana Smriti, Vaishnava Purana and other scriptural Texts. Vide: in Valshnava Dharma—

641. Kumbhah-He Who is an object of desire.

He is desired by all (Kumbhah) because of His beauty which is similar to the beauty with which they are familiar in this world.

"The substitute 'kum' comes in the place of the root 'kamu' (to desire) and the affix 'bha' is also added, kamu + kum (kamu = kum + bha = kumbha).

Or Bhagavan is called Kumbha because He shines (bhaa) in this world (kum). By His immense power He drives away all fear from the servants of Yama and the like; The Lord shines in this world—Kumbha, the world which is marked by he presence of only shrines and temples, where the utmost that can be done by a person is only meditation and worship and the contact for a human being with which is limited by birth and death.

The word 'kumbha' is treated as correct and comes under the 'prehodaraadi' rule.

The boundary, the extent and the like of the holy shrines have been described in the Paushkara-bhaga as follows:

"A holy shrine sanotifies that part of the earth around it even as it does its own place. Such is the greatness of the shrine."

"The sanctity of a holy shrine extends up to that part of the land where the echo of the sound of the conch blown from the temple of a god is heard".

"The embodied souls who wish to attain the fruits in this world and the other, and who strive to attain them, 'the fruits in the form of the eight Siddhis like shimsa, attain them if they live in the sacred shrines,"

"The Lord is present in all places in the highways and byways so that all beings who live on this earth may attain salvation (if by chance they happen to tread on those paths)."

"When a man, living in a holy shrine, gives up his life praying to God in the last moments 'O Lord Janardana; Save me' and lies surrounded by his wife and children, the attendents of the Lord of that holy shrine at once come there and first drive away by force the frightening servants of the Lord of death (Yama). Then with the blowing of conchs and beating of drums, they mount the body on a splendid chariot and take it to the presence of the Lord and submit I 'O Lord I in this holy shrine of Thine this person has given up his mortal body composed of the five elements. Now he is a destitute. Please do according to his desert. Then the Lord on hearing the words of his attendants, turns his eyes full of mercy on that pegeon to bless him,"

As stated above, in the case of those who have given up their bodies in a holy shrine, the Lord of the Shrine, Himself purifies them or through His servants. According to their Karma they attain god even in that birth itself or after a series of virtuous births. This is the teaching of the Scriptures.

Soora is Rama as stated in the following text:

"The great Rame, Who has broad lotus-like eyes and Who brought about the destruction of the Rakshasas, lives on the Chitrakuta Mountain."

The word 'Soora' is derived from the root 'su' (to go).
"The affix 'kran' comes after the roots 'su', 'sl', 'chl' and 'mi'," and the root of the vowel is lengthened." (Su + ra = soora).

'The Lord has the name Kama-deva as He grants all the desires of all beings. He is on the Himalaya in the place of Sankara where He is worshipped by the Apsarasas (Divine damsels).,'

The word 'deva' is derived from the verb 'deevyati' from the root "div" signifying the act of gift," (657)

658. स एव दत्तानुपालनात् कामपालः ।। (658)

He is Vishnu since He enters into the Universe by virtue of His power of pervasion, rulership etc.

"He, Who is the embodiment of all powers" —Is the Mantra about Him.

In the Aditya-purane it is said:

"Since the entire Universe is pervaded by the Supreme Delty, He is known as Vishnu. The name 'Vishnu' is derived from the root 'vis' (to enter into)."

In the Udyoga (Parva in Mahabharata)-

"The Lord gets the name 'Vishnu', because He measured the three worlds with His steps." (663)

665. Anantah—The Limitless.

He is Ananta since He is not limited by space, time or object. His Mantra says—

"Unto Him of unbounded form."

"There is no end to a description in detail of the objects (which I control)."

"There is no end to this object known as Brahman."

"Brahman Is Existence, Knowledge and Infinite."

All these signify that it is the nature of Bhagavan to act at all times, in all places and in all ways. The fact of His not being conditioned by objects does not mean that there is complete identity between the object and Himself. For then it will lead to the unwelcome conclusion that space and time also will become identical with Him and that they have no separate existence. It is not to your liking. (665)

666. Dhananjayah-He Who surpasses wealth.

That He is boundless is established with reference to His qualities and possessions. Dhananjaya—He excels all wealth like gold diamond etc., because of His great superiority. He is longed for eagerly by all. All make great efforts to acquire Him, and keep Him secure. Above all He is the means for their redemption.

667. Brahmanyah—He Who is benefical to Brahman (i.e. the sentient beings and the non-sentient objects).

Here the word Brahman' is used to signify things that are big. In several places Jivatma also is referred to as Brahman, because his acts are great and his knowledge is profound. His enjoyment of all objects in this world and in the other is also great.

"That (individual soul) whose essential nature is knowledge, is called Brahman."

"The Brahman (the individual soul) when unsulfied (i.e. free from contact with the Prakriti) is the same everywhere."

The Avyakta (or Prakriti) is also called Brahman (big). When it is enjoyed by the individual soul, it transforms itself into infinite objects of enjoyment. Vide:

"The womb (from which the Universe is born) is the great Brahman (i.e. Prakriti). It also belongs to Me."

Since Bhagavan is the cause for the existence and enjoyment of these two (Prakriti and Purusha), He is benificial to them. Hence His name Brahmanya. (667)

668. Brahma-krit-brahma—He Who controls Brahma, the creator of big things.

Mahat, Ahankara and other things which are the effects of Prakriti, are also big; because they expand themselves as big things in the world. So they also are called Brahman (big). Vide:

"From Him (the Supreme Brahman) proceeds this undifferentiated creation (Brahman) as also the world of matter and soul (anna) characterised by the distinguishing marks of name and form."

This world is brahma (big); the four-faced Brahma is the creator of this world (brahma-krit); this Brahma is always controlled by Paramatma, Whose name therefore is Bramha-krit-Brahma. (668)

Thus Parametma expands the con-sentiant matter as gross and subtle, and expands the souls as aggregate and separate. He also is big with the hosts of unsurpassed and auspicious qualities, and big by His essential nature and by the glory of His possessions. Therefore He is Brahman, He does not look for any external help to do anything and is to be learnt only from a study of the Upanishads.

676. Mahaa-kramah---He who provides steps for the slevation of others.

Paremetma is very high and the Jivas are far below in the Nether-world of Samsara. In order to raise them up He provides a gradually escending series of great steps. So He is called Mahaa-kramah. This is like the action of the mother who first feeds the infant with her breast-milk, then with cow's milk and then gives the child solid food and finally luxurious food. Similarly in order to redeem a virtuous person, Bhagavan raises him step by step and makes him act up to His will.

At first he removes from his mind the hatred against Him; then He makes him believe Him and His injunctions; next He draws the mind of man towards him and makes him obey his injunctions. After that He bestows knowledge and devotion, and generates deep faith in him. Ultimately He makes him attain Him. Otherwise, "If Nescience (Avidya) is not abandoned in this order, it will land the man only in bondage again." Therefore they say:

"By means of austerities, meditation and contemplation on Bhagavan in hundreds of births, the sins of human beings are annihilated and devotion to Krishna is horn."

"It is only at the end of many births that a wise man respits to Me."

- "O Dhananjaya I (Arjuna!) By constant practice and meditation strive to attain Me." (676)

How can He who is so very great come near these beings which are small like a particle of dust? Here the word 'uras' which means chest signifies the heart: Thus he reaches them through their hearts.

"There were only recitations of the Hymns sung in the Aranyaka portion of the Vedas."

(Aranyaka is a class of religious and philosophical writings (connected with the Brahmanas) which are either composed in a forest or must be studied there.)

In this way the offerings to Him involve no crueity to enimals. They are saatvik and are based on the Upanishade.

- "The oblation of the Brahman which has the Brahman for its instrument (is offered into the fire of the Brahman by the Brahman (Jivatma.) By him who meditates on the Brahman as (the soul of) work, Brahman alone is to be attained.)"
- "(And others) offering in addition the sacrifice of knowledge (worship Me as one—(Me), who, marked by diversity in various ways, am multiform)."

"it was felt by Upericharvasu, an exclusive and single-minded_devotee that his soul, kingdom, wealth wife and vehicles were all for Bhagavan,"

This fact is revealed by this text also: "The sacrifice of knowledge is superior, O slayer of foes, to the sacrifice of material objects." (683)

'yat' is added to the root 'stu' (to praise) in the sense of 'he deserves praise.' Bhagavan alone deserves praise since He Is endowed with highly auspicious qualities which are eternal, boundless and flawless. He alone is renowned as the Lord of the Thousand Names and His praise alone is not vain flattery. Other gods etc. are not fit to be praised as their qualities are quite contrary to the above.

In the Barhaspatya Smriti it is stated :

"A person praises a rich man with great fervour on account of a desire for money. Who will not be released from bondage if he praises the Creator of the Universe in that way?"

"These are the thousand names of the reputed Lord Who deserves to be praised with them." (684)

685. Stava-priyah-He Who relishes the praise.

He is Stava-priya since He is pleased with anything that is said with the idea of extolling His qualities, it may be done by any person in whatever way and whatever language. It may glorify Him or even denigrate Him. The story of Ghantea-kerna is a striking example for this quality of the Lord.

(Ghanta-kerna—He was one of the attendants of Siva and was such a great devotee that he did not like to hear the names of Vishnu and other gods, even spoken casually by others. Lest they should fall in his ears, he suspended two bells from his ears and whenever a person began to speak of Vishnu, he would shake his head violently so that the ringing of the bells would deafen him. In his eagerness to avoid hearing he was keenly observing if any one spoke that name and this, in fact, ended only in his thinking of that god always, though without devotion. It is said that this constant thinking of Vishnu earned for him salvation. (685)

686. Stotram—The Eulogy incarnate.

This praise of Him is accomplished by Himself as an instrument when He is pleased with the singer. This is seen in the praise of Bhagavan by Dhruya.

(The young child Dhruva was doing severe penance in order to realise the Lord. When the Lord appeared before him, the child was struck dumb with emotion and could not utter a word. The Lord with love touched the cheek of the child with His conch. The next moment words of praise began to flow from Dhruva's mouth.)

693. Punya-keertih—He, the singing of whose glory also is purifying.

"Maitreyal Just as fire purifies the metals, the unequalled recitation of the names of Bhagavan which have unsurpassed greatness destroys all the ains of men."

"They who, without being aware of it, pronounce the name of Bhagavan, are freed from all sins in the same way as a deer is freed from the attacks of the beasts of prey which (beasts) become frightened on hearing a lion's roar (and jun away leaving the deer)."

"A man in Kali Yuga attains by the mere mention of the names of Bhagavan everything—whatever fruit a man obtained in Krita yuga by renunciation (tyaga), whatever fruit a man obtained in the Dyapara yuga by the performance of sacrifices and whatever fruit a man obtained in the Treta yuga by worshipping the Lord."

It is because of this greatness that it is revealed by the Veda itself that the Hymns in His praise (and those who sing them) purify rows of persons who come into contact with them.

721. Aparaajitah-The Invincible.

Again in the Bharata-Yuddha, all the five Pandavas were without any supporters. They were not defeated by the hundred sons of Dhrita-rashtra who were very strong with great armies, because they were supported by Sri Krishna, the Invincible (Aparaajita).

In the Aranyaka-parva, Indra says to Karna:

"In the great fight, you can kill one thundering warrior, but not that one, (Arjuna) who is protected by the great God (Sri Krishna)."

"Krishna, Whom the Vedic scholars declare as the invincible Heri, Who had assumed the form of Wild Boar (Varaha) and Who is the incomparable Narayana."

The "words of Rudra to Jayadratha are :—"In the fight you can ward off the attacks of all invincible and indestructible warriors: except that long-armed Arjuna who is unassailable even to the gods."

"The best of men! Victory is quite assured for him whose charloteer Thou hast agreed to be. There is no defeat for him."

Bhishma, Drona and others also say in one voice:

"With this one bow I can annihilate all the Pandavas if Vishnu is not their Protector — Vishnu Who is the Supreme Purusha and Who is the Cause of the Universe."

"Truth is steady in a Brahmin; humility is certain in the pious; wealth is sure in the skilful; Victory is certien in Narayana."

722. Visya moortih—He who has the Universe as His body.

How is it that the strong cannot conquer the weak? This is because the whole world is His body. It is well-known that no one will do anything which is harmful to himself. With this idea in mind, the poet says: "Visva-moorth". Vide:

4:010 Guitaakesa (Arjuna): I am the Inner Soul Who resides in the hearts of all beings."

730. Ekah-The Unique.

He is Ekah, unique and matchless since with reference to His supreme greatness, there is no one who can be equated with Him. Statements like 'two Brahmins' 'three Kshattriyas etc, are current because there are many who can be classified under the same head as Brahmins or Kshattriyas. In regard to Bhagayan there is no one equal to Him possessing such special characteristics. So He is Eka, the One Who is unique. Yide:

"He was the only King of the whole world,"

"There is no one like HIm,"

"Eka" is derived from the root 'i' (to go). The affix 'kan' is added to the roots 'i' (to (go), 'bhl' (to fear' kai)' to (to sound (etc.) ('i' = ekah; 'kai' = kaakah). (730)

731. Naikah - He Who is not one only.

This Oneness is not based upon the negation of all things, or on illusion, or by intermixture or modifications etc. He has all things which are His glorious possessions and which are of a nature different from His. Therefore He is not One. Vide:

"O Arjuna, the destroyer of enemies! There is no end to the divine giorles of Mine. (What I have stated in detail is only a part of My giorles.)" (731)

752. Chalah -- He Who swerves.

He is called Chalah, because for the sake of helping the Pandavas who were His devotees, He even swerved from the righteous path of keeping His word. Sri Krishna had taken a vow that He would not handle or use any weapon in the Bhareta-yuddha. But in order to save Arjuna from Bhishma He did not mind breaking His vow and with the Chakra in the uplifted hand He rushed towards Bhishma to attack him. Videt

Both in the Para and Vyooha rupas Bhagavan has four arms and it was in this four-armed form that He was born of Devaki. When she saw that form, she at once prayed to Him;

"O The Inner Soul of all beings! Please withdraw this four-armed form within Yourself. Let not this Kamea that belongs to the Asura race know that you are the incarnation of Vishnu)."

As in the case of the four Vyoohas in which in one Vasudeva vyooha He has all the six qualities and in the other three Vyoohas in each He has two qualities. Similarly in the Vibhave-avatara as Krishna, He as Vasudeva, has all the six qualities and in the other three—Balarama, Aniruddha and Pradyumna—He has two qualities in each. (773)

The difficulty in the attainment of Bhagavan mentioned above is only with reference to those who are great sinners and who are not eager to attain Him. This is being dealt with by the following twenty-four names (names 787 to 810).

Duragrinah are those Who follow the evil path. He gets rid of them by several means like making them give up the path of the Vedas. Vide in the Vaishnava (Purana)—

"By His powerful skill He confounded in several ways their minds and led them astray as a result of which there was not even one amongst them who had a liking for the Vedas. They became averse to go in the right path and they were easily disposed of by the gods."

809. Mahaa-hradah-The Vast Lake.

He was a wide lake in which the evil-doers sink once for all never to rise up, as stated in the Gita-

"I hurl the impious men continuously into the cycles of births and deaths in demoniscal wombs."

Again He was a take in which virtuous men bathe again and again, but never get satiated. So He was Mahaa-hradah.

The word 'hrada' is derived from the root 'hraad' (to make an indistinct sound). The lake is called 'hrada' since its waters are ever producing an indistinct noise. The long vowel 'aa' of 'hraada' is shortened as 'a' (in hrada) irregularly according to the rule 'prishodara etc''. (809)

810. Mahaa-gartah-The Great Pit.

In this way He sends into the great pits of Heil like Reurava all those who have lost their souls by the knowledge they have which is contrary to the teachings of the Vedas completely or partially. So He is called Mahaa gartah. Vide:

"O Arjuna I The Slayer of the foss! Persons who have no faith in the Dharma taught by Me do not attain Me and continue to tread the path of the world of death." (810)

So far the quality of Bhagavan as the punisher of those of Asuric temperament who voilate His ordinances has been described. Next the quality of Bhagavan as the bestower of grace on those who are born with divine characteristics and who follow the path of the Scriptures is going to be delineated.

He is Kundars, because He gives the world ('ku') (of Salvation): or He is flawless like the 'Kunda' flower; or 'Kundam' is the knowledge of the Supreme Reality; that He bestows. ('rasti'). The word 'Kundars' is irregularly formed like 'Prshodarsadi':

"I bestow on them that knowledge (by which they attain Me)." (814)

(Para-bhakti—A more intense devotion by which one entertains a great desire to realise the Brahman. Para-jugana is the perfect vision of God, which one gets just for a moment and which is the cause for the still greater devotion To Him.

Or 'kum' is an irregularly formed word ending with the nasal 'm' which meens sin, Bhagavan is called Kundara, because He destroys the sin. (Kum + dearayati). Again He is Kunda since He cleanses the sin which has been taken out. The affix 'da' in the word 'Kunda' is derived from the root 'daip' (to cleanse).

"The affix 'a' comes after a verbal root ending in long 'aa' when there is no preposition preceding it and when the object is in composition with it." (815)

815. Parjanyah-The rain-cloud.

He is Parjanyah (the Rain-Cloud) since Heremoves the three kinds of heat (namely pain or suffering). [The three kinds of pain are—pain caused by mind (eadhyaatmika), that caused by fate or gods (aadhi-daivike) and that caused by animal (aadhi-bhautika).]

The word 'Parjanya' is derived from the root 'aj' (to dispel) and has the affix 'enya' added in the end. The word is 'rregularly formed. (816)

Anitab is derived from the root 'ila' (to urge). 'Ila' is that person who urges another to do an act. Bhagavan is 'Anita' (without an inducer) since there is no one to induce Him to save His devotees; for He does it by Himself.

"In the fight between the gods and the demons. King Puranjaya set on the hump of the buil (which form Indra had taken), and being infused with the power of Bhagavan Achyuta who was very engry with the Asuras he killed all the Asuras."

(Allusion: Mythology relates that, when, in their war with the demons, the gods were often worsted, they, headed by Indra, went to the powerful Puranjaya, and requested him to help them in battle. The latter consented to do so provided Indra carried him on his shoulders. Indra accordingly assumed the form of a bull and Puranjaya seated on its hump, completely vanquished the demons (endowed as he was with the prowess of Bhagavan).

The same is mentioned in the episode of Purukutsa also.

"King Puru-kutsa went to the Nether-world, Rasaatala by name, and being filled with the prowess of Shagavan, killed all the Gandharvas (who were giving trouble to the Nagas (serpents) there."

827. Nyagrodhodumbarah — He Who is controlled by those who stand below bowing to Him and Who is the master of the superior Transcendental World.

Bhagavan is Nyagrodha and also Udumbara. Therefore He is Nyagrodhodumbara. He is Nyagrodha, because He is prevented from going elsewhere by those who stand below praying for a fevourable glance of His. Vide—

"Anjati-the act of joining the hands in supplication is a great symbol which pleases the Lord at once without delay."

(In the same lines is the advice of Hanuman to Sugriva)—
"(O Sugrival) Since an offence has been committed by you
I see no other atonement for you than to pacify Lakshmana and beg his pardon with folded hands."

He is Udumbara; that is He has Ambara (the Supreme Abode' which rises far above all other things by its magnificent qualities (ut)—the Supreme Abode which includes within Itself Lakshmi, attendants etc. So the name Nyagrodhodumbara signifies that though He is worshipped by the highest of personages, He is within the easy reach of the lowest, (because it is possible to please Him easily)". This is clearly seen in the texts like Sri Vaishnava where it is said:

चाम.कि. 82.17 2 वि.पू. 4.3.4

"Bhagavan Purushottama, Who is the Adi-purusha, was requested by the serpents to help them from the trouble given by the Gandharvas, Mauneyas, by name."

(Mauneyes—This is the metronymic name of Chitrasena and other Gandhetvas who were the sons of Muni, the wife of the sage Kasyapa.)

The word Udumbara has been irregularly formed under the Prshodaraadi rule. The word Udumbara is a compound word from the two words 'ud'+'ambara'. Normally it should be Udambara. But the first letter 'a' of the word 'ambara' has been changed into 'u' and therefore it comes under the Prshodaraadi rule. (827)

अथ पादुर्भावान्तरसंज्ञः स्वाङ्गभूते तत्तद्वेवतामुखेन जगन्नियः मनम्।।

Then begins the topic of the rule of the world by Bhagavan through the different gods who are like His limbs. In this state He is known by the name of 'Praadurbhaavaantara'.

828. Asysttheh—He Who stands as the controller of the worlds through (Indra and other) gods who are transitory.

The name Asyatthan is derived as follows: He stands as the Ruler of Indra and others who occupy posts that are temporary. They are not permanent because they are in existence on one day and the next day they perish. (a - sva—not in the morrow). The formation of this word also comes under the Prshodaradi rule.

Vide in the Vaishnava: "Residing within the body of Brahma, composed of Rajorguna, Bhagavan creates the world. He takes the body of Vishnu composed of Sattva, and protects the world. Assuming the body of Kaala (Siva) composed of Tamo-guna, He swallows the Universe." (828)

829. Chaanooraandhra-nishoodanah --He Who slew the wrestler Chanoora by name.

He killed the Asura-andhra wrestler Chancora by name who was the enemy of Indra and others.

'Nishondana is derived from the root 'sood' (to kill) with the preposition 'ni'. (ni+sood). 'The 's' of 'sood' is changed to 'sh' like words 'sushama etc.'

Chanoora-andhra—a man of low caste Chanoora by name. (829)

833. Sapta-yaahenah—He Who has seven vehicles.

Bhagavan has seven vehicles in the form of the horses or the son's chariot which are the presiding deities of the Vedic Mantras that reveal Him and that are couched in the seven Metres Gayatri etc. The Vedas declare:

"The seven vital airs are born of Him."

"The seven are placed by Parematma who lies in the inner cave."

Or (the name may be interpreted as follows): He Who controls the seven regions of air. Vide in Paushkara;

"Vayu is the name of the presiding deity which gets its strength from the life-breath of the Lord of the World and it carries on the work of the Universe in different regions or strata. All these are like parks for the universal Lord in the three worlds." (Here the seven vital airs are the five sensory organs, mind and intellect.)

(The seven regions of air are—Aavaha, Pravaha, Samvaha, Udvaha, Vivaha, Parivaha, and Paraavaha)

Seven Vedic Metres—Gayetri, Ushnik, Anushtup, Brihatee, Pankti, Trahtup, Jagatee (833)

Hereafter the sublime grandeur of Bhagavan in the suberhuman powers of becoming as small as an atom etc, is described.

839. Anuh-The Atom.

He is an Atom (Anu) since He has the capacity to enter into the infinitesimally small void space known as 'Dahara-Akasa' in the heart of beings, into Avyakta (i.e. Prakriti), and also into the subtle Jiva. Anu here means that He is extremely subtle.

The word 'anu' is derived from the verb 'anati' which means 'goes'. After the root 'an' comes the affix 'u':

"He is a much smaller atom than the atom itself."

"He is powerful and is more subtle than the fibre of the lotus stalk". (839)

* 840. Brihet-The Great.

The extent of His pervasion is such that even the vast Transcendental World (Parama-pada) appears to be just in a corner of His palm. He is Brihat because of this all-surpassing greatness. Vide t

"He pervaded the Earth in all its entirety and stood up beyond it by 'Dasa-angula." (Though the word Dasa-angula means iten inches' here 'dasa' means endiess and 'angula' means yojana)

"He is greater then the great,"

"He is greater than the Earth."

"The words 'prehat', 'brhat' 'manat' and 'jagat' ere formed by the affix 'ati' and it is like the 'satr' affix. The force of the affix is to denote the present tense. Ilke the 'satr' affix." So the root 'brh' has the affix 'ati' and the rule is that it denotes present tense. (840)

Because of the lightness of His body which surpasses that of cotton, wind etc., His movement is unimpeded on all sides. So He is Krisa. From the context it must be taken that the thinness here signifies lightness. Vide:

"Inscrutable is Bhagavan. He cannot be ordered by any one. He can go wherever He chooses."

'Krisa' is derived from the root 'kra' (to spread or extend). The affix 'ka' has been added under the rule. "After a verb ending in a consonant, but preceded by 'i' 'u' or 'ii' (long or short), comes the affix 'ka' (a)."

845. Mahaan-The Great.

He is Mahaan, great. He has the superior power of achieving whatever He desires to have. (This is the power known as praa-kaamya); there is nothing that can obstruct what he desires to do. Even into the earth He can plunge and emerge out of it as one does in water. This power He has to the highest extent and so He is Mahaan. Vide:

"The powerful Lord, Sauri, acts as He chooses. He united and separates things as He likes. Whatever He chooses to do, He can accomplish it without any effort."

"The words 'prshat' (sprinkle), 'brhat' (to increase), 'mahat' (to worship) and 'jagat' (to go) are formed by the affix 'ati' which denotes the present tense as the 'sair' suffix does.

846. Adhritah-The Uncontrolled.

It is said that the fulfilment of one's desires is achieved in four ways: (1) Controlling the mind of another by entering the shadow of another (2) subjecting the mind of another by constant meditation (3) entering into the body of another when he is alive or even after his death and (4) directing the conduct of sacrifices and digging of wells and tanks. Bhagavan is called Adhrita, because He has such omnipotence and omnipresence that He is not 'dhrita' or impeded in His actions. All this superior power is quite naturel to Him and based on His own free will. This is seen in the case of Sri Krishna. "Therefore it is said about Him. By His mere will the sons of the Valdika-Brahmin were able to reach the Paramapada (the Transcendental World) from which there is normally no return even though they had not attained perfection in meditation; and they came back because of His will to bring them back to the world of rebirth. Again though He has the power to change the nature of the sentient Jivatma and the non-sentient Prekriti, for some inscrutable reason He does not bring about such a change. (846)

847. मन्त-ओषधि-तपः-समाधि-सिद्धात् वद्धेश्वयीत् भगवदेश्वयं व्यावर्तयसि — स्वधृतः । एतदेश्वर्यमस्य न समाध्याद्यपाधिकम्, किं तु स्वभावतो धृतमिति स्वधृतः ॥ (847)

नि —846. यथ्रानियाम्यः केनाप्रि हि अधृतः स तु कीर्तितः ॥

The name Sva-dhrita distinguishes the sublime nature of Paramatma from the greatness of the bound souls which is acquired by them by means of incantations, herbs, austerities and meditation. This sublimity of the Paramatma is not dependent on meditation etc., but it is natural to Him. So He is Sva-dhritah. (847)

848. Svaasyah—He Who has a glorious status.

The status and glory of Bhagavan is distinguished here from that of the Muktas (or Released souls). 'Assya' means status. Bhagavan's status is always magnificent. In the case of the Mukta, his stately nature, though innate to him, was clouded once by Nescience and it has become manifest only after release from Samsara. It is not so with Bhagavan since it is always manifest.

"Also after a verb ending in long 'aa', when there is a preposition along with it, the affix 'ang' comes (when the noun formed is in feminine gender)."

849. Praeg-vamsah—He Who is the cause of the sternally free souls.

The name Preag-vamsa distinguishes Him from the eternally free souls (the Nityas) by virtue of His glory.

"Paiama-pada is the place of Vishnu where from time immemorial the Saadhya-devas (i.e. eternally free Angels) tive."

As stated in this Sruti text, the word 'praak' signifies the eternally free souls. He is their 'vamsa'—the cause for their superior status. If their essential nature and their glory is eternally manifest, it is due to Him. It is undisputed and accepted by all that all things in all ways depend on His will. All this (that has been delineated in the four names (846 to 849) is summarised by the following sloke in the Vaishnava (Purana) thus:

"O Lord! In this way Thy glory is superior, inborn and unexcelled. Therefore how can I fully describe it and praise Thee?" (849)

He is Vamsa-vardhana since He is the cause for keeping in tect the respective essential nature of all beings that are different from Him. Here the 'Vamsa' or the race signifies the hosts of eternally free Angels and the Siddhas who are like His pedigree and who have been mentioned just previously. He goes on increasing them. Vide:

"I prostrate before the Lord Who keeps His followers ever around Him."

The name Yoges signifies that all that has been stated about Him is quite possible in Him. There is a unique great ness in Him of bringing about a harmonious combination of things that generally do not go together. Such greatness is in an extreme measure and is quite natural to Him. So the scriptural texts declare:

"Look at the great Yoga of Mine Who am the Lord."

"Hari, that Supreme Lord of Yogs." And so on. (853)

Vaayu here is used to signify Garuda, the lord of birds who is noted for his swiftness of movement. With the help of Garuda, Bhagvan lifts up those who have fallen down because of very powerful causes and makes them reach the other shore. So He is called Vaeyu—vaahanah. By way of illustration we have the story of King Uparichara-Vasu. Vasu was a very great devotee of Bhagavan. Due to the curse of a great sage he was wandering in the nether worlds. Bhagavan rescued him by means of Garuda and again made him move about in upper worlds. Vide in the Vishnu Tattva:

"Or the Garuda, the king of birds, will come to him quickly and carry him to the abode of Shagavan (the master of Garuda)."

Sattva-vaan Saatvikah Satyah Satya-dharma-paraayanah I Abhipraayah Priyaarho Arhah Priya-krit Preeti-vardhanah II (93)

Here begins the delineation of the Lord as presiding over the Sattvaguna.

871. Settva-vaan—He Who has the quality of Sattva (under His control).

He presides directly over the Sattva-guna which has the qualities of lustre, lightness and bliss and which therefore is the cause of Salvation. Vide:

"The Great Lord is the supreme Person Who guides the flow or the movement of Sattva-guna-"

The qualities of Rajas and Tames are being manipulated by Him through the medium of Brahma and Siva respectively. The Lord says in the Vaaraaha Purana;

"A being is released from bondage because of the quality of Sattva in him. Sattva is indeed Narayana Himself if a person has the quality of Rajas coupled with Sattva, he becomes a men of wealth and great fame."

"It is declared in all the Sastras that It is the nature of Brahma when Rajas becomes essociated with Tamas. In fact He is also Myself (i.e. He is controlled by Me). There is no doubt about it." (871)

872. Saatvikah-He that has Sattva-guna.

It is quite fitting to associate the Sattva-gune with Bhagavan because it is He that dispenses the fruits of dharma, knowledge, non-attachment and riches.

873. Satyah - The Truth.

Since He is delineated by the Saativka Sastras, all the greatness attributed to Him is true and so He is Satya.

It is because of Him that those who have reached the highest stage of Bhakti, attein the supreme about (Paramepada). So He Himself has said !

"Having enjoyed great pleasures in abundance, through My grace, you will remember Me at the last moment and will begin to live in my world."

The Brahma Sutra says 1 "Because of the efficacy of Bhakti Yoga that has been prectised by a devotee and because of the constant meditation on the path which leads to Paramapada, there springs a justre at the tip of the heart which is the seat of the Atma. Through the grace of the Lord residing in his heart, the Upasaka is able to see the opening by which he has to go; he then leaves the body through that particular nerve called Sushumna which will lead him to the path of the supreme adode and which is different from the other one hundred nerves that will lead a person to places other than the superior abode."

This topic has been discussed in the following Brahma-Sutras:

"The Muktas (Released Souls) are led along the atages beginning with Archi (Light), and this is well-known in the Upanishadic Texts."

"Archin and other deities are known as Astivachikas (Escorting Angels) because of the nature of their duty which is to lead the Muktas to the Supreme Abode."

Bhagavan produces through the Sun as the medium rain crops etc, Therefore He is called Savita (Aditya).

"(The Jiva) goes from the Year to Aditya."

"Vayu (has to come) after the year, because of general and particular terms to show it."

It is pertinent to introduce Vayu between the Samvatsara and the Aditya since there are Upanishadic texts which declare that the Jiva goes from the Samvatsara (Year) to Vayu-loka i.e. 'Deva-loka'. So it must be taken that the Jiva goes from the Samvatsara to Vayu, and from there to the Sun. (who is the seventh step in the Path). (887)

Both of them possessed of immense greatness are under His control. So Bhegavan is Ananta-hutabhuk-bhoktaa. Indra and Brahma work for the Lord in escorting the Jiva in the Architadi-Path, They are the eleventh and twelfth steps which are the last in the Path.)

They who give only one thing are 'Ekadas'. Unlike these 'Nalkadas' are those who give not one, but many things. Here Bhagavan is called 'Nalkada' because He has many celestials as His attendants who are well-versed in the art of giving reception to the Muktas and who bestow countless garlands, pigment, clothes, etc. on them.

The Kaushitakins decises: "Five hundred Apserasas (divine damsels rush forth to receive the Mukta, A hundred of them have garlands in their hands, and another hundred have the pigment in their hands to decorate him" end so on.

When the Muktas' reach Him, Bhagavan, along with Lakshmi, the Ruler of the Univese, manifests Himself to them and both of them become objects of enjoyment for them. This is delineated in the Paryanka-vidya (of Kaushitaki Upanishad).

The passage in the Kaushitaki Upanishad begins with these words:

eithe (the Mukta) comes to the Couch (Paryanka) of great splendour." And proceeds: "The Supreme Brahman is seated on it with Lekshmi beside Him and the attendants around Him. The Mukta (Who has meditated upon the Lord in this manner) and who now realises Him, places his foot on the couch and climbs it. Brahman asks him, "Who are you?"

And the text concludes: "The knowledge that Brahman has, the Mukta acquires; and the Bliss that is Brahman's he enjoys that bliss." (892)

The Sruti also declares: "The Mukta enjoys all the desirable and fascinating qualities of Brahman as well as Brahman itself."

(When He came for the rescue of Gajendra), the Lord had in His hands the five weapons which destroy the enemies who are a source of harm to others. (Sarvaree means destructive weapons.) The word 'sarvaree' is derived from the root 'sr' (to do harm), and the 'shvarach' affix has been added to it under the following rule. "The affix 'shvarach' comes after 'kri', 'gri', 'sri' etc. The presence of 'sha' at the beginning of the affix 'shvarach' explains the addition of the affix 'gneesh' to denote the feminine gender. (Sri+shavarach+gneesh = sarvaree).

929. Santah-He Who makes others prosper.

In this way He confers prosperity on His devotees.

"The affix 'da' is seen to come after other roots also."

The force of 'api' is that this affix comes after verbs and other cases in composition with such verbs.

Another meaning of Santah is that Bhagavan exists for His devotees. The use of the plural number as 'santah' (instead of 'san') is archaic. A third meaning is that He grants their desires. This is the past participle form of the verb 'sanoti' (he bestows).

"The long 'an' is substituted for the final of 'jan', 'san', 'ken' etc. before the consonant-beginning desiderative affix 'san' and before any other affix beginning with a 'jhal' consonant which has an indicatory 'ka' or 'gna'." (929)

Though Bhagaven is not in wants, He accepts the offerings made in a sacrifice as though He has been long expecting them and enjoys them. Thus He feels satisfied and also satisfies those who do sacrifices. This is understood only by the wise who know the injunctions, the means and the fruit of sacrifices, but not by those who have only a superficial knowledge. Hence the name 'the Secret of the sacrifice.'

"All the Yedas and all that has to be learnt, all the Sastra! and all sacrifices, and all worship—all are Sri Krishna. O Kings. Those who know Krishna correctly in this way, may be considered to have completed successfully all sacrifices."

Sarva praharanaayudha Om Namah iti—The name Sarva-praharanaayudha is repeated to show that the Text Vishnu-Sahasranama has concluded. The Mystic syllable 'Om' shows all auspiciousness. Namaha means prostrations to the Lord.

Thus from these thousand names it is declared that the Supreme Being, Bhagavan Purushottame, the Consort of Sri, is the very antithesis of all defects. His sublime and auspicious essential nature, forms, qualities, power and activities are all completely devoid of any conditioning adjuncts; they are infinite and unlimited. His supremacy as well as His amiability are unexcelled and uncontrolled. He is the friend in distress, the Tree of Paradise in fulfilling the desires of men, and the very life of those who have taken refuge in Him. In short, Bhagavan Purushottama Sriman Narayana is the wonderful mine of all riches and wealth to His devotees.

The Commentary on the Tenth Hundred Names in Sri Bhagavad-Guna-Darpana explaining the Thousand Names of Vishnu written by Sri Ranganatha
Who is the shining star of Harita Race,
Who is the son of Sri Vatsanka Misrs and on whom was conferred the name of Parasara Bhatta by the divine commend of Sri Renganatha.

अथ अस्य नामसहस्रस्य गौरवं ग्राहयन् ग्रान्तनवः कौन्तेयमाह---

Then Bhishma (the son of King Santanu) said to Yudhishtira (the son of Kunti):

Iti Idam keertaneeyasya Kesavasya Mahaatmanah I Naamnaam Sahasram divyaanaam aseshena prakeertitam II (1)

[Thus the thousand divine names of Bhagavan Kesava, the Supreme Being. Who is worthy of being praised, have been sung in all their entirety.]

The word 'Keertaneeyasya (worthy of being praised) signifies that Bhagavan's greatness has been sung in this way and recitation of the names should be rightly begun from that day onwards; and Bhagavan rightly deserves it. The reason for the same is given by the two words 'Kesavasya Mahaatmanah (He is Kesava, the Creator of both Brahma and Siva; Mahaatma, the Supreme Being.) The word 'divyaanaam' (divine) indicates that the names are fit to be recited both in this material world and in the transcendent Parama-pada. The word 'aseshana' means that out of my respect for you nothing has been left out which has got to be known.

In the next Stoka the qualifications for the recitation and the result of the same are described.

Yah idam srnuyaat nityam yas-chaapi parikeertayat I Na asubham praapnuyaat kinchit sah amutra iha cha maanayah II (2)

[Nothing insuspicious or unwelcome will accrue to that man who hears this daily and who also recites it.] either in this world or in the world beyond.

For a person who according to his qualification and ability hears it or revolves it in his mind, the fruit is declared in general terms that there will be nothing inauspicious both in this world and in the other.

The next cloke mentions the fruit that will be got according to their desert by the members of the four castes who have not got the intense devotion to God and who are not desirous of getting any particular fruit. Vedeantego Brashmansh sysat
Kshattriyo vijayee bhavet I
Vaisyo Dhana-Samrddhah sysat

[If the person who recits it is a Brahmin, he will attain the knowledge of the Vedanta (the Upanishada). If he is a Kahattriya, he will become a great victor; if a Veisya, he will acquire immense wealth, and if a Sudra, he will enjoy great happinese.

The stoke that follows declares the different kinds of fruits that will be acquired by the different castes according to their desires.

Ohermarthee praapnuyaat dharmam arthaerthee ca artham aapnuyaat | Kaamaan avaapnuyaat kaamee | Prajaarthee cha aapnuyaat prajaah || (4)

[If a person recites the names with a desire for dharma (merit), he will get the dharma. If he is desirous of wealth he will get the riches. If he is after the pleasures of life, he will get all of them. If he wants to have progeny he will get children.]

The next four slokes state if a Bhakta (devotee) recites the names as a Japa (chanting) in accordance with the rules taid down for the same, he will attain all kinds of prosperity.

Anuttamam areyah—Salvation. All the rest are the fruits of success in this world.

[Let us take up the case of a person who is very much devoted to the Lord. He gets up in the morning and purifies himself (with bath and the observance of rites and rituals). Then with his mind firmly fixed on Lord Vasudeva, he recites the thousand names of Vasudeva.]

[He becomes endowed with great reputation and becomes the foremost amongst his kith and kin. He acquires undiminishing wealth (in this world) and unexcelled prosperity (in the other, i.e. salvation.)]

[There is no fear for him from any quarter. He acquires valour and power. He is never unwell and always shines very much. He becomes endowed with strength, a healthy body and noble qualities.]

[He who is suffering from any disease will get ride of it; he who is in bondage will be relieved of it. He who is affected by fear will become free from it and he who is in difficulties will get rid of them.]

अय भगवदेकाथितः अनन्यभक्तेः अश्राधितामपि अन्धं-निवृत्तिमाह—दुर्गणि इति ।।

> दुर्गाण्यतितरति आशु पुरुषः पुरुषोत्तमम् । स्तुवन् नामसङ्ग्रेण नित्यं भक्तिसम्बितः ॥ ९॥

Next it is stated that if a person is exclusively devoted to Sii Krishna and his only desire is to attain Him, all his difficulties will automatically vanish even though he does not pray to god for any relief from them.

Purushah Purushottamam I Stuvan Naama-sahasrena Nityam Bhakti-samanyitah II 9

[That person who with devotion praises the Supreme Being (Purushottams) reciting His thousand names daily, surmounts all insuperable difficulties very quickly.] (9)

The next two slokes speak of the attainment of the Lord by such devotees.

> Na Vaasudeva-bhaktaanaam Asubham vidyate kvachit i Janma-mrtyu-jaraa-vyaadhibhayam vaa api upajaayate II (11)

[That man, who has taken resort to Vasudeva and who thinks that Vasudeva is the highest goal to be reached, becomes cleansed of all sins and his mind becomes pure. He finally attains the eternal Brahman ] (10)

[Nothing insuspicious ever occurs to the devotees of Vasudeva. Nor do they have any fear from birth and death or old age and disease. (11)

The following sloke says that in the case of a Bhakta who recites the names in accordance with the Sastrale injunctions, there is the attainment of all kinds of prosperity which come as a matter of course.

Imam Stavam adheeyaanah Sraddhaa-bhakti-samanvitah I Yujyeta aatma-sukha-kahaanti-Sree-dhrti-smrti-keertibhlh II (12)

[That person, who chants this Hymn with Zeal and devotion, becomes blessed with happiness of the self, forbearance, riches, firmness of mind, good memory and great fame.] (12)

'Sraddhe' means eagerness associated with respect. Bhakti' has been already explained. Atma is the Self. Devotion to Bhagavan is the result of highly meritorious acts.

"There is nothing good which is superior to Devotion to Lord Govinda." (12)

सस्यतः एते दोषाः स्वभावत एव निवर्तन्ते इत्याह्— न कोधः इति ।।

Bhaktaanaam Purushottame II (13)

Salar Barrell

[Neither anger nor jealousy, neither greed nor evil thougts haunt the minds of those people who are true devotees of Purushottama, (the Supreme Being) and who have acquired merit by virtuous deeds.]

The above sloke says that as a matter of fact these defects by themselves keep away from the devotees. (13)

न अयं फलायंवाद: शंक्यः निर्माग्यै: कुतार्किकै:, भगवत्त्रभावस्य असंभाव्याभावेन अतिबाद-अपवादयो: असंभवात् इति अभिप्रयन्, तस्य संप्रभावमाह—छौ: सचन्द्र इति ।।

विधुतानि इति नानालिङ्गानां

2 "नपुंसकमनपुंसकेन एकवच्चास्य अन्यतरस्याम्" इति नपुंसकतिङ्ग-शेषता ।। (14)

There may be some who, because of their misfortune, include in illegical reasoning and are incredulous of the truth of the statement about the fruits. Their view is not correct; because there is nothing unbelievable in the power and greatness of the Lord. There is no exaggeration or false praise here. That greatness of Bhagavan is described as follows:

Dyauh sa-chandra-arke-nakshatram kham disp Bhoo mahodadhih I Vaaaudevasya veeryena vidhrtaani Mahaatmanah II (14)

[The firmament, along with the moon, the sun and the stars, the sky, the directions, Earth and the great sea—all, all are supported by the valour of Vasudeva, the Supreme Lord.]

The word 'vidhrtmani' in the sloke is in the neuter gender. Though there are other words in it in other genders, the participle form of the verb is put in the neuter gender according to the following rule:

"A neuter noun, which has the same form only differing in affix, is optionally retained and the other is dropped and it is like a singular number. (i.e. where one adjective qualifies several words in different genders, but one of which must be neuter, the adjective agrees with the neuter.")

This is done with a view to allay the fears of less learned men.

Sarva-aagamaanaam—Of all the Sastras which are the authority for all Dharmas. Prathamam pari-kalpitah—the first Dharma that is taught. Aachaarah—purity of body etc. The Dharmas taught by the Vedas are only subsidiary to this. Bhagavan Achyuta is the Deity Who is to be propitiated by that Dharma, Who is the Giver of the fruits, and Who is also the helper in the successful observance of that conduct.

Jaanam is Sastram. Yoga-jaana is a knowledge of the Sastras. This Yoga is of two kinds—Samaadhi Yoga and Karma-yoga (i.e. the course of Bhakti and that of Karma (action). Saankhyam is that science by which the true nature of the Realities is arrived at by means of 'sankhyaa' (i.e. intellect). Vidyaah—the subsidiary branches of knowledge like Grammar etc, Archery, Medicine, Gaandharva (i.e. music, dancing etc.) are practical sciences which come under the class of Auxiliary Sciences. Silpas—(Sculpture, Architecture etc.) Karma is observance of duties in all places. Vedas—the foremost amongst all Sciences. Sastra—Smrlti, Itihasa and Purans. Sarvam etat vijnaanam—is Sastra. All these sciences are born of Bhagavan Janardana. The predicate 'ere born' is to be supplied. (19) which are of countless forms, manners, mutations and utility and which are distinct and different from one another (prthak). Hebpervades all of them and also the three worlds. Souls in bondage. Released Souls and Eternal Angels are the three worlds here. He is their Atma, because He controls them and is their Master. He is their sole Protector. But He is Avyayanot touched by their defects. By His supreme glory He is Mahat-bhootam; He is beyond the region of thought and word, and Bhunkte—enjoys Leelaa-rasa and Bhoga rasa (the pleasure of sport and Divine Bliss).

Here Bhagavan, possessed of unlimited greatness is the object of praise. Bhagavan Vyasa, who has the wealth of words enough to swallow and describe that, is the panegyrist. This gem of a Hymn has the auspiclousness and the greatness of both of them. This world, possessed as it is of great destitution, which is to be removed by that Hymn is eminently qualified to take to it. Thus everything is perfect and complete about this. Therefore any person, desirous of supreme bliss, or material pleasures, whoever to may be, may teaort to it. This is steted by the following sloke.

Shagavan Narayana, Who is the Consort of Lakshmi and the Lotus-eyed Lord is by nature opposed to all kinds of unwelcome things (like happiness and sorrow, good and evil) and is the mine of all auspicious qualities. He is like the celestial Parijate Tree for those who have resorted to Him. They consider that He alone is their wealth. Therefore the itches and well-being of those people are beyond words. This being the case, where is for them any occasion for dishonour or disgrace? With these words Sage Vyasa concludes the Hymn as follows:

「「「「「」」

[The Lotus-eyed Lord is the Birthless Supreme Deity, the Ruler of the Universe and the Cause of the creation and destruction of the Universe. Those who sing His praise will never meet with disrespect or discomfiture of any kind,

Never will they meet with disrespect or discomfiture Salutations to that Lord of all auspiciousness.] (22)

"Never do they meet with any disrespect", "Never do they meet with any disrespect"—By repeating these words twice, the Sage swears on an oath and concludes the Hymn.

अस्माकम् अत्र च परत्र च सर्वदुःखम् उत्मूट्य संपद्म् अशेषविधां विधाय । श्रीरङ्गराजमहिषी स च वैष्णवानां सङ्गात् सुवं सह जयेन सदा क्रियास्ताम् ॥ इति

The Commentary called Bhagavad-Guna-Darpana
Explaining the Thousand Names of Lord Sri Vishnu
Written by Sri Ranganatha
Who is the Shining Star of Harita Race,
Who te the son of Sri Vatsanka Misra and on Whom was conferred the name of Parasara Bhatta by the divine command of Sri Ranganatha,

APPENDIX

[The Recitation of the Vishnu-Sahasra-nama is usually concluded by reciting a few more slokas towards the end which are not commented upon by Acharyas like Sri Sankara and Bhattar. They are given below with the translation in English for the benefit of the readers.]

Sphurat sahasraara-sikhaati-teevram
Sudarsanam bhaaskara-koti-tulyam I Suradivishaam praanavinaasi Vishnoh, chakram sadaaham saranam prapadye II (1)

Ever do I seek refuge in Vishnu's Chakra (Discus) Sudarsana (by name and of charming appearance)—Discus, which is greatly powerful with a thousand spokes of glittering flames, which is similar to a cross of Suns, and which destroys the lives of the Asuras, the enemies of Gods.

विष्णोर्भुखोत्थानिलपूरितस्य यस्य ध्वनिद्दीनवद्रपेहन्ता । तं पाष्ट्रजन्यं शशिकोटिशुभं शङ्कं सदाऽहं शरणं प्रपर्वे ॥ २ ॥

2. Sankha-Conch:

Vishnor-mukhotthaanila-pooritasya Yasya dhvanir-daanava-darpa-hantaa I Tam Paanchajanyam Sasi-koti-subhram Sankham sadaaham saranam praydya II (2) Ever do I seek refuge in Paanchajanya, the Conch, the sound of which, filled by the air emanating from the mouth of Vishnu, puts an end to the pride of the Asuras, and which is white like a cross of Moons.

हिरणभ्यां मेरसमानसारां कीमोदकी दैत्यकुलैकहन्त्रीम् । वैकुण्ठवामाप्रकरामिषुष्टां गदां सदाऽदं शरणं प्रपद्ये ॥ ३ ॥

3. Gada-Mace: Kaumodakee

Hiranmayeem Merusamaana-saaraam Kaumodakeem Daitya-kulaika hantreem I Vaikuntha-vaamaagra karaabhimrishtaam Gadaam sadaaham saranam prapadye II (3)

Ever do I seek refuge in Kaumodaki, the Mace of gold, which is equal in strength to Mount Meru, which is the peerless slayer of the hordes of Asuras, and which is gently touched by the forepart of the left hand of Vaikuntha (i.e. Vishnu, the Blemishless).

Rakshosuraanaam kathinogra-kanthaccheda-ksharac-chonita-digdha-dhaaram l Tam Nandakam naama Hareh pradeeptam Khadgam sadaaham saranam prapadye il (4)

Ever do I seek refuge in the shining Sword of Harl, Nandaka by name, the blade of which is smeared with the blood flowing from the severed necks, hard and frightful, of the Rakshasas and Asuras.

यज्ज्यानिनादश्रवणात् सुराणां चेतांसि निर्मुकभयानि सर्वः । भवन्ति दैत्याशनिवाणवर्षि शाङ्गी सदाऽहं शरणं प्रपद्ये ॥ ५ ॥

5. Saarnga—the Bow; Saarnga

Yaj-jyaa-ninaada-sravanaat suraanaam Chetaamsi nirmukta-bhayaani sadyah I Bhavanti Daitya-asani-baana-varshee Saarngam sadaa aham saranam prapadye ii (5)

Ever do I seek refuge in Saarnga, the Bow, by hearing the twang of the bow-string of which the hearts of gods at once become devoid of fear and which (bow) showers thunderlike arrows on the Asuras.

Imam Hareh Pancha-mahaayudhaanaam Stavam pathet Yo anudinam_prabhaate i Samasta-duhkhaani bhayaani sadyah Paapaani nasyanti sukhaani santi II_ (6)

If a person reads daily in the morning this Hymn of the five great weapons of Vishnu, all his sorrows, fears and sins will at once vanish and joys ensue. (6)
